THE FOOTLIGHT

Contains the Programme of the following reputable places of amusement:

CALIFORNIA THEATRE.
BALDWIN'S THEATRE.
GRAND OPERA HOUSE.
EMERSON'S OPERA HOUSE.
BUSH STREET THEATRE.

It is also the recognized organ of all first-class Combinations that visit the city, and numerous theatres throughout the interior, which are supplied with the paper, special editions of which we print daily.

Bush-Street Theatre.

Miss Fannie Louise Buckingham commenced her engagement last night at this theatre to a crowded house, in company with her "gallant gray," James Melville, who is, in truth, a noble steed, and possessed of so much quick intelligence as to make one almost cower in Dean Swift's notion of the superiority of the equine race over the human. The drama of "Mazeppa" is based upon the poem of the same name written by Lord Byron, and affords Miss Buckingham a magnificent opportunity for the display of her personal charms, in which respect nature has been very generous to her. The scene in which the unfortunate prince, the victim of a tyrant's hate and jealousy, is bound naked on the back of a wild horse, who is thereafter turned loose into the desert in order that "Mazeppa" may become the prey of the wolves, was very artistically represented. The new scenery and effects are extremely creditable. "Mazeppa" is certain to draw full houses during its run. Matinee to-day.

California Theatre.

The highly attractive spectacle, "The Black Crook," began the second week of its successful run yesterday. The house was as crowded as on the first night, and there appears every reason to predict an unexampled run for this magnificently mounted play. To-day, being New Year's Day, there will be a special matinee performance. The management have announced that as a large number of people have been unable to obtain seats during the past week, places should be taken some days in advance. The California is the most comfortable theatre in the city for people who are obliged to stand up during a performance; but to thoroughly enjoy a spectacle like the "Black Crook," a seat is desirable.

Grand Opera House.

The third and last week of "Round the Clock" was inaugurated last night with a packed house. A great many new and entertaining incidents have been introduced into the action, in addition to the change in the songs of the madrigal boys. The Græco Roman wrestlers give an exhibition of their skill, Mlle. Linda Jeal and W. O'Dale Stevens appear in their specialties, and the "Madagascars" with the unique musical instrument, the "Marimba," have also been added to the variety of attractions. "Round the Clock" will be withdrawn after this week, and replaced by the Parisian historical play, "The Regiment of Champagne."

The Fountain.

The excellence of the musical performance which takes place at this resort every evening, attracts a large number of people. The place is conveniently situated, at the corner of Kearny and Sutter streets, and the proprietor spares no effort to make it agreeable. The band plays from 8 o'clock until 12.

THE Rochester Democrat remarks, with a mendacity that does honor to its head and heart: "We said nearly thirty years ago that Mary Anderson would be a great artist."—Graphic.

THEATRICAL GOSSIP, ETC.

MISS VICTORIA WOODHALL, the "free love" prophetess, is lecturing at St. James' Hall, London.

DION BOUTICAULT will play an engagement in San Francisco in April next. Dion is a good actor and popular, too, notwithstanding his crankiness towards the whole grand army of dramatic critics everywhere.—Phila. Mirror.

It may be interesting to know that the lady who is writing up the American actresses for the New York Herald is Marie T. Courcelles. Not long ago she sketched Rose Eytinge, whom she described as "just in the woodway of mature womanhood."

SAM RICKKY, of minstrel renown, got a little "discouraged" on Friday evening, and walking into the City Prison in a jolly way, stated to Captain Bethel that he was under $500 bail, and came to give himself up. He was carefully attended to by the prison nurse.

THE Philadelphia Mirror, in a laudatory notice of Madame Janaschek's recent engagement in that city, says: "The great tragedienne created a more profound impression here this time than ever before, which was due mainly to the fact that she never acted in this city with such concentrated energy and intellectuality. It is true that her pronunciation of the English language was never worse, but this defect was utterly lost sight of amid the grand triumphs of her colossal genius."

ROSE STELLA has achieved a genuine success in opera bouffe at Sydney, Australia, at the Theatre Royal, and has been especially complimented by his Excellency, the Governor and family. Mlle. Stella, upon the termination of her Australian tour, will organize an American comic Opera Company, with herself as prima donna, the season to begin next fall in New York.—Ex. We are glad to bear it. Bright, laughing, musing little Stella is one of the most pleasant of the votaries of opera bouffe.—[Editor FOOTLIGHT.]

COUNT DE BOZENTA, husband of Madame Modjeska, who resides in this city at present, has sent a letter to Barton Hill, in which he says, in effect, that his wife has just written him from New York that the language she is said to have used, in disparagement of the people of San Francisco, when interviewed by the reporter of the New York Express, is altogether misrepresented, and she was entirely misunderstood. The writer says, further, that he felt sure from the beginning there was some mistake, but he waited till his opinion was corroborated by a letter from his wife. He writes that justice may be done in the premises and the minds of Madame Modjeska's friends here be disabused.

Aibischer Rivalled.

At the Grand Central Theatre, Philadelphia, a performer by the name of Berry recently made his first appearance as the melancholy Dane, "Hamlet, Prince of Denmark," announcing himself as "late with Dr. Landis." The audience entered into the spirit of the play, and made it such a burlesque as would have driven Lydia Thompson wild with envy. They greeted all the fine points with shouts of laughter; then they grew demonstrative, and the actor, with hair as long as Te as Jack, was saluted with missiles of all descriptions, until the theatre was a pandemonium. Apples, potatoes, bread, flour, pretzels, cabbage, and things too numerous to mention, went hurtling to the stage, and striking the performer, made his dress of more colors than Joseph's. Hamlet grew indignant; he lost his temper; he rushed to the footlights; like Richard at Bosworth field he would have sold his "kingdom for a horse;" he anaethemized, and the more he hurled the Anglo-Saxon, pure and simple, the more the audience grew uproarious. He struck his most tragic attitude, and threatened them with the police, and still the noise increased, but at last he gave up the contest, and in the words of his pet character, acknowledged "a hit, a palpable hit."—Philadelphia Press.

ARGANDIANA.

It is so easy for young ladies to be good. Even in kissing each other they act the golden rule, "do unto others as ye would that men should do unto you."

SPOKON once said something about avoiding the use of the nose as an organ of speech, as it was intended to smell with. Will some artists (?) please weigh the above?

AN exchange says that on the 20th and 21st the Murphys are to produce "The Drunkard" at Logansport, Ind. "The Murphys" of San Francisco could easily "produce" any quantity of the same sort.

A JOPLIN, Mo., correspondent, speaking of the drama "Hawkeye, the Scout; or the Trail of Blood," says that the only fault of the piece is that the first and second act are nearly alike, while the third is similar to the first.

A BOSTON lady critic accuses Clara Louise Kellogg of unbecoming nudity in dress—or rather want of dress. She even says that Lydia Thompson dresses modestly in comparison, and taunts Clara with being forty years old. Now Miss Kellogg will unbosom herself, and what a elamor there will be.

THAT notorious lunatic, Doctor Landis, has a formidable rival in the shape of Miss Julia A. Moore, who styles herself "The Sweet Singer of Michigan." Miss Moore is giving readings in her native State. Dressed precisely as she appears in the picture on the cover of her book, with wildly-dowing hair and a pasteboard crown, she comes upon the stage and reads in a dolorous whine her own productions, "which speak of being killed, died or drowned." At every place she visits the halls are crowded till there is not standing room left, and by the time the "Sweet Singer" has concluded her recitations her audience is in a wild uproar of laughter. A full brass band usually adds to the attractions of the evening, and at the close this band suddenly fetches up with a tremendous snort or toot, the whole scene being indescribably ludicrous. The variety theatres of the land should not neglect the opportunity of securing the services of the "Sweet Singer." She would take like wildfire, and Landis would have no show!—Phila. Mirror. Please, Miss Moore, come right along to San Francisco and bring Dr. Landis with you. With Aibischer, Mrs. Leona Crews, and one or two others of the same sort who are all ready, you can do a "howling" business at one of the "variety" theatres.

The Egotism of Success.

The London Illustrated Sporting and Dramatic News goes for Henry Irving in this powerful manner: "Mr. Irving despises the newspapers, and no wonder. He condemns the men who get their guinea or thirty shillings a week, who are called dramatic critics, and we are not astonished. The reason is palpable. Mr. Irving knows himself. He is well aware, therefore, that although his gait in tragedy is the gait of a comic flamingo, such as Mr. Marks would love to paint, his voice the voice of one that in its upper register might deceive an ornithologist in the wilderness, and his elocutionary 'discoveries' stumbling blocks in the path of Mr. Pitman's pupils; the so-called dramatic critics have not howled derisively, as they might have done, and sent him back to school to learn the rudiments of his (ahem!) High Art. There are sound judgments of theatrical matters who declare that Mr. Irving was a better actor in his thirty shillings a week days than he is now. And there are shrewd appraisers of showmanship, who look upon Mr. Irving as the late Mr. Bateman's biggest success in that line. Mr. Irving attaches no importance to the newspapers—ineffable creature that he is!—but the 'Colonel' did. And it is just as true as two and two make four, Mr. Irving, that you—the great tragedian—are the result of the Colonel's untiring attention to the press." [Dion Bouticault is another "result" of "untiring attention" to getting good notices in his earlier days; and he, like Mr. Irving, now speakingly kicks away the ladder by which he rose to fame.—En. Footlight.]

MILLER'S SPECTACLE DEPOT, 135 MONTGOMERY STREET

WISE AND OTHERWISE.

THE compositor who set up "$10,000" to read "$1,000" might have prevented his mistake by a little fourth ought.—N. Y. Comic Adv.

RABBITS are dying of cholera in Kentucky.—Ex. They're evidently changing their 'abbits in Kentucky. It used to be whisky; now they call it cholera.

"ONE hundred young ladies in armor" is one of the attractions in the "Black Crook" ballet. There is nothing wonderful in this. We are such a war-like nation that our young ladies seldom make any objection to taking to arms. But here is a chance for the boys to captivate some Nob Hill beauty in disguise.

A ROMANTIC marriage occurred in this city Saturday evening. The bride, Miss Fanny Ross, and the groom, Lieutenant Franklin, U. S. N., having known each other only about two months. He had obtained her promise to marry him, but the wedding day was not fixed until he received orders to join the fleet at Yokohama, when he went to his fiancée and persuaded her to marry him and accompany him to his distant station.—Graphic Striking case, indeed. The matrimonial Yoke-o'-amaritiveness is rarely assumed more fleetly. The brave sailor swore he would have her if he had to black her daddy to pieces. It was touching to see how a fair young squaw'd-run half round the world to visit her Aunty Podes.—Philadelphia Bulletin.

RUPTURE

A PROMINENT CITIZEN CURED.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 3, 1877.
DR. PIERCE—Dear Sir: The Truss I purchased of you last Fall has cured me of Rupture, from which I have suffered for the past twenty-five years, and I feel confident that any Rupture can be cured by your MAGNETIC ELASTIC TRUSS. If the patient will only have sufficient courage to wear it until the inflammation caused by the friction of the pad ceases, and the membrane heals I am, dear sir, yours truly,

W. C. QUINBY,
Cor. Ed. "Journal of Commerce," San Francisco.

Mr. Quinby is a gentleman well and favorably known all over this coast. After expending hundreds of dollars on worthless metal Trusses, and having suffered for twenty-five years, he was completely cured in a few months by the MAGNETIC ELASTIC TRUSS.

The remarkable cure performed on Dr. J. Simms the popular lecturer and physician, who is known and respected all over the United States and Europe, is best explained by the following letter

DR. J. SIMMS,

The Renowned Physiognomist of New York,

CURED!

COLUMBIA, CAL., August 26, 1877.
Messrs. PIERCE & SON, 609 Sacramento Street, San Francisco.—I take great pleasure in informing you that the Truss I purchased of your firm last November has completely cured the Rupture with which I had suffered fourteen years. Within three years past my liver and kidneys had grown rapidly worse while wearing an ordinary truss, and the intestines passed down whenever I coughed, bowed my nose, or strained to lift. No common truss could prevent it, and then the pain was torture.

After I wore one of your PATENT MAGNETIC ELASTIC TRUSSES for four months, I noticed that the intestines did not pass down in the least, even when I strained in my utmost, and what was troublesome before was a mere trifling, and so remains to this day.

I freely write you concerning my cure, because I feel it to be a duty I owe to you and other fellow kind who are similarly afflicted. You are at liberty to print this letter should you think proper. I am, most respectfully yours,

J. SIMMS, M. D.
Experience shows that all tempered spring trusses necessarily press upon and often disease parts of the body that were in a perfectly healthy condition. Lungs, Kidney and bladder Affections, Nervous Debility, and a gradual undermining of the constitution, are some of the evil effects produced by such harsh and continued pressure, and in view of this fact it becomes a matter of decided consequence to avoid like calamities, if possible.

Dr. PIERCE'S MAGNETIC ELASTIC TRUSS and MEDICATED RUPTURE PAIN can be obtained ONLY of the undersigned. BEWARE and remember the name and number.

The Richings-Bernard Company.

The Virginia City Chronicle gives the following as the basis of the "commonwealth" which has been the immediate cause of the disaster to the Caroline Richings-Bernard opera: "It was at Zanesville, Ohio, shortly after April Fool's day of this year that this idea was put in practice, the "commonwealth" being organized upon the following basis: All the receipts were to go to a common purse. The expenses (including the choisters' salaries) were to be paid, and the remainder to be divided among the six leading members of the company in the following proportion: Sixty per cent. to go to Mme. Caroline Richings and her husband, Pierre Bernard; 12 per cent. to Harry Gates; 10 per cent. to Mr. and Mrs. Kinross; the same to John J. Benitz, and 8 per cent. to Hattie Moore. Pierre Bernard, disdaining to be known as the proprietor of the concern, assumed the title of "proprietor of the commonwealth." The rank and file of the troupe saw a great deal of country, received a large number of promises, but got very little money. Occasionally the choristers would organize a strike and demand a settlement of salary for the preceeding three or four months, when Pierre Bernard would unloose his purse-strings to the extent of about a week's salary apiece, taking care to deduct therefrom the expenses of each individual for the preceding week. When they came to Virginia City, a few months ago, they owed the Central Pacific Company for fare from Elko and the chorists had not been paid for three months. When they left here the chorists had been paid one month's salary, the Central Pacific Company had been paid the fare to this place and the commonwealth had $500 in the treasury. From here they went to California, where they soon got "broke." Disheartened they started up the coast, when fortune again favored them. Fortunately for them, Ilma di Murska was in Virginia City on the occasion of their last arrival. Pierre Bernard at once set to work to secure her. He succeeded in doing so on astonishingly favorable terms—only 40 per cent. of the gross receipts. The season opened in this city under very favorable auspices, and the troupe, on the evenings when di Murska sang, were greeted with crowded houses. But, although a great deal of money was coming in, the members of the troupe saw none of it, and could obtain no settlement. The receipts on Christmas evening must have exceeded $800, and there must have been over $500 profit on that performance alone; yet those who called upon Bernard for an account of their arrears of salary could not obtain over $5 or $10 apiece. Furthermore, last Saturday Frank Howard entered suit in the District Court to recover $875, which he alleges to be due him for salary from April 16, 1877, to October 8, 1877—the same being at the rate of $35 per week. Of the amount earned he claims to have received only $175. It is said by members of the troupe that there are no less than eighteen or twenty opera singers to whom Caroline Richings and Pierre Bernard are indebted in amounts ranging from $300 upward.

THE FOOTLIGHT

ISSUED DAILY BY

THE FOOTLIGHT PUBLISHING CO.

Publication Office, - - - 518 Clay Street

ALBERT H. KIMBALL, Manager.

WEDNESDAY - - - JANUARY 2

Parties residing out of the City can have "The Footlight" mailed to them daily by remitting the amount necessary to prepay the postage, 50 cents per month.

THE FOOTLIGHT

Contains the Programme of the following reputable places of amusement:

CALIFORNIA THEATRE.
BALDWIN'S THEATRE.
GRAND OPERA HOUSE.
EMERSON'S OPERA HOUSE.
BUSH STREET THEATRE.

It is also the recognized organ of all first-class combinations that visit the city, and numerous theatres throughout the interior, which are supplied with the paper, special editions of which we print daily.

Grand Opera House.

"Round the Clock" will be given for the last time on Saturday. Many changes have been made in the various attractions, which supplement the action of the play. Next week the Parisian success, entitled "The Regiment of Champagne," will be produced.

Bush-Street Theatre.

The play of "Mazepa," with Miss Fanny Louise Buckingham in the character of the Tartar Prince, is moderately successful in attracting audiences to the Bush Street Theatre. Miss Buckingham and her horse "James Melville" are the centre round which a number of lesser characters, (chiefly tyrants, soldiers, and peasantry), revolve. The lady is apparently young, full of vigor, and possessed of considerable dramatic ability. In her style of elocution, Miss Buckingham has very much the manner of Alice Dunning; and in other respects reminds one a good deal of that actress. "Mazepa" is announced for repetition every evening until further notice.

California Theatre.

The public interest in the magnificent spectacle of "The Black Crook," continues as great as ever. The audience last night was one of the largest ever seen in the theatre. Some new features have been introduced into the "ballet of all nations," with excellent effect, and there have been one or two changes in the cast. Mr. Long has replaced Mr. Fitzgerald in the part of Rudolph, which is a decided improvement; and David Hawley has been succeeded as Dragonfin by L. Fox. The corps de ballet have now attained a very creditable degree of proficiency, and execute all the intricate manoeuvres of the different dances with the precision of clock work. The fourth "Black Crook" matinee will take place Saturday, and those who are desirous to witness the performance will do well to secure seats as early as possible.

Emerson's Opera House.

The Adah Richmond Operetta bouffe and Comedy Company opened at this theatre on Monday evening, and have been honored with a couple of very good houses, the public curiosity having been aroused by a prevailing notion that there was something "improper" in the entertainment. Such is, however, very far from the fact, the performance being in reality as tame and harmless as a Kearney meeting, and presenting, positively, no feature of interest. Miss Richmond herself is a very milk and water sort of "queen of opera bouffe," and both in singing and acting is scarcely above mediocrity. Her "troupe" are in keeping with their chief, and blunder through their "musical extravaganza," with a mournful attempt at sprightliness which is positively painful. Miss Richmond is announced as the "queen of American burlesque;" and is about as worthy of that distinction as is Mr. Ciprico of being styled the king of American tragedy. It is announced that Miss Catherine Lewis will appear with the company on Monday next. The lady is a good actress and possesses an excellent voice. It is to be regretted that she should not have the opportunity of making her first appearance in America in better company.

THEATRICAL GOSSIP, Etc.

CAPTAIN JACK, with Fred. Maeder, Miss Rena, etc., was in San Jose, December 28th, playing to good houses.

THE celebrated play "Led Astray" will be the next presented by the Union Square Company at Baldwin's Theatre.

THE Porte St. Martin play, "Les Exiles," done into English, and lately produced at the Boston Theatre with immense success, will probably follow "The Regiment of Champagne" at the Grand Opera House.

THE next frances will probably be between Charley Duane and the celebrated (?) James F. Latham. Both men are on the war path. Weights not yet published. The coroner is anxiously awaiting denouement.

"THE Three Graces," Bradley & Rulofson's newest picture, is a happy grouping of three of San Francisco's most popular poets and dramatic critics—Jessop, Mahony and St. Maur. The young ladies of San Francisco are besieging Bradley & Rulofson's gallery for copies.—Oakland Democrat.

MR. W. MANN ROBERTSON, a talented young journalist and linguist, at present city editor of that much appreciated and bright little paper, the Oakland Democrat, has made a translation of a German play entitled "Five Hundred Thousand Devils," which will be produced at the California Theatre whenever it may be decided to withdraw the reigning success. Mr. Barton Hill will appear in the chief character—that of the Prince of Darkness.

Mlle. ILMA DI MURSKA leaves Virginia City to-day on her return to San Francisco. Her Comstock benefit on Friday last was but thinly attended. The Virginia City Chronicle says that "Di Murska was in fine voice and spirits, and gave the difficult and exquisite part of Lucia with more than her usual sweetness. Our music-loving people have become so fond of her singing that upon her every appearance we notice familiar faces—some feeling that they cannot get enough of it."

MR. JOHN SHERMAN, the property maker of Baldwin's Theatre has been presented by some of the members of the Union Square Company and the attaches of the theatre, with a handsome gold ornament, in the shape of a bill board, bearing an inscription highly complimentary to the recipient. The ceremony of presentation took place at Mr. Sherman's residence on New Year's Eve, and was witnessed by a large number of friends who had been favored with invitations. Mr. Sherman is a gentleman who enjoys the good will of everybody who knows him, and his unvarying courtesy and willingness to oblige have been much appreciated by all artists who have fulfilled engagements at Baldwin's Theatre.

HURROO! MORE BLOOD.—A Philadelphia telegram, dated December 29th, says: This afternoon a personal encounter took place on Ninth street, near the Walnut Street Theatre, between Harry Meredith and McKee Rankin, actors. Rankin was standing on the sidewalk with a number of friends, when Meredith came along and Rankin offered him his hand. It is said that instead of accepting it Meredith struck Rankin in the face. The two men clinched, and a rather severe struggle ensued, in which Meredith received a good drubbing, and was carried into a saloon near by. Rankin, it is said, received a pair of black eyes. What the cause of the trouble was is not known. Both men have been playing at the Walnut Street Theatre this week, Rankin terminating his engagement here to-night in "The Danites." The matter has caused a sensation in theatrical circles.

A Reference.

The other day "Little English," the boot-black, and Nickel Davy, the newsboy, appeared at the office of one of the justices of the peace in company, and after a little hesitation Little English began:

"We want you to settle a little dispute. This 'ere feller says that Robinson Crusoe used to be President of the United States, but I say he never was."

"No, he never was," replied the referee. "Ha! didn't I say so?" shouted the excited blacker as he tossed up his cap. "Nickel is all mixed up on the subject of pollyticks—he got Robinson Crusoe where he should have said John C. Heenan!"

For the Sake of Faces at Home.

Oh I sigh when the storm of sorrow
Sweeps down in its might on my heart,
But it passes away on the morrow,
And fresh on my journey I start.
Joy once more in my bosom prevailing,
I look up to the sun-flooded dome,
And thank Heaven that I naught am ailing,
For the sake of the faces at home.

Their love cheers me on to my duties,
To labor I go with a will;
The dear ones at home are the beauties
That wish me God speed through each ill.
Then, brothers, when sorrow looms o'er you,
Try and hear it wherever you roam,
And trust to the future before you,
For the sake of the faces at home.

A Pious Spree.

The following is an actual incident, the scene being laid in Mason City, Iowa: Just one week ago to-day, four persons went to meeting. Lots of others did so, too, but this particular four were husband and wife, a husband without a wife, and a young lady sister of the first party, all young, highly esteemed and good looking. The husband of the second party was a pious man, a very pious man, superintendent of Sabbath school, and the young lady was a very apt scholar. After worshipping in the most approved modern fashion, the party named piously wended their way homeward, discussing the text, the sermon and the grand future of eternity. When nearing their destination, the second party asked number one if he would vary the programme by taking a glass of beer. The wife declared that if he did, she would. He looked at her fondly, as he had not been long married; so he went, she went, they went together. Four glasses were raised to rosy lips, and they did it again, until something stronger than beer was called for. Soon they all felt mellow. Other thirsty souls came up to this fountain, but found the doors locked. So, to satisfy themselves if any one was really inside, they took some beer kegs and erected a platform under the window, when they discovered a very hilarious condition, indeed. While the songs of Zion were yet ringing in their ears, they began to sing other songs, which savor too much of earth, the ladies keeping time to their own music. Finally, the first party had enough, and felt tired and sleepy, too, so they laid him on a bench, and he dreamed of his little trundle bed. The young lady laid down behind the scenes, and the wife and lovely husband together sought another resting-place.

How She Married a Farmer.

Mock marriages for the fun of the thing sometimes turn out not to be the joke they were supposed to be. A Miss Clara Manning, of Brooklyn, and a Mr. Brundage, of Unionville, in New York State, at a social gathering in the house of the latter, went through this joke to her, but, as he now claims, reality to him. He says he meant it, and she says she did not mean it. The marriage service was read to both by a minister, and both publicly assented to the contract by appropriate response. Mr. Brundage procured a certificate of the fact that the parties had been united in wedlock according to the laws of that State. The step-mother of the unwilling bride applied to the clerk of one of the courts in Brooklyn to know what could be done about it; and the clerk, after ascertaining the facts, advised that the bride should accept the situation and make the best of it, especially as Mr. Brundage was a substantial farmer who understood "the management of pigs and cows," and "a much better match than some city swell who carries his fortune on his back." Whether such a marriage is valid in law is a question for the courts to decide. The lesson is that, if the parties do not mean the thing, they had better keep clear of the form. If they go through the form the presumption is that they mean it.

The Fountain.

The excellence of the musical performance which takes place at this resort every evening, attracts a large number of people. The place is conveniently situated, at the corner of Kearny and Sutter streets, and the proprietor spares no effort to make it agreeable. The band plays from 8 o'clock until 12.

Lamartine's Wife.

The wife of Alphonse de Lamartine, the French poet, was mistress of many languages, and excelled both in music and painting, and was also a brilliant writer. In the stormy days of '48 her husband wrote diligently to free himself from debt. She suffered acutely for him, whose honor and fortune then seemed trembling in the balance. The delicate face became wrinkled and the sweet voice was often tremulous with anxiety. When Lamartine was finishing an article on Beranger, at a time of great political excitement in Paris, she was nearly beside herself lest by any verbal imprudence he should get himself into trouble. Her husband's printer was also greatly alarmed at the political allusions in his article; but Lamartine, obstinately deaf to all their entreaties, vowed that every line should go to the public just as it was written, or not at all. Madame Lamartine was at her wits' end. Finally, a gentleman, mutual friend, got leave from her husband to read over the proofs and modify the offensive expressions. All the long night that this gentleman was occupied, Madame Lamartine sat up, sending into the library to him little suggestive notes of her own. At last the poor, weary friend was so overpowered with fatigue and sleep that he was obliged to doze and go to bed, when he awoke next morning, he found a small paper pushed through the key-hole of his door—a last idea from the indefatigable Madame Lamartine, who had not herself slept a wink all night. This gentleman friend took all the credit of the alteration, while the good wife kept silence and sent her husband's article to the press. Madame Lamartine was often the amanuensis and proof-reader of her husband.

Longfellow is said to have received $3,000 for his recent poem "Keramos," and no one will deny that it is "cheap at the price." Equally beautiful in their way, and far more reasonable in cost, are the delightful specimens of the Keramic art to be found in the stores of Messrs. O. LAWTON & CO., 609 and 611 Market street, opposite Montgomery. Amongst countless varieties of the most artistically designed ornaments of all descriptions, perhaps the most special admiration is given to the splendid collection of Doulton and Wedgwood Ware which is at present the rage in London and other European cities. An eager crowd always attends the periodical sales of Doulton China, which is elegant in shape and beautifully ornamented.

In addition to a rare collection of pottery and faience, Messrs. Lawton have also in stock an immense assortment of Jewel Cases, Clocks, Blague Statuettes, Terra Cotta Figures, etc., suitable for Christmas and New Year's Gifts.

RUPTURE

A PROMINENT CITIZEN CURED

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 3, 1877.
DR. PIERCE—Dear Sir: The Truss I purchased of you last Fall has cured me of Rupture, from which I have suffered for the past TWENTY-FIVE YEARS, and I feel confident that any Rupture can be cured by your MAGNETIC ELASTIC TRUSS. If the patient will only have sufficient courage to wear it until the inflammation caused by the friction of the pad ceases, and the membrane heals I am, dear sir, yours truly,

W. C. QUINBY.
Cor. Ed., "Journal of Commerce," San Francisco.

Mr. Quinby is a gentleman well and favorably known all over this coast. After expending hundreds of dollars on worthless Trusses, and having suffered for twenty-five years, he was completely cured in a few months by the MAGNETIC ELASTIC TRUSS.

The remarkable cure performed on Dr. J. Simms, the popular lecturer and physician, who is known and respected all over the United States and Europe, is best explained by the following letter:

DR. J. SIMMS,

The Renowned Physician and of New York.

CURED!

COLTAA, CAL., August 26, 1877.
Messrs. PIERCE & SON, 609 Sacramento Street, San Francisco.—I take great pleasure in informing you that the Truss I purchased of your firm last November has completely cured the Rupture with which I had afflicted myself seven years. Within three years past my Rupture had grown rapidly worse while wearing an ordinary truss, and the trussiness passed down whenever I coughed, bowed, or lay down, or strained. I left no common truss could prevent it, and then the pain was torture.

After I wore one of your PATENT MAGNETIC ELASTIC TRUSSES for four months, I noticed that the intestines did not pass down in the least, even when I strained to my utmost, and what was troubling me then was entirely cured, and so remains to this day.

I freely write you concerning my cure, because I feel it to be a duty I owe to you and other fellow-kind who are similarly afflicted. You are at liberty to print this letter should you think proper. I am, most respectfully yours,

J. SIMMS, M. D.

Experience shows that all tempered spring trusses necessarily press upon and often disease parts of the body that before were in a perfectly healthy condition. Lumbar, Kidney and Bladder Affections, Nervous Debility, and a gradual undermining of the constitution, are some of the evil effects produced by such harsh and constant pressure, and in view of this fact it becomes a matter of decided consequence to avoid like calamities, if possible.

DR. PIERCE'S MAGNETIC ELASTIC TRUSS and MEDICATED RETINER PAD can be obtained only of the undersigned. Be sure and remember the name and number.

Our Illustrated Book giving full information will be sent free to any address.

WISE AND OTHERWISE.

Is THE Master of the Rolls England's head baker?—Bost. Post. No. He is head loafer.

WHEN a young lady hems a handkerchief for a rich old bachelor, does she sew that she may reap?

GALE, the English pedestrian, sleeps while walking.—Ext. At such times, the Gale usually sets snore-snore-east.

SHE saw the placard in front of the bookstore, "You can get 'That husband of Mine' for half a dollar," and, as she passed on, she muttered, "I have one I will sell for half that much."

JUST before dying, a fashionable young man asked to be buried in his best suit, including one of these elaborate collars. His request was complied with, but the sexton said, "blamed if he was going to dig a grave fourteen feet long unless he was paid double price for it."

A GENTLEMAN recently went to the rector of a neighboring parish, and requested that he would administer the last rites of the Church to his son. When asked why he did not go to the rector of his own parish, he replied: "Why, the disease is contagious."

A RURAL female beauty alighted from the stage-coach the other day, when a piece of ribbon detached itself from her bonnet and fell into the bottom of the carriage. "You have left your bow behind," said a lady passenger. "No, I ain't, he's gone a fishing," innocently replied the rustic.

AN Oxford Prof., examining a student of Bible history, asked him why Moses was buried by the Lord in such a secret place that the Israelites could not find him. The youth replied that he supposed it was for fear they would dig up his body and stuff it. This young person was the son of a showman.

WHERE Kimball ought to sound his cymbal. A leading newspaper says: "We know of a church which has 160 members only one of whom is taking a religious paper. They have no hymn-books. The house is going to ruin for the want of repairs. The middle of November found the house without stoves. The members recently spent enough money at a circus to put the house in a good condition. One of the deacons, whilst at a show recently, lost $68 on two pair of queens, and now the church is in trouble."

A THIRSTY individual endeavored to go into a saloon temporarily closed for election day, but was unable to effect an entrance. "That place is closed, mister!" said officer Burdick as he passed along. The man from Merced banged away on the door, and the policeman called out: "You, there! that house is closed." The traveler twisted away at the knob, and once more the policeman called out: "Say! that house is closed!" "Don't you suppose I know it, you idiot?" roared the traveler. "What I'm trying to do is to open it!"

THURSDAY - - - - - JANUARY 3

Parties residing out of the City can have "The Footlight" mailed to them daily by remitting the amount necessary to prepay the postage, 50 cents per month.

THE FOOTLIGHT

Contains the Programme of the following reputable places of amusement:

CALIFORNIA THEATRE.
BALDWIN'S THEATRE.
GRAND OPERA HOUSE.
EMERSON'S OPERA HOUSE.
BUSH STREET THEATRE.

It is also the recognized organ of all first-class combinations that visit the city, and numerous theatres throughout the interior, which are supplied with the paper, special editions of which we print daily.

Bush-Street Theatre.

"Again he urges on his wye-eeld career," says the lovely and scantily attired Miss Buckingham at the Bush Street Theatre every evening, as her gallant grey, James Melville, bonds with much intelligent caution over the (practicable) steppes of the Tartar desert. "Jim" is an animal of great force of character, and, in this respect is a close copy of his charming mistress. The play is highly melodramatic, and the boys "enthuse" hugely.

California Theatre.

"The Black Crook" until further notice. (For particulars of this splendid spectacle, either go to the theatre or else read back numbers of the FOOTLIGHT.) A fresh treatise on the subject will positively appear in this column after the play has run for eleven weeks, which present appearances indicate as almost a certainty. It is understood that Mr. Keene has declined to accept a long engagement to star in the title role, alternating with Richard III, Quilp and Quasimodo.

Grand Opera House.

Last performance of "Round the Clock" to-day and Friday and Saturday. The introduction of the new variety attraction has given quite a fresh interest to this amusing jumble. It will be succeeded on Monday next by "The Regiment of Champagne" a play which has met with great success in Paris.

THEATRICAL GOSSIP, ETC.

THE Rentz Minstrels will be the next attraction at the Bush Street Theatre.

MR. W. FRY has published a song and dance entitled "Her Golden Flowing Hair."

MISS MINNIE WALTON will make her appearance at the Grand Opera House next week in the play entitled "Three Millions of Money."

It is pleasant to get the assurance that Fanny Davenport is not "disfigured for life," as some of the newspapers put it, by the accident which happened to her in Detroit, Mich., lately. The curvilinear contour of her Phidian nose will not be permanently damaged. She made her first appearance in New York during the present season in Booth's Theatre, December 22d, acting Rosalind in "As You Like It." No traces of the injuries resulting from the severe accident were visible upon her fair countenance.

MODJESKA has subjugated New York completely, public, critics, and all. The Times, Tribune, Herald, and all the leading journals are unstinted in their praise of her acting in Adrienne Leconreux. The Herald says: "From the moment she appeared upon the scene until the curtain closed on Adrienne's death she proved that her mind understood what her abilities were able to reproduce; her movements were full of grace; her by-play spoke more eloquently than her tongue. Her deep feeling for art showed itself in many ways. When she first stepped upon the stage in the second act she created a marked impression among her audience through the sympathetic quality of her nature. As she progressed it became evident that she had won the house to her side, and was frequently and loudly applauded."

ARGANDIANA.

THE San Jose Argus of Dec. 27th has an interesting history of the life and adventures of Capt. Jack Crawford.

THE much admired play "Les Danicheffs" will be presented at Baldwin's Theatre again on Saturday and Sunday evenings, on the latter occasion for the benefit of Miss Fanny Morant.

A SPECIAL performance of "Les Danicheffs" will be given at Baldwin's Theatre by the Union Square Company on Sunday evening. The popular drama "Led Astray" will be produced on Monday.

A STORY is published to the effect that a veterinary surgeon in Edinburgh lately shod a mare with shoes of gold. The animal was a great favorite with the lady to whom it belongs. The shoes, as well as the nails, were of solid gold, and weighed 12oz. each.

THE concert for the benefit of Mr. R. Bonner, which was announced to take place at Pacific Hall to-morrow evening, has been postponed until the 29th inst, in consequence of the indisposition of some of the artists who have volunteered their services for the occasion.

THE Mail is going in for a combination of philanthropy and spiritualism. The management announce that they "are the medium through which the public may always have their wants supplied." Visions of a bonetons stream of wealth flowing from the same inexhaustible and mysterious source from whence the Mail itself derives life and comparatively good health, dance before the ecstatic sight of the "many headed."

It is advisable to always notice the labels on bottles of medicine. The following incident will show that perfumery bottles had better be subject to the same inspection. A lady who is constantly racing against time was late for church one Sunday morning. As the bell ceased she flew to a cabinet, scented her handkerchief profusely with what she presumed to be Slaven's "Yosemite" cologne, and hurried off to service. In the midst of the prayers the handkerchief was needed and produced, when, to the surprise of the congregation, a strong odour of some medicament for application to the throat was wafted around. The bottles were similar in shape and size; hence the mistake.

THE funeral rites of the Sister of Rajah of Tumlung, India, have just been celebrated. The ceremony is said to have been extremely interesting. The lady had already been buried, but her rites had been unpaid, and were now performed over her effigy, which was dressed, she being a Buddhist nun, in a nun's garment, with mitre and veil. There were lamps burning, processions of monks, and litanies chanted; everything was done that might help her soul on its journey to meet the King of Death. Before him the soul is tried, and either condemned to purgatory or sent to a heaven where it may sing hymns and play the lute forever. [Here follows an advertisement of a Tumlung music store, which we decline to insert gratis in the FOOTLIGHT.]

THE morning papers contain advertisements announcing the "Grand opening of the San Francisco Baby Show at Pacific Hall on the 14th inst.," and highly colored posters also bearing a similar legend appear on dead walls and boardings in various parts of the city. It is somewhat queer that none of these announcements make any allusion to the names of the projectors of this "Baby Show," but it is said to be under the management of a mysterious and mythical organization, styling itself the "San Francisco Dramatic Lecture, Concert, and Pacific Coast Bureau," whose only address is a Post Office box; and which, in fact, has no other location. This precious "Bureau," we believe, consists of an individual named Fulton, whose exploits in the "show" business have been of a peculiar nature, not always particularly pleasing to artists, hotel keepers, etc.; and whom a good many people in this State would be glad to hear from. A "Baby Show" engineered by this person might not possibly result in some profit to himself; but to no one else. However, up to the present time we do not hear of any "entries" having been made, and the strong probability is that the affair will die of inanition.

EASTERN THEATRICALS.

The following items are from the New York Clipper:

THE Serf has been revived at the Boston Museum after twelve year's interval.

FRANK MAYO and company are playing in New Haven, and are to proceed South next week.

EDWARD E. KIDDER, business manager of the Lingard Combination, has severed his connection with that company.

W. HORACE LINGARD, is negotiating for the early appearance of Alice Dunning Lingard and himself at an up-town theatre in New York.

J. B. BOOTH has turned landlord, and is erecting in Manchester, Mass., a hotel devoted to the reception of summer guests.

MRS. GEORGE P. FARREN is in New York, and will probably appear shortly at the Grand Opera House. Dion Boncicault is playing there at present. Katharine Rodgers is with him.

THE opera of "Fidelio" has been added to the repertory of the Freyer Opera Troupe. Freyer writes that his company will begin a season at the New York Academy of Music about the middle of February next.

THE proprietor of the St. James Hotel, New York, sues Thomas Maguire of San Francisco for nearly five hundred dollars worth of board, due since 1875. Mr. M. admits the justness of the debt, but pleads inability to pay just now, while pledging himself to do so speedily.

"THE Exiles" at the Boston (Mass.) Theatre was continued last week to no diminution in the attendance. The audiences have been augmented by the presence of out-of-town patrons. John McCullough is to appear during the early part of the new year, when "Coriolanus" will be produced.

CAZENOVE has been playing in Providence, R. I., under the management of the McClellan Brothers, one of whom was his interpreter in San Francisco. The business was bad, and on the 22d Mr. McClellan being unable to pay the salary in advance, Cazanove declined to play. Much sympathy is felt for the management.

THOMAS HIGGINSON, well known to the profession, and who about twenty years ago came prominently into notice through the elaborate tonsorial display he made with the Irish laboring man whose turn to be shaved had been bought by P. T. Barnum, died in Brooklyn, N. Y., Dec. 23d, of pneumonia, at the age of forty-five years. He had long kept a barber shop under the Park Hotel, Beekman and Nassau streets. The incident of Barnum and the laborer has been perpetuated by thousands of lithographs, which are to be found all over the country. The bill Barnum had to pay amounted to $3.65, as it covered everything in Higginson's line, from a shave and a bath to hair dyeing and a bottle of hair dye. In July last Higginson sold out his place under the Park Hotel and opened one in Brooklyn, which did not prosper. His wife survives. She was formerly a Miss Dougherty, and he married her in 1862.

A PHOTOGRAPHIC gem, in the shape of a group of one hundred and ten of the more celebrated actors, actresses, vocalists and platform-celebrities, has just been published by Messrs. Bradley & Rolofson of San Francisco. The space occupied by the group is 4x6 1/4 in., and every head stands out as clearly and distinct as if it were on a separate card, and all appear to be excellent likenesses.—New York Clipper.

RECEPTIONS were held in Paris, December 1st, both by the ex-Queen Isabelle and by Don Francois d'Assise, in honor of the birthday of Alfonso XII. But the Parisians have to thank the Americans for almost all the gaieties of the week. Thanksgiving Day was celebrated very brilliantly. Mr. Evans gave a grand dinner, and there were dancing parties everywhere in the American colony. General and Mrs. Grant left Paris yesterday, having dined with Mr. Evans and M. Emile de Girardin in the course of the week, and paid a farewell visit to the Elysee.—London "Queen."

A Busted Tragedian.

THE London correspondent of the New York Times writing under date December 8th., anent Mr. Ciprico, the "great American tragedian," who was so tremendously heralded in London before his appearance, says: "Ciprico, was so persistently proclaimed that during a whole week he gradually fell from success to a brilliant failure. He was even carefully noticed by some of the second-rate critics who do the East End theatres. His American reputation inspired a certain amount of respect. London knows that New York knows what good acting is, and London seems to think that in regard to matters of art New York is America. Therefore we are apt to look upon a "great American" artist or a "successful American" play as indorsed by New York in the character of the presiding authority of taste. In this way London gets led astray, and the unthinking are occasionally apt to form a bad opinion of American taste. Ciprico, for example, was not a great American actor to begin with. He only had a California reputation, though we have had some good artists from the "Golden Gate of the Sunny West." Ciprico, indeed, turned out not to be an American at all. He was a Mexican, Italian, or something of the kind, and even the East End of London found him out. But there are some people who think second-rate American talent can be puffed into notoriety and success here by advertisements like Ciprico's—"the great American actor." They are wrong; they get found out; but they do harm to the reputation of America, just as fifth rate and impecunious noblemen who fleece United States hotels and trespass upon New York hospitality bring English aristocracy into disgrace.

THE Esthetic tastes of the San Francisco public are being cultivated and unilatered to more and more daily. Not only in the palaces which rear their heads unto eternal sky on the shores of Nob Hill, are fine collections of books, flowers, pictures, marbles, mosaics and all the beautiful things that make the charm of life to be found. Art, aided by science, has placed many of these luxuries within the grasp of men who have not yet achieved the distinction of being millionaires, and even the most unpretentious and modest home need not be without its adornments in the way of nice art. The Danish terra-cotta work, a large variety of which can be found in the magazines of MESSRS. O. LAWTON & CO., 609 & 611 Market street, is amongst the most quaint and admirable of ornaments for the drawing-room tables and etageres. It is very delicately manufactured, and the greatest perfection is arrived at in the finishing of the various figures of poets, peasants, warriors, amazons, Undines, etc., which are contrived from it. A special supply of this popular ware has been laid in to meet the want of our readers during the holiday days.

RUPTURE

A PROMINENT CITIZEN CURED.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 3, 1877.
DR. PIERCE—Dear Sir: The Truss I purchased of you last Fall has cured me of Rupture, from which I have suffered for the past TWENTY-FIVE YEARS, and I feel confident that any Rupture can be cured by your MAGNETIC ELASTIC TRUSS, if the patient will only have sufficient courage to wear it until the inflammation caused by the friction of the pad ceases, and the membranes heal. I am, dear sir, yours truly.

W. C. QUINBY.

Cor. Ed. "Journal of Commerce," San Francisco

Mr. Quinby is a gentleman well and favorably known all over this coast. After expending hundreds of dollars on worthless metal Trusses, and having suffered for twenty-five years, he was completely cured in a few months by the MAGNETIC ELASTIC TRUSS.

The remarkable cure performed on Dr. J. Simms the popular lecturer and physician, who is known and respected all over the United States and Europe, is best explained by the following letter

DR. J. SIMMS,

The Renowned Physiologist of New York

CURED!

COLUMBIA, CAL., August 26, 1877.
MESSRS. PIERCE & SON 612 Sacramento Street, San Francisco.—I take great pleasure in informing you that the Truss I purchased of your firm last November has completely cured my Rupture with which I had suffered for fifteen years. Within three years past my Rupture or Hernia had grown rapidly worse while wearing an ordinary truss, and the truss-strings pinched down whenever I coughed, bowed my nose, or strained to lift. No common truss could prevent it, and then the pain was torture.

After I wore one of your PATENT MAGNETIC ELASTIC TRUSSES for four months, I noticed that the inflammation did not pass down in the least, even when I strained to my utmost, and what was troublesome here was entirely cured, and so remains to this day.

I freely write you concerning my cure, because I feel it to be a duty I owe to you and other fellow-kind who are similarly afflicted. You are at liberty to print this letter should you think proper. I am, most respectfully yours,

J. SIMMS, M. D.

Experience shows that all tempered spring trusses—namely brass ones and often modern parts of the body that before were in a perfectly healthy condition. Lungs, Kidney and Bladder Affected, Nervous Debility, and a gradual undermining of the constitution are some of the evil effects produced by such harsh and continued pressure, and in view of this fact it becomes a matter of decided consequence to avoid like calamities, if possible.

DR. PIERCE'S MAGNETIC ELASTIC TRUSS and MAGNETIC RUPTURE PAIN can be obtained ONLY of the undersigned. Be sure and remember the name and number.

WISE AND OTHERWISE.

GRANT is going to Egypt. We'd give something handsome to be there when our American Sphinx sits down in front of the Egyptian one, cigar in mouth, and looks the old man straight in the face. Even bets, which speaks first.

WHAT are we laughing at? Oh! nothing. Merely the announcement that the Pittsburgh police have seized a faro bank over the United Presbyterian office.—N. Y. Comic Adv. Well, what of it? The great lawgiver of the Children of Israel was found stowed away under a Pharaoh bank.

A VISITOR to a cemetery stood near a recently closed grave, and, after the fashion of Hamlet, interviewed the gravedigger: "Whose is this?" asked he, "Miss So-and-So's," was the reply, "she died but two days ago." "What complaint?" "There ain't any complaint," retorted the gravedigger, "everybody is satisfied with it."—Arcadian.

"BRUDIN," said an elderly colored preacher, in the course of a funeral sermon over the remains of one of his flock whose head had been caved in by the hind feet of a mule, "brudin', it am pow'ful strange dat, arter mo'n a hundred years of 'sastrous 'speriment, a cullud pusson should pussist in 'proachin' a mule from de 'ar.'" We wonder if Hayes and Evarts will, after the late disastrous experiment, persevere in their attempt to approach Senator Conkling from that perilous direction.—Washington Post.

Our Buffalo Letter.

BUFFALO, N. Y., December 23, 1877.
EDITOR FOOTLIGHT: What with Booth two week's ago, Barrett for the past three nights, and McCullough to-morrow and Tuesday, buffalo is having a regular feast of tragedy. Booth's engagement was probably the most successful week of the season, at all events, in point of numbers, he, no doubt, taking the lion's share of the receipts. Barrett was not quite so fortunate in drawing crowded houses, although he performed to pretty good ones. The usual preparations for Christmas festivities, however, had something to do with it. His playing of "Richieu" was a grand piece of acting, and to say that it was inferior to Booth's would require an amount of presumption which we have not got, indeed, it would be difficult for the most determined fault-finder to offer a single objection. He played also in Mr. Howe's new play, a "Counterfeit Presentment," which, report says, took well. Mr. McCullough plays a two nights engagement this week, appearing as Virginius, "Damon" and "Othello," in St. James' Hall.

Before this reaches you, you will, I trust, have eaten your Christmas dinner and discovered how forgetful or otherwise old Santa Claus was. May you have many happy returns of the same.

Our Sacramento Letter.

SACRAMENTO, January 1st, 1878.

EDITOR FOOTLIGHT:—The "Two Orphans" was presented on Friday evening last, on the occasion of the benefit of Miss Katy Mayhew. While I am happy to say that this deserving artist was complimented with a good house, showing the high esteem in which she is held in this city, it is my duty as your correspondent to state that she was the recipient of a cruel and disgraceful insult in the shameful conduct of Mr. George Metkiff, who costumed as the Chevalier de Vaudrey, stalked about the stage mumbling incoherently the lines of his part while in a state of beastly intoxication; making him the subject of derisive laugh'er, and branding him with shame and disgrace. Occurring as it did, upon the occasion of Miss Mayhew's benefit, but adds to his disgrace as much as it detracts from his conception of what is due from him as leading man, to Miss Mayhew as the worthy beneficiary. The other members of the company are deserving of credit for their patient endeavors to assist this maudlin drunkard through in a manner to mar the action of the play as little as possible.

Saturday afternoon and evening, the "Two Orphans" was repeated. Mr. Metkiff on each occasion was passably sober. The management very properly withheld his salary, and he was compelled to borrow money of a lady member of the company in order to leave the town. There is another disgraceful affair in connection with a male member of the company, which, if not corrected in your city, should be made public. I, however, refrain from reporting the particulars at the present writing, as it would be necessary to couple the name of a lady therewith.

It seems that Sacramento is to be deprived of theatricals this week. Mr. Kennedy having decided to run "Round the Clock" for a longer period, has postponed the production of "The Bottom of the Sea" for the present. The Frank Frayne combination, now in Oakland, will open here about Wednesday the 6th inst. A Happy New Year to all. VIATOR.

THE new Parisian glove manufactory of the famous Laralliere gloves, has been removed from Sutter to Kearny street, No. 337. This establishment has been deservedly well patronized since its opening a short time ago.

Ladies wishing to get a good suit or cloak for the holidays, and garments for the children, can call at SOLOMON'S New Suit and Cloak Store, 34 Fourth Street. Everything of their own manufacture at the lowest prices.

WHAT A LOVELY FIGURE!—Exactly so; but the secret lies in the splendid fit of the dress. She uses the "DOMESTIC" PAPER FASHIONS. Fall styles now ready, at 29 Post street, between Kearny and Montgomery.

LADIES, before purchasing embroideries, look in the windows of the Chicago Auction House, 134 Sixth street. 10,000 yards selling from 2½c. up—fully 50 per cent. less than regular prices.

WOODWARD'S GARDENS—Unparalleled attractions on Saturday and Sunday, January 5th and 6th, and New Year's Day matinee. Production of the marvelous musical instrument, the "Marimba." This instrument was originally invented and imported by natives of the republic of Guatemala, and is the only one in America. The great Hawley in his new act, the flying man. The Watrigants, W. O'Dale Stevens, Mlle. Linda Jeal, Prof. Simon, and Master Alijo in unequalled specialties. Admission, 25cents.

SPECTACLES MY SPECIALTY, C. MULLER.

THE latest fashions of Hats, Flowers, Feathers, and all kinds of Millinery Goods, at the cheapest prices, are to be procured at THE WONDER MILLINERY STORE, 1016 Market Street, opposite Fifth.

EVERY gentleman wishing to present a neat, dressy appearance, should call at "THE" HAT STORE, 647 Washington street, below Kearny, and invest in one of those new Fall style Hats, just received. The largest assortment in the city, latest styles and lowest prices.

You are waited on in a most agreeable manner, and your goods are delivered at your home free of charge. Be sure and give them a call, at 534 Market street, near Montgomery.

Those who love their Coffee uniformly PURE, RICH, DELICIOUS and WHOLESOME, are respectfully invited to try our Pure Compressed Article. We desire that the proof of its quality be a trial. Modjeska,

The New York Dramatic News speaks in very high terms of Madame Modjeska; but says that "Adrienne Lecouvreur," tho' written for Rachel, is not a good play in which to present a star, as while it demands the exercise of the most varied talents, the opportunities of the central figure are few and far between. The News describes Modjeska as a fine actress. Her methods are excellent, though studied. We feel in her play that there is never for a moment the loss of the full consciousness of the effects she is producing. In the finest frenzy she may simulate, she never impresses one as doing aught else but acting. But this is no argument against her art, which is wellnigh perfect. While she delineates with a broad sweep of talent, she is perhaps most charming in her little touches of detail. She gives quick changes of voice and manner, which are so many surprises, but always in the best taste. Spite of her accent, her reading is better than that of the great majority of our native actresses. Her gestures and posturing are of the French school, and though sometimes giving a sense of disquiet to the spectator, they are statuesque and at times classic in their beauty. She has intensity of manner, and her voice is deep and mellifluous, and beyond all this, her face is expressive, and when lighted up by emotion—beautiful. In the fourth act where she unmasks the Duchess, and in the dying scene, Modjeska rose to absolute grandeur. She will probably appear in "Camille," as the second characterization. The remarkably strong praise she received in this part in California would seem to presage a very great piece of acting. We can well imagine that the delineation of the actual in emotion would become her more than the artificiality of Adrienne.

MR. POND, of Boston, who lately did well as partner of Max Strakosch in California, purposes having an opera company of his own, in which a Miss Nichols, now studying in Paris, will be prima donna; Annie Louise Cary, contralto; W. T. Carleton, baritone; and Joe Maas, tenor.

"WHAT is your chief consolation in life?" asked a pastor of a young lady in his Bible class. The young lady blushed and hesitated, but on the question being repeated, the ingenuous maiden said: "I don't like to tell you his name, but I have no objection to tell you where he lives."

MONDAY - - - - - JANUARY 7

Grand Opera House.

To-night will be the last opportunity the public will have of witnessing the performance of the popular medley "Round the Clock" with its infinite variety attractions. It will thereafter be withdrawn, and to-morrow evening the favorite actress Miss Minnie Walton, will make her reappearance (after an absence of four years, in the part of Florence Desmond in an English adaptation of the successful French play, "Les Trois Millions de Gladiateur." The Anglo-Saxon title of the comedy is "Three Millions of Money," and it is full of fun from one end to the other.

Bush-Street Theatre.

Free and fearless Fanny Buckingham "equited" on the stage of this theatre for the last time yesterday evening, and the horse and his rider are, it is said, about to proceed to the wilds of Oregon for a time. Mr. Locke announces that his theatre will remain closed until the 28th inst, for the purpose of being painted and decorated. On that date it will be opened with the Madame Renz Female Minstrel company!

California Theatre.

The "Black Crook" commences the third week of its highly successful run this evening. Crowded houses have been the rule every night since the initial representation, and the tide of success still steadily flows on. Impartial persons, who have seen the play performed in New York, protest that Manager Hill has succeeded in eclipsing the spectacle as there presented; and the ballet is, beyond a doubt, the best that has ever been seen in America. Some additional new dances will be introduced this evening, and there will also be some other novelties; notably, a trapeze performance by the agile little Vaidis Sisters. The Elm Sisters will also make a change in their repertoire of melodies. The performance by the German Stadt Company last night was attended by an immense audience.

Emerson's Opera House.

Miss Catherine Lewis (a sister of Miss Jeffreys-Lewis,) makes her first appearance in America at this theatre to-night, as Amy Robsart in the burlesque of "Kenilworth." Miss Lewis is a charming young actress, blessed with good looks, a good voice, and a knowledge of how to use it. She has already achieved considerable success in opera bouffe, both in England and Australia. Appearing with Adah Richmond's people will handicap Miss Lewis' chances of success pretty heavily, but her talent and merit are bright enough to shine out through all the muddy fog that will surround her.

The admirable play "Les Danicheffs" was given yesterday evening at Baldwin's Theatre, and there was a large attendance. Miss Morant's impersonation of the imperious and yet warm-hearted Countess Danicheff is beyond praise. The popular play "Led Astray," with Mr. Charles P. Thorne, Jr., in the character of Rudolph Chandoce, will be presented here to-morrow. Miss Fanny Morant's benefit is announced to take place next Sunday.

THEATRICAL GOSSIP, Etc.

It is intended to commence a series of sacred concerts to be given at the Grand Opera House under the leadership of Mr. H. J. Widmer. The first concert will take place on Sunday the 20th inst.

THE Boston Correspondent of the N.Y. Mercury says: "Di Murska is alleged to fracture contracts as easily as she contracts matrimonial engagements." Max and Don Diego, a la rescousse.

The "musical note" man of the same paper says: "Ilma Di Murska has joined the Richings-Bernard English Opera Troupe, her husband, J. T. Hill, playing either piano or violin in the orchestra, as may be required." Now look out for squalls!

THE following item is from the New York Mercury of December 29th. The concluding sentences will be news to most people, including the fair lady and the versatile gentleman to whom it refers: "Minnie Walton and her husband, Fred. Lyster, arrived lately in San Francisco from Australia. Both are engaged for the new season at the California Theatre, to open after Kralffy's "Black Crook" run. Miss Walton joins the stock company at the opening of the new season, and is engaged for one year.

JOHN PIPER has filled the walls of his new theatre, in Virginia City, with sawdust, which will have the effect of so deadening the sound that parties desirous of getting hold of any portion of the performance will be obliged to go inside and enjoy it at a dollar ahead. During operative performances at National Guard Hall, the audience on the outside has, at times outnumbered the crowd inside by a large majority. Mr. Piper has put $150 worth of sawdust into the walls, and estimates that one of Mike Gilmore's peace jubilees under full blast inside would not be heard beyond the door. In addition to this the sawdust will help to keep the place warm.—Virginia City Chronicle.

ARGANDIANA.

THE Captain Jack Combination is playing in Visalia with good success. Miss Rena gave a surprise supper New Year's Eve, at "El Capitan" Hotel, Merced, to Capt. Jack and the members of the company. It was a very pleasant affair; toasts were drunk, speeches made, songs sung, etc. Judge Robinson, of the Merced Express, was present; Rena's and Jack's healths were drunk, etc. The company will play at Tulare on the 6th, Bakersfield, 7th and 8th, and Los Angeles, from 9th to 12th inst.

"It will please the friends of Miss Ida Vernon to learn that this admirable actress and lady has achieved marked success in her performances with the Union Square Company in San Francisco."—Brooklyn Stage. The San Francisco public are never slow to mark their appreciation of such undoubted talent as is displayed by this graceful and accomplished lady. That section of the theatre-going public, (and they are not few), who look for something beyond the mere ephemeral enjoyment of the moment, and who have still hope that, in spite of Mr. Boucicault and his kind, the "elevation of the drama" will not be coeval with the Greek Kalends, will be pleased to learn that Miss Vernon, besides being an excellent actress, is moreover, a good and consistent Christian woman; and is on that account, as well as for her talent, highly esteemed by all who enjoy her acquaintance.

ONE of the most specially ghastly incidents of the present war in South-Eastern Europe, is the trade in human jaws which is being carried on by certain Parisian entrepreneurs, who make a specialty of the supply of teeth to dentists. It appears that the jaws of the slain Turks and Russians are removed on the field where they fall, and are packed in boxes containing 500 each for transportation to Paris; there to be reset in the mouths of other people. The imagination of Victor Hugo or the late Edgar Allan Poe could scarcely conceive anything more horrible than this. It is gratifying to know that a similar atrocity would be impossible in the event of a war in this country, for the reason that the teeth of the majority of men folks would be unsalable on account of the unserviceable condition to which they are reduced by the habit of chewing tobacco.

EASTERN THEATRICALS, ETC.

S. W. PIENY has been engaged as leading man for Col. Sinn's Park Theatre, Brooklyn.

MR. DIGBY V. BELL, a native of New York, has been studying in Italy since 1875, and lately debuted as an opera tenor with good success in Malta.

THE "Duke's Motto" was presented on the 31st of December at Niblo's Gardens with Mr. Sam Piercy as Lagadere, and Miss Nina Varian as Blanche De Nevers.

THE presents for the baby show at the Philadelphia Museum cost $31, and were all bought at Cutter's dollar store.—The Baby Shows at the Colosseum and Concert Hall ended in last week very unceremoniously. J. H. Meade lost over $1,500.

AT the close of the second act of "Wen at Last" at Wallack's on the 21st, Miss Rose Coghlan fainted in the violent scene between Grace Fleming and Tracy. The audience were unaware of this, and called for her. Mr. Montague came before the curtain and announced the fact, saying that she would shortly revive and appear in the next act.

AS Eastern exchange says: "The receipts of Miss Harrison's benefit were $2,480. This lady should give the East the benefit of her talents for a while. She has been in the exclusive possession of San Francisco long enough." (San Francisco, my envious Eastern pippin, appreciates bright and merry Alice so well that you are not likely to get her yet awhile.—Ed. Footlight.)

MODJESKA, it is said, suggests Clara Morris as soon as one looks at her. She is a pleasant-looking lady of medium height, with an expressive face, full of intelligence, and graced by a pair of beautiful eyes. Her hair is light in color. Off the stage she has not a theatrical look, and her manner is quiet and self-possessed. Modjeska speaks the English language fluently, and with but very little foreign accent.—Phila. Mirror.

OUT in San Francisco they think it strange that Kellogg and Cury's manager should charge two dollars for a reserved seat in that city, and only seventy-five cents for one in Philadelphia. The difference in prices is only one of Max Strakosch's little eccentricities, to which the San Francisco people will get used in time! Perhaps Max added the extra price for car fare to the Pacific Coast.—Ibid.

WISE AND OTHERWISE.

A DIVER into the past says that the dress of our women of to-day is an exact copy of that worn by Diana of the Ephesians. That is the lady that Paul so disliked. Perhaps her dress "set him on."

THE excesses of our youth are drifts upon our old age, payable with interest, about thirty years after date.—Er. Not uncommonly, the bill is presented a good deal sooner, and no chance given to "renew."

THE editor of the Oil City Derrick affirms that it is said of Farjeon, that with such passion and absorption does he work, and so keenly sympathetic is he, that he falls in love with his heroine. When a novelist comes to this, we should say he was tolerably Farjeon. And yet we have been there ourselves. With such passion and absorption do we work, and so keenly sympathetic are we, that we once attempted to borrow a dollar and a half of a rich hero of ours. But he didn't let us have it, enfolded his tight old hide, and in the next chapter we blew him sky-high with nitro-glycerine.

A TALENTED Indianapolis lecturer is on his travels, and sends the following letter to a contemporary: "December 16th. I write to let you know I am performing one of the greatest feats in traveling as a lecturer ever known assisted by my wife a lady from your city by the name of Miss Minnie Sohl I am traveling from New Orleans to Indianapolis Horseback and lecturing as I go along Drawing Big Audiences I am writing the History of the people and their ways as I go along I shall deliver my final lecture in Indianapolis where we shall Settle Down and make my home the subject of my last lecture will be from New Orleans to Indianapolis by Horse back."

A Resurrection on the Stage.

One of the most dramatic situations in "Romeo and Juliet" is the combat between the love-stricken Romeo and Tybalt. This ends, it will be remembered, by a slashing rapier fight between the two, wherein the enraged seion of the Montagues spits his enemy through the diaphragm. Very lately the part of Tybalt was assigned to one of the best members of Mr. Ellsler's company. He received his death wound, and, arching his spine and throwing out his manly bosom, he fell upon the stage dead to all intents and purposes. The curtain was rung down, and the huge beam at the bottom descended with a rush until within a few inches of the slain Tybalt's head, when it was found that the corpse lay directly beneath. The discovery was made just in time, else had the scene shifter allowed the curtain to come down on the actor's head he would have been afflicted with a headache, if not with a cracked cranium. The situation was an awkward one, and the man at the curtain windlass ordered Tybalt's corpse to "get out of that" and "roll over." The corpse made a frantic effort to roll over, but failed, and then, with a look of intense disgust on his features, arose, went a few steps to the rear, and smoothed his features in death as before. The fact that the actor had gone through the motion of dying in such a truthful style made the contretemps the more striking, and while many sympathized with his discomfiture, the greater part of the audience burst out with an uncontrollable laughter such as no studied scene in the play could possibly have evoked.

THE aesthetic tastes of the San Francisco public are being cultivated and ministered to more and more daily. Not only in the palaces which rear their heads unto eternal sky on the shores of Nob Hill, are fine collections of books, flowers, pictures, marble, mosaics and all the beautiful things that make the charm of life to be found. Art, aided by science, has placed many of these luxuries within the grasp of men who have not yet achieved the distinction of being millionaires; and even the most unpretentious and modest home need not be without its ornaments in the way of nice art. The Danish terra cotta work, a large variety of which can be found in the magazines of Messrs. O. LAWTON & CO, 609 & 611 Market street, is amongst the most quaint and admirable of ornaments for the drawing-room tables and etageres. It is very delicately manufactured, and the greatest perfection is arrived at in the modeling of the various figures of gods, peasants, warriors, amazons, Undines, etc., which are constructed from it. A special supply of this popular ware has been laid in to meet the want of purchasers during the holiday days.

RUPTURE

A PROMINENT CITIZEN CURED.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 3, 1877.
DR. PIERCE—Dear Sir: The Truss I purchased of you last Fall has cured me of Rupture, from which I have suffered for the past TWENTY-FIVE YEARS, and I feel confident that any Rupture can be cured by your MAGNETIC ELASTIC TRUSS. If the patient will only have sufficient courage to wear it until the inflammation caused by the friction of the pad ceases, and the membrane heals I am, dear sir, yours truly,

W. C. QUINBY,
Cor. Ed. "Journal of Commerce," San Francisco.

Mr. Quinby is a gentleman well and favorably known all over this coast. After expending hundreds of dollars on worthless metal Trusses, and having suffered for twenty-five years, he was completely cured in a few months by the MAGNETIC ELASTIC TRUSS.

The remarkable cure performed on Dr. J. Simms the popular lecturer and physician, who is known and respected all over the United States and Europe, is best explained by the following letter:

DR. J. SIMMS,

The Renowned Physiognomist of New York,

CURED!

COLUSA, CAL., August 26, 1877.
MYRRER, PIERCE & SON, 609 Sacramento Street, San Francisco—I take great pleasure in informing you that the Truss I purchased of your firm last November has completely cured the Rupture with which I had suffered fourteen years. Within three years past my Hernia or Rupture had grown rapidly worse while wearing an ordinary truss, and the intestines passed down whenever I coughed, blowed, or strained to lift. No common truss could prevent it, and then the pain was torture.

After I wore one of your PATENT MAGNETIC ELASTIC TRUSSES for four months, I noticed that the intestines did not pass down to the least, even when I strained to my utmost, and what was troublesome Hernia was entirely cured, and so remains to this day.

I freely write you concerning my cure, because I feel it to be a duty I owe to you and other fellow-kind who are similarly afflicted. You are at liberty to print this letter should you think proper. I am, most respectfully yours,

J. SIMMS, M. D.

Experience shows that all tempered spring trusses necessarily press upon and often displace parts of the bow that is sore from a perfectly healthy condition. Lumbago, Kidney and Bladder Affections, Nervous Debility, and a gradual undermining of the constitution, are some of the evil effects produced by such harsh and unyielding pressure, and in view of this fact it becomes a matter of decided consequence to avoid like calamities, if possible.

DR. PIERCE'S MAGNETIC ELASTIC TRUSS and MAGNETIC RUPTURE PAD can be obtained ONLY of the undersigned. Be sure and remember the name and number.

Fighting Fate.

A boy about thirteen years old was Saturday forenoon dragging a big, sneaky-looking cur along Turk street to find an owner for the canine. Ringing a door-bell he said to the housemaid who answered it:

"I've brought your dog home."

"My dog!" she exclaimed as she looked down upon the embarrassed dog.

"Yes, gimme two bits and I'll tie him up in the back yard."

"I'll give you a broom-sticking if you don't leave!" she screamed as she grabbed for him.

He dragged the dog across the street to where a girl was scrubbing the front steps, and bringing a smile to his face he said:

"Your feller in Sacramento sent you this dorg by express to put in your Christmas stocking. The charges are fifty cents. Where shall I tie him up?"

"Git out with ye—I'm no greenhorn!" she said as she raised the brush to hit him.

The boy pulled on the rope with both hands and got the reluctant dog half a block further, when he met a boy carrying home ten pounds of buckwheat flour. He blocked the way, and said:

"Bub, yer father told me to bring this dorg up to you and collect thirty cents."

"I hain't got no father," answered the lad.

"Who said you had—I was only fooling. Say, bub, this 'ere is the beautifullest dorg you ever sot eyes on. He kin sing, dance, clean the sidewalk and bring in rabbits from the country. I'll take a quarter for him."

"I hain't got no money," replied the boy.

"I'll trade him for a knife."

"I hain't got no knife."

"Any candy?"

"No," answered the boy with the flour, as he dodged around the dog and hurried on.

The other looked down on the canine with mingled sadness and indignation. The dog braced back at an acute angle, his eyes shut and his tail lying on the walk, waiting for the boy to say:

"Oh-h-h! If I knew how to swear how I'd blast ye! I kept you hid away for a week, and I've hauled you all over town, and you hain't even a three cent dog! I've fit fate for more'n a month to git some chink for Christmas, and here I am, dead-broke and no assets but you, you old sole-leather colored skunk! I've got desperate, and I'm going to shed your blood!"

He slackened on the rope to administer a kick, and the dog made a jump and gained his liberty. He ran off around the corner, and the boy leaned against a tree-box and mused:

"There's only one plan left. I'll take paregoric enough to make me sleep from Monday night to Wednesday morning, and I won't know nuthin' 'bout Christmas nor nuthin'!"

TUESDAY - - - - - JANUARY 3

California Theatre.

Despite the almost impassable condition of the streets, and the circumstance that Jupiter Pluvius held sway over the city, another crowded house greeted the rising of the curtain on the eighteenth performance of the "Black Crook" last night. The beautiful spectacle is from first to last "a thing of beauty and a joy for" about three hours. Moreover, one is not satisfied with witnessing a single representation, which is about enough of the general run of such spectacles, but two or three visits at least are absolutely necessary to enable one to take in all its beauties. For instance, if one arrives late, one misses Alice Harrison's delightful singing, and some of Bishop's drolleries, and going away early entails the loss of witnessing the wonderful transformation scene of the birth of Venus, which is unquestionably one of Voegtlin's chef d'oeuvres. The songs of the 'Um sisters might of themselves constitute a pleasant evening's entertainment; and the same may be said of the performance of the Vaidis children. As for the ballet, there is but one opinion; and that is, that the like has never been seen in this country. Charley Schultz and his well-drilled orchestra deserve commendation for the capital manner in which the musical portion of the performance is administered.

Grand Opera House.

We have to-night the great London success "Three Millions of Money" with the favorite actress Miss Minnie Walton in the part of the scheming widow, Mrs. Florence Desmond. The play is of the "genteel comedy" order, and had a very successful run last year at the St. James' Theatre in London. Mrs. Desmond is a handsome widow, desirous of securing another mate, and the interest of the play is based upon her adventures whilst engaged in this quest. She comes near catching an Eastern millionaire who has "struck oil" and is "towering" in Europe, but in the end bestows herself upon a disciple of Esculapius, for whom she has long entertained an affection. It is upwards of four years since Miss Walton's pretty face has graced the San Francisco stage, and in the interim she has acquired many professional laurels, both in England and Australia. There is no doubt she will receive a warm welcome.

Emerson's Opera House.

Miss Catherine Lewis made her first appearance in America at this house last night as Amy Robsart in the familiar old burlesque of "Kenilworth." She is to be congratulated on having made a genuine success, and the Adah-Richmond Company may consider themselves specially fortunate in having secured so talented an addition. Miss Lewis was in good voice and sang the various numbers allotted to her with infinite grace and sweetness. She has a pretty face and figure, and possesses that indescribable minauderie of expression and gesture which constitutes in a great measure the charm of seeing opera bouffe performed by French people. Miss Lewis was enthusiastically applauded throughout the representation and was recalled many times, and presented with a quantity of bouquets. With her advent we trust that the waning fortunes of the pretty little theatre will revive. "Kenilworth" this evening.

THEATRICAL GOSSIP, ETC.

FRED. G. MAEDER is writing a new play for Mr. Frank Frayne.

It has come to the worst; a meeting is now unavoidable. From Washington we hear that Miss Kellogg has called Miss Cary "a leather-lunged old son of a gun," and declines either explanation or apology.

The Bush Street Theatre will remain closed until the 25th, when it will be opened with Madame Renz's Female Minstrel Company. The Oates Opera Bouffe Company follow towards the end of February.

The "Regiment of Champagne" will be produced at the Grand Opera House next Monday. It is a military and historical play which was lately a great success in Paris. It admits of a large amount of scenic display and the introduction of a number of horses, etc.

A MAN and woman passed through Delaware county of late, whose united weight was 934 pounds. The husband, aged thirty-one, 437 pounds; and the wife, aged twenty-nine, 497 pounds. They are to be placed on exhibition at Gotham. "The grey mare is 60 pounds the better horse in this instance.

"A Trip to the Moon" will follow the "Black Crook" at the California Theatre. The German play entitled, "Five Hundred Thousand Devils," translated expressly for the California Theatre by Mr. W. M. Robertson of the Oakland Democrat, will be produced subsequently. The piece is very elaborate in detail and will require very extensive rehearsal and a large quantity of new scenery.

JOHN McCULLOUGH has purchased the right to produce the wonderful successful Russian play, "The Exiles," at the California Theatre; and it will accordingly be given there, reindeer, dogs, horses, tarantass, vodka and all in the course of a few weeks. The play is immensely popular in Boston, where it has been produced for the first time in America, and is said to be superior to "The Danicheffs" as a picture of Russian life.

ARGANDIANA.

MRS. CAROLINE RICHINGS-BERNARD announces, in the Virginia City journals, that she has decided to remain some time in Virginia City, and is desirous of forming a conservatory of music there, and instructions will be given in vocal and instrumental music. Mr. Pierre Bernard and Mrs. Henri Drayton will be associated with Mrs. Bernard in the undertaking. The lady is an artist of great ability and long experience; and it is to be hoped that she will succeed in her undertaking.

MR. COGHLEN has turned out to be decidedly "A Man of Success" in the play of that name, (late Montjoye), now being presented at the Union Square Theatre. A contemporary says very justly that when a play receives its initial presentation to the Union Square Theatre it is assured of an intellectual hearing and an intelligent verdict. This is due to the recognized care evinced by the management in its selections and preparations, and in the excellence of the company assigned to its interpretation. Considering that Mr. Thorne may be claimed as a California actor, San Francisco has reason to congratulate itself on the specimen of the ability of this company, which is at present offered at Baldwin's Theatre.

DION BOURCAULT's version of "Led Astray," (La Tentation), was presented at Baldwin's Theatre by the Union Square Company last night. The play is hackneyed, ultra sentimental, and unhealthy to a degree; but in the hands of Mr. Charles R. Thorne and his fellow-artists its faults can be condoned for the excellence of the acting. As a talented and experienced contemporary aptly remarks in effect, excuses for adultery are usually of a very gauzy description; and Mr. Swinburne's are not much better than those of other folks, though they may be couched in prettier language. The theme has been something too much dwelt upon by the writers of plays whom Mr. Bourcault delighteth to honor; and it is to be hoped that that "good old man" will find metal more attractive and less common in the works of the German authors he now proposes to utilize.

EASTERN THEATRICALS.

ANDY LEAVITT, 619 Broadway, New York, advertises a close-crop minstrel wig for $1 50, and an original stump-speech for $1.

ROBERT FOX gave away 10,000 loaves of bread from the stage-door of his theatre in Philadelphia, on Christmas morning.—Et. [To unemployed actors? This is fitting in the city of Brotherly love.—Ed. FOOTLIGHT.]

SIMMONS, Slocum, and Sweatman's Minstrels are playing to crowded houses at the ArchStreet Theatre, Phila. The new pantomime, "Gum Drops," every visitor being presented with a package, with Lew Simmons as clown, is the attraction.

SALA, in his London stage reminiscences between 1842 and 1851, speaks of Mrs. H. P. Grattan as wearing a brocade dress of white and crimson, in which spin glass was largely introduced. It cost two guineas and a half (about $14) a yard.

MANAGER EDWARD SAKER, of the Alexandra, Liverpool, was in a stew at last accounts because the District Education Committee had forbidden the use of children in his forthcoming pantomime. Saker said he had been training the children for nine months, and promised not to employ children another year. The board had not replied.

VICTOR HUGO celebrated the success of the revival of his "Hernani" by giving a banquet on the 9th at the Grand Hotel to the artists of the Comedie Francaise playing in it, to the director of the theatre, and most of the prominent dramatic critics and journalists of Paris. Mile. Sarah Bernhardt, the only lady present, sat on the poet's right hand, and in a speech he preferred her delineation of Dona Sol to that of Mile. Mars.

THE reappearance of George, the Count Joannes, as Richard III., at the Bowery Theatre, New York, was the occasion of the manifestation of much friendly interest by the public in the illustrious actor. In fact, the appearance of the distinguished nobleman was such as to command continuous and irrepressible admiration. This scholar, counselor, diplomat, and, as he is termed on the bills, uncrushed tragedian, filled the hearts of his auditors with gladness; and although ribald jesters have sought to extract food for mirth in the towering genius of this grand actor, they have been compelled to admit that he has afforded one of the greatest stage treats of the period.

THE three Philadelphia baby shows all ended suddenly last week as miserable failures. That at Concert Hall under J. H. Meade and Ben Lowell compromised with the parents of the infants. At the Coliseum, Hitchcock and Thomas, after settling their printing and advertising by drafts on New York, staid long enough to gather in all they could before the drafts were returned protested, and now the Coliseum people are looking for rent. At the Museum, the colored baby show closed 19th, and the managers appeased general wrath by giving the parents of each child on exhibition, in lieu of $2,000 cash in premiums, one of four articles, a ham, turkey, half ton of coal, or three kitchen chairs. A benefit concert took place at Concert Hall last week for the mothers of children at the late show, but with poor results.

JOHN S. CLARKE and Manager Goodwin, of the Walnut Street Theatre, Philadelphia, have been indulging in a quarrel. Mr. Goodwin, it is stated by Mr. Clarke, invested $12,500 in the theatre some two years and a half ago by advice of Mr. E. L. Davenport, and Mr. Clarke agreed to divide the net receipts of the house with him, and allow him to deduct a salary of $75 a week on consideration of his acting as manager. Mr. Clarke claims that his partner is deficient in managerial experience and has made no money. The theatre, he said, in former times, cleared sometimes as much as $40,000 a year. Mr. Goodwin charges Mr. Clarke with endeavoring to run the theatre down in order to force him to retire. He had refused to play there, and intended opening the Alhambra Theatre for the purpose of running an opposition to him. Goodwin offers to leave if his $12,500 is returned, but no agreement to separate has yet been made. The affair is reported as adjusted for the time being.

Benefit of Mr. M. B. Curtis.

MR. M. B. CURTIS' benefit at the Grand Opera House next Sunday evening, promises to be a first-class affair; and certainly no member of the profession deserves better recognition at the hands of the public than this versatile gentleman. A host of well-known artists have, with that generous spirit of camaraderie which is so pleasing an attribute amongst Thespians, offered their services for the occasion, and a performance is announced that presents an infinity of attractions. Among the list of names it is pleasant to notice that of the charming young actress, Miss Mary L. Young, who has only lately returned from a trip to Australia, where she achieved much success. Miss Young will always be remembered among San Francisco theatre-goers as the young lady who supported Henry V. Rignold during his engagement at the Grand Opera House some seasons back. She is announced to appear on Sunday evening as Dot Peerybingle in a version of Dickens' "Cricket on the Hearth."

Death.

Charles Reynolds, one of the well-known Reynolds Brothers, song and dance men, died yesterday at his residence in this city. In his special line, the deceased was a first-rate performer, and in private life was much esteemed by his acquaintances. Mr. Reynolds was only 24 years old. The funeral took place this afternoon from the late gentleman's residence, 624 California street, and was largely attended by members of the theatrical profession.

THE Esthetic taste of the San Francisco public are being cultivated and ministered to more and more daily. Not only in the palaces which rear their heads unto eternal sky on the shores of Nob Hill, are fine collections of books, flowers, pictures, marbles, mosaics and all the beautiful things that make the charm of life to be found. Art, aided by science, has placed many of these luxuries within the grasp of men who have not yet achieved the distinction of being millionaires; and even the most unpretentious and modest home need not be without its adornments in the way of BRIC A BRAC. The Danish terra-cotta work, a large variety of which can be found in the magazine of MRS. O. LAWTON & CO, 609 & 611 Market street, is amongst the most quaint and admirable of ornaments for the drawing-room tables and etageres. It is very delicately manufactured, and the greatest perfection is arrived at in the limning of the various figures of poets, peasants, warriors, amazons, Undines, etc., which are constructed from clay. A special supply of this popular ware has been laid in to meet the want of purchasers during the holiday days.

RUPTURE

A PROMINENT CITIZEN CURED.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 3, 1877.
DR. PIERCE—Dear Sir: The Truss I purchased of you last Fall has cured me of Rupture, from which I have suffered for the past twenty-five years, and I feel confident that any Rupture can be cured by your MAGNETIC ELASTIC TRUSS, if the patient will only have sufficient courage to wear it until the inflammation caused by the friction of the pad ceases, and the membrane heals. I am, dear sir, yours truly,

W. C. QUINBY,

Cor. Ed. "Journal of Commerce," San Francisco.

Mr. Quinby is a gentleman well and favorably known all over this coast. After expending hundreds of dollars on worthless metal Trusses, and having suffered for twenty-five years, he was completely cured in a few months by the MAGNETIC ELASTIC TRUSS.

The remarkable cure performed on Dr. J. Simms the popular lecturer and physician, who is known and respected all over the United States and Europe, is best explained by the following letter:

DR. J. SIMMS,

The Renowned Physiognomist of New York,

CURED!

COLUMBIA, CAL., August 26 1877.
MRS. PIERCE & SON, 609 Sacramento Street, San Francisco—I take great pleasure in informing you that the Truss I purchased of your firm last November has completely cured the Rupture with which I had suffered fourteen years. Within three years past my Hernia Rupture had grown rapidly worse while wearing an ordinary truss, and the intestines passed down whenever I coughed, I walked my house, or strained to lift. No common truss could prevent it, and then the pain was torturing.

After I wore one of your PATENT MAGNETIC ELASTIC TRUSSES for four months, I noticed that the intestines did not pass down in the least, even when I strained to my utmost, and what was troublesome Hernia was entirely cured, and no remains to this day.

I freely write you concerning my cure, because I feel it to be a duty I owe to you and other fellow-kind who are similarly afflicted. You are at liberty to print this letter should you think proper. I am, most respectfully yours,

J. SIMMS, M. D.

Experience shows that all temporary spring trusses necessarily press upon and often displace parts of the body that were in a perfectly healthy condition. Lunges, Kidney and Bladder Affections, Nervous Debility, and a gradual weakening of the constitution, are some of the evil effects produced by such harsh and continued pressure, and in view of this fact it becomes a matter of decided consequence to be like calculators, if possible.

DR. PIERCE'S MAGNETIC ELASTIC TRUSS and MCKAY'S RUPTURE PAIN can be obtained ONLY of the undersigned. Be sure and remember the name and number.

Our Illustrated Book giving full information will be sent free to any address.

WHAT A LOVELY FIGURE!—Exactly so; but the secret lies in the splendid fit of the dress. She uses the "DOMESTIC" PAPER FASHIONS. Fall styles now ready, at 29 Post street, between Kearny and Montgomery.

LADIES, before purchasing embroideries, look in the windows of the Chicago Auction House, 134 Sixth street. 10,000 yards selling from 2½c. up—fully 50 per cent. less than regular prices.

THE ladies (bless 'em) who brighten the hearths and gladden the homes of the dwellers in the Queen City of the Pacific, justly enjoy the distinction of possessing excellent taste in matters of dress. A walk along Kearny street any afternoon will sufficiently demonstrate this fact to the most casual observer. Whether robed in the silks and other costly fabrics which are the privilege of affluence, or attired in the less pretentious productions of the loom, they are all alike remarkable for neatness and "good style." It is, perhaps in the matter of boots and gloves that they are specially enticing; and in these particulars—the latter for choice—several enterprising citizens take good care that they shall be well supplied. For excellence of make and fitting, promptitude in the execution of orders, and reasonableness of price, no establishment in the glove trade can surpass that of the "Danicheff" Glove Manufactory, at No. 114½ Post street, two doors from the White House. This factory is as well equipped as the most renowned establishment of its kind in Paris, having very complete machinery, a large staff of cutters, sewers, etc. Any lady or gentleman can have their gloves with from 2 to 40 buttons, measured to the exact size of their hands, and delivered to them in two hours. In regard to appearance, durability, etc., these Gloves will be found immeasurably superior to any imported goods.

USE AND OTHERWISE.

A CHICAGO murderer, condemned to death, wanted to hang at 11 o'clock, so as to be in hell for dinner.

PAUL says a woman's glory is her hair, but the hash-house boarder will tell you all depends on where it is.

NEVER write letters to a widow. She always takes down the old box and compares yours with the other man's.

A YOUNG lady says she longs for fingers like the prongs of a pitchfork, with diamond rings enough to fill them to the ends.

THE impecunious editor never mistakes the manly tread of the bill collector for the stealthy footfall of the original poet.—Wor. Press Sauce.

GRAVE fears are entertained that if the burglars become much more numerous in this city, some of them may come in collision with the police.

WHAT we want to know, if that San Francisco publisher will tell us, is, if the avenging Danites of the Mormon Church were the original Dans of death?

"NEW YEAR's day, New Year's day," muttered an absent-minded business man, pausing at the top of a letter head, "let's see, what day of the month is this?"—Obid.

BONNER, the young California tenor, claims that he can rise one bar, or about two yards and a half, higher than any other living tenor. Howl that do for high?

IT doesn't seem exactly right that a man should be obliged to walk through life on two bow legs just because he indulged in the innocent diversion of sucking his toes in babyhood.

GEORGE FRANCIS TRAIN went without food or drink for five days without any ill effects. He says Dio Lewis, who spends ten cents a day for victuals, is one of the most extravagant men living.

BALTIMORE papers tell of "A Bird that Caused a Divorce." It was a duck—of a bonnet—probably.—N. Y. Commercial. A goose—of a husband—more likely.—Norr. Herald. A swallow—of whisky—perhaps.—Wor. Press. A lark—of a night—maybe.—New Haven Union. How do you know but what it was a soiled dove?—N. F. Evening Post. More likely the ravin' of a mother-in-law.

THE other night a gentleman who lives away out at the Mission, went home in a condition, and several times fell down on his head, greatly to the detriment of his silk hat which came out of the series of accidents, looking like a concertina with hair on. He threw it away, of course, but the next day he met his wife on the street wearing that identical hat, pinned up at the side, elaborately trimmed, and the envy of every woman she met.

Grand Opera House.

Fair haired Minnie Walton (at least she used to be "once on a time" adored for her golden locks) appeared last night at this theatre in the entertaining comedy entitled "Three Millions of Money," an adaptation from the French play "Les Trois Millions de Gladiateur." The house was well filled, and the favorite of four year ago was received on her entry with every mark of the public regard. Her impersonation of the character of the husband-hunting widow, Mrs. Florence Desmond, evinced the great improvement which has taken place in her acting since she quitted this city. It was a very finished and lady-like performance with a studied attention to nice details, and a thorough appreciation of the author's meaning. Miss Walton was much applauded during the representation, and was called before the curtain at the conclusion of the performance. The lady was well supported by the Grand Opera House Company. Mr. Ed. F. Thorne was well suited with the part of Col. Jefferson Dexter, and Mr. Stanley made quite a good impression in the character of the "sucking sawbones" Paracelsus Daffey. A noteworthy feature of the cast was the appearance of Miss Ida Yernance, who undertook the part of Miss Featherstone, in which she was very successful. Mr. Billings and Mr. Barrows also deserve much commendation for their humorous rendering of the characters of Molar and "Sir John" Claire. The piece is well put on the stage. It will be continued during the week.

California Theatre.

Twentieth performance of "The Black Crook" this evening. There has been no diminution in the audiences since the opening night. The spectacle is perfect in all its details, the music excellent, and the ballet beyond compare the finest ever witnessed in America.

Emerson's Opera House.

"Kenilworth," with Miss Katherine Lewis in the part of the unfortunate but light-hearted heroine, Amy Rosbart, has made a hit at this pleasant little house. Miss Lewis is a charming singer and acts with a delightful archness and sympathy. She seems full of fun and frolic, and her joyous laughter is contagious. Like that of "Nourmabal the harem's light."

"Where it most sparkled, no glance could discover, in lip, cheek, or eyes, for she brightened all over."

Miss Lewis is measurably well supported by Miss Adah Richmond as Lord Leicester; but the rest of the company laissez beaucoup a desirer.

SIGNOR SALVINI, it said, speaks in rapturous terms of his visit to this country, and dwells with particular enthusiasm upon his visit to Mr. Mr. Longfellow. The great actor hopes to return to America some day; he especially wishes to appear here as Timon of Athens, a character which is one of his favorites. Replying to a remark recently made to him about the terror which his Othello is calculated to inspire, he said, laughingly, that it was a very common occurrence for him to have the Desdemona of the evening pathetically implore him, before going on the stage, "Please not to hurt her."

THEATRICAL GOSSIP, Etc.

SAM. COLVILLE'S ci-devant Lydia Thompson burlesque company, will probably succeed the Union Square Company at Baldwin's Theatre.

CIPRICO has returned to New York from England; attended by the "Fates and Furies." His triumphal progress back to California will be duly announced. "Fame" is getting her trumpet finished up for the reception.

THE new Music Hall at Santa Cruz, under the management of Messrs. Bernheim & Co., is now open. It is situated on Pacific Avenue in the most central part of the charming little burgh, and is fitted up in a very elegant and luxurious manner. The stage appointments are all first-class, and the hall will be a very attractive place for travelling combinations to play in. The rent is quite moderate, and the citizens are generous patrons of good entertainments.

MARY ANDERSON is playing the mischief with the susceptible folks at St. Louis. She commenced an engagement at De-Bar's Opera House, December 24th, as Parthenia. The Herald says "the verdict was unquestionably and enthusiastically favorable. Miss Anderson has effectually proved that she has dramatic genius of the very highest order—such, perhaps, as has not been equaled before this generation. She has now got to set to work and learn her business; for it would be a grievous disaster to the cause of art if such magnificent powers should be frittered away and such a glorious future jeopardized through a too eager pursuit of present financial success."

LYDIA THOMPSON says she "thinks the drama is dead in New York. People appear to have lost all interest in it, which isn't the case on the other side. We have two theatres in London, you know—the Folly and the Criterion—and Mr. Henderson writes me that they are both doing well. I don't say there are no places in America where there is no lack of interest in the play, as Baltimore, Washington and Philadelphia, for example, and I have had a good many offers to go West and South, but I don't like traveling. I only agreed to go to four places—Baltimore, Washington, Philadelphia and New York—and now I want to go home and take a rest."

ARGANDIANA.

ORDERS have been issued at the Tremont for all the employees to shave off their moustaches. And yet this is a free country. Suppose Mr. Sharon takes it into his head to issue similar "orders" at the Palace. Imagine the indignation of "magnificent George."

MR. LUCKY BALDWIN enjoys the reputation of being a gallant "squire of dames." If the jovial millionaire could have heard the sweet "cues words" which proceeded from the cherry lips of three charming girls as they got off a Lone Mountain car last night opposite his theatre, and found their dainty brodequins instantly covered with the mud through which they had to wade to reach the sidewalk, he would certainly have felt unhappy. The dear girls were going to see handsome Charley Thorne as Rodolph Chadoce, but had not calculated on being "Led Astray" before getting into the theatre. It is somewhat remarkable that no crossing exists on Market street between Stockton and Powell. Mr. Baldwin should see to it that this approach to his beautiful theatre is made practicable as soon as possible.

It is generally conceded, both by the critics and the public at large, that the Union Square Company, now playing at Baldwin's, come very near perfection in the actor's art. Such being the case, it is with some diffidence that we venture to notice that, with the exception of Miss Morant and Miss Vernon, every one of them persist in pronouncing the word "Danicheff" as if it was spelt "Danershuiff;" and that Miss Maud Harrison enunciates the word "must" and others, in a manner that may be Neilsonian, but is scarcely English. This remark will, of course, be characterized as hyper-criticism, "straining at gnats," and so on; but it is trifles like this that offend the ears of such cultured audiences as are drawn to witness high-class performances of the Union Square Company calibre.

Candy.

It isn't very often that the editorial columns of our venerable contemporary the Alta California contain anything amusing. The following essay on "candy," however, is interesting enough to republish for the benefit of the myriad of fair readers of THE FOOTLIGHT. The sage of the Alta says: "Persons fond of candy may find something of interest to them in the telegram about the explosion of the New York candy factory. The disaster is there attributed to a mixture of nitric glycerine. But how should nitric acid get into a candy factory? The telegram tells that it is used to make 'acidulated candy,' which term, we presume, includes lemon drops and other sourish sweets. The despatch also mentions terra alba, (which might combine with nitric acid and glycerine to make dynamite), a white clay much cheaper than sugar, and possessing qualities fitting it for use in adulteration. The chemical argument of the telegram looks to us as if a reporter had drawn upon his imagination for some of his facts. It is unnecessary to bring in white clay as a constituent of dynamite, which last is weaker than nitro-glycerine, and would not mix readily, as nitric acid and glycerine might do by leaking from separate vessels into a common receptacle. We suspect, however, that nitric acid is seldom used to make sour candy, for sulphuric acid is equally palatable and much cheaper. So long as the public like the flavor of the oil of vitriol, as well as that of aqua fortis, the confectioners are not going to waste their money on the dearer article."

Our Buffalo Letter.

BUFFALO, December 29th, 1877.

ED. FOOTLIGHT:—Christmas week in Buffalo is proverbially poor for theatricals, and this year fared no better than previous ones. We very much regretted to see the thin houses which Mr. McCullough appeared to on Monday and Tuesday in St. James' Hall. So anxious were we to see him, not having had that pleasure before, that we put off a very attractive engagement on Christmas night, for which sacrifice we were amply repaid by witnessing one of the best, if not the very best impersonation of Othello that we have ever seen. His form, face, voice, everything seem exactly fitted to the character, and with the assistance of a fair company, including Mr. Milnes Levick, who made a good Iago, the performance proved a very enjoyable one. We are very sorry that he did not stay longer and that he did not play in the Academy of Music instead of St. James' Hall, which is an old barrack with about as much stage scenery and appointments as would accommodate Belphegor, the monte-bank. At the Academy for the last week we have had the handsome George Rignold (with his white charger,) as Henry V., playing to not very appreciative or good houses; we are inclined to think that, like Fanny Davenport, there is more in his good looks than his acting. Mrs. D. P. Bowers, assisted by Mr. McCullum, plays in the Academy of Music Monday and Tuesday, followed by the Worrell Sisters and George Knight, in a new play written for them called, "Otto," or a Game of Chance." The original Swedish ladies quartette give a sacred concert in the St. James to-morrow evening. At Shelby's Adelphi Theatre Miss Fannie Beane is the leading star; she is rather a versatile and very lively variety actress, a regular little tom boy, and takes well with the boys; with a host of other attractions, Shelby manages to keep his cosy little theatre well-filled during the season. M. H. W.

Longfellow is said to have received $1,000 for his recent poem "Keramos," and no one will deny that it is "cheap at the price." Equally beautiful in their way, and far more reasonable in cost, are the delightful specimens of the Keramos art to be found in the stores of Messrs. O. Lawton & Co., 609 and 611 Market street, opposite Montgomery. Amongst countless varieties of the most artistically designed ornaments of all descriptions, perhaps the most special admiration is given to the splendid collection of Doulton and Wedgwood Ware which best represent the rage in London and other European cities. An eager crowd always attends the periodical sales of Doulton China, which is elegant in shape and beautifully ornamented.

In addition to a rare collection of pottery and falence, Messrs. Lawton have also in stock an immense assortment of Jewel Cases, Clocks, Blaque Statuettes, Terra Cotta Figures, etc., suitable for Christmas and New Year's Gifts.

EASTERN THEATRICALS, ETC.

In addition to their London engagement, Messrs. McCullough, Thorne and Barrett will play in Paris.

The success of "Uncle Tom's Cabin," at the Academy of Music, Philadelphia, even surpasses calculation. The demand for tickets is so great that the management concluded to give an extra matinee on Thursday of last week, making three matinee performances in one week.

JANAUSCHER continues her successful engagement at the Walnut Street Theatre, Phila. Regarding her new assumption of "Catherine," of Russia, a contemporary says: "The portrayal demanding sudden transitions from terrible anger to tender love is a trying one in the extreme, but Jananscher's conception and development of the character was perfect in its every phase and added new lustre to her already brilliant reputation."

B. P. O. Elks.

The Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks held their usual Sunday evening social session at Tittles Hall, Bush street, to a full house of members and invited guests.

The gentlemanly and genial clerk at the Cosmopolitan Hotel, Mr. John S. Mitchell, was selected by the Order to fill the honorable position of Chairman for the evening.

Mr. Tanke presided at the piano in his happy and artistic manner.

The evening exercises opened with a song by Mr. C. W. Cogill, "Tim Flaherty."

Mr. Blade followed in a recitation, "The Common Lot."

Murry Woods recited in his happy manner, "The Signalman Asleep."

Mr. Fitzgerald, of the Kivalfy Troupe, sang "Let Me Like a Soldier Fall," and on an encore sang, "See that My Grave is Kept Green."

Mr. Norcross gave an imitation of a Chinaman in song and instrument.

Mr. Wallace, of the Kivalfy Company, gave a recitation, "The Orator with a Short Memory."

Gus Bruno, of the Adah-Richmond Burlesque Combination, sang "Strike the Hash Hammer," a travesty on "Strike the Harp Gently," on an encore sang an Italian song, and for a recall gave an imitation of John Leach, the China impersonator.

John Leach was called out and gave one of his original personations of a Chinaman as no other man can do on this coast.

Mr. M. B. Curtis gave some of his wonderful impersonations of celebrated actors, etc.

John Dillon sang "He's Joined the Hoodlum Band," and for an encore sang "The Anti-Coolie Man."

LADIES, before purchasing embroideries, look in the windows of the Chicago Auction House, 134 Sixth street. 10,000 yards selling from 2½c. up—fully 50 per cent. less than regular prices.

THE ladies (bless 'em) who brighten the hearths and gladden the homes of the dwellers in the Queen City of the Pacific, justly enjoy the distinction of possessing excellent taste in matters of dress. A walk along Kearny street any afternoon will sufficiently demonstrate this fact to the most casual observer. Whether robed in the silks and other costly fabrics which are the privilege of affluence, or attired in the less pretentious productions of the loom, they are all alike remarkable for neatness and "good style." It is, perhaps in the matter of boots and gloves that they are specially enticing; and in these particulars—the latter for choice—several enterprising citizens take good care that they shall be well supplied. For excellence of make and fitting, promptitude in the execution of orders, and reasonableness of price, no establishment in the glove trade can surpass that of the "Daucheff" Glove Manufactory, at No. 114½ Post street, two doors from the White House. This factory is as well equipped as the most renowned establishment of its kind in Paris, having very complete machinery, a large staff of cutters, sewers, etc. Any lady or gentleman can have their gloves with from 2 to 40 buttons, measured to the exact size of their hands, and delivered to them in two hours. In regard to appearance, durability, etc., these Gloves will be found immeasurably superior to any imported goods.

Our Sacramento Letter.

SACRAMENTO, January 5, 1878.

EDITOR FOOTLIGHT:—Though our theatre is closed, it may not be inappropriate for me to keep your readers advised of the fact that the New Year opens, finding us hopeful and confident of future good things to come. The Legislature has again convened, and we once more greet the smiling and genial "Honorable" composing that body, who have flocked in upon us in large numbers during the past few days, and only regret that we have no evening entertainment with which to regale them. But we see the signs, and conclude thereby that we are soon to be favored with a sensation in the arrival of the Frank Frayne Combination.

Mr. Locke's efficient advance agent, Mark Thall, was in town to-day and left for Marysville to return to-morrow, and contemplates rejoining the company at Stockton, returning with them again on the 9th, for four nights only.

Frank Lawlor, acting manager for Locke, is now with the company at San Jose.

The house being closed for ten days or more, we think it a good opportunity for those concerned to clean and renovate the Metropolitan Theatre, which needs it badly. It must be a delightful sensation to the musicians, and I know from experience it is to those of the audience sitting upon the front seats in the parquet, to swallow clouds of dust which rises whenever the stage carpet is laid. Certainly a little beating would do it no harm, though, perhaps, by virtue of long neglect, that operation might annihilate it altogether, in which case, according to the ancient custom here, lessees would be forced to supply their own carpet.

What a pity some one will not build a theatre in this city complete in all its appointments, and managed with some kind of equity and judgment.

Madame M. A. N. Pollard is to arrive here on Monday next. We are not fully advised as to her intentions, but presume she contemplates giving some of her lectures in this city, which are certainly very interesting, and should receive liberal patronage. Madame Pollard contemplates a trip East shortly, where the field is wider, and we doubt not she will achieve success.

VIATOR.

WISE AND OTHERWISE.

The latest Kentucky romance is thus epitomized by the Courier-Journal: "Is-ham Dalton and wife, of Ballard County, separated, she taking an only child, a little girl of eight summers, and a mule, their only live stock. Last week he brought suit for the possession of the child, but accepted the tender of the mule as a compromise." And yet the child will be the mulier of the two, when she grows up.

Grand Opera House.

"Three Millions of Money" seems a preposterous sum to talk about in these hard times; and the notion that such a very insouciant person as Colonel Jefferson Dexter should possess it and lavish it on tooth drawers and such like, whilst whisky continues a bit a drink, and our tailor continues to send in his account with a modest request for a remittance, is galling to the feelings. Nevertheless, we are vastly entertained, and even amused, with the adventures of Mrs. Florence Desmond, the pretty widow, and her lovers. Miss Minnie Walton is an excellent representative of the fair and embarrassed lady, and supported by Mr. Barrows, who makes a wonderfully amusing John, and Messrs. Stanley and Thorne, conducts the piece very successfully. "Three Millions of Money" will hold the boards during the remainder of the week, and will be succeeded next Monday by the historical drama "The Regiment of Champagne."

California Theatre.

The public interest in "The Black Crook" continues as vivid as ever. Unless the rain comes down in force towards 8 o'clock, the house is filled to overflowing every evening. There is every indication that the piece will continue attractive for some weeks to come. The next attraction, according to the theatrical almanac, will be another spectacular play entitled "A Trip to the Moon," which is in active rehearsal.

Emerson's Opera House.

Miss Catherine Lewis is drawing large houses to witness her charming impersonation of Amy Robsart in the burlesque of "Kenilworth."

THEATRICAL GOSSIP, ETC.

CHARLES MATTHEWS, the English actor, is to retire from the stage this winter.

OLD Jacob Grau, the veteran impresario, died intestate. He left personal property to the amount of about $10,000.

ROBERTSON'S much admired play "Kate," will be the next attraction presented by the Union Square Company at Baldwin's Theatre.

MISS FANNY LOUISE BUCKINGHAM and her matchless steed of the Ohio breed, left yesterday for Portland, Oregon. She goes to astonish the "hewers of wood, etc.," with her wild career on the steppes.

THE benefit of Mr. Curtis, the popular comedian and imitator, takes place on Sunday evening next at the Grand Opera House. An excellent programme is arranged, the particulars of which will be found in another column. The talented and favorite actress Miss Mary L. Young, will appear on this occasion.

THE following telegram has been received from St. Louis, dated January 8th: "The disappearance of J. C. Fryer, manager of Fryer, Pappenheim & Adams' Opera Company, causes great anxiety to his friends. He was last seen by members of the company at the Louisville Hotel, in Louisville, on Friday evening last, just before retiring for the night." This is the only for the appearance of whom at Baldwin's Theatre negotiations have been for some time in progress.

ARGANDIANA.

MR. ALBANI's father was, a short time ago, reported to have denied that his daughter was about to be married. It now turns out that the gentleman has been dead for somewhere about fourteen years. How was the communication made, Mrs. Foy?

GENERAL W. B. BARTON, who brought Bob. Ingersoll to this coast, and has since been directing the professional career of J. K. Emmet, left for the East yesterday morning. The General is an excellent amusement provider, and is held in the highest regard by all who know him. He has the intention to return hither in a few months with a special attraction.

CLARA LOUISE KRLOGG used to be billed here in San Francisco as the "great American prima donna." In Philadelphia "the chicken," Madame Marie Roze Perkins, and Annie Louise Cary are announced as "the three greatest living prime donne." Somehow or other we don't remember to have as yet heard of the demise of Patti, Trebelli, Marimon, Albani, Di Murska, Scialchi, and a few others whose names are pretty well celebrated amongst queens of song. However, Max knows best.

"COSTLY thy habit as thy purse can buy," says the Bard (big "B," please Mr. Comp.) of Avon; and it is a good piece of advice too. But in these times it is a great thing to be able to get a good "habit" at a reasonable price; and to this end one cannot do better than to patronize Mr. Nicoll, "the tailor," in whose establishments, at 305 Montgomery and 18 Kearny streets, can be found the newest styles of clothing, made of the best materials, at prices far below the usual figure.

"THE DANICHEFFS" is, beyond question, the finest modern play that has been put on the stage for a long time, and the Union Square Company present it in an almost perfect manner. They have each and all been complimented as they deserve—and it seems rather an ungrateful omission on the part of the press that no one has ever noticed one of the most graceful of the cast, who is, however, conspicuous by his silence. The artist in question is the celebrated greyhound, "Quicksilver," who appears in the concluding part of the second act, and is even more admired amidst the stage surroundings than he was lately at the dog show.

THE Philadelphia Bulletin concludes a very ably written article, entitled "An Apology for Boarding-house Keepers," as follows: "The average landlady is simply an object of commiseration. She has a particularly hard row to hoe in this life of trouble and misery, and her special grief is that she rarely has any money left after she has hoed it. We have a suspicion that when Time shall be no more, and the rough things of this world shall be made smooth in another, the boarding-house keepers will have such rewards for meekness and virtue and patience and long suffering as will make the rest of the martyrs seem to have been almost vicious." [It strikes us as just barely possible that the writer's mother-in-law is in the business—or is it only that his hash bill is in arrears?—Ed. FOOTLIGHT.]

IN spite of the educational facilities at the disposal of the youth of America, the ignorance of some of them is positively appalling. A day or two ago our office boy came in and said he "didn't think Shakespeare was much on the act, any way." We gazed at him sternly and in silence, waiting for an explanation. It came in this form: "I heered so much 'bout Shakespeare I allers thought he was no snide; hnt he couldn't draw only twelve nights up at the California." We looked at the boy interrogatively. "Well, I ain't givin' yer no fake. I seen the bills, and they said: 'Farewell performance. Shakespeare's "Twelfth Night." A feller what can't play only two weeks aint no great shakes!" We repeat that such exhibitions of stupidity as this are discouraging. And that boy has had the advantage of reading the FOOTLIGHT every day for the past seven months, too.

HIS Majesty, Victor Emmanuel II, King of Italy, died at the Quirinal Palace in Rome on the 8th inst.

WISE AND OTHERWISE.

MONEY that bank officers get away with is charged to running expenses.

MR. BROUGHAM has arrived at that stage of convalescence where it is thought to be safe to permit Hector A. Stuart to address an original poem to him. Seems a little premature. John, do be careful.

IN a certain California schoolhouse the teacher stands in Santa Cruz, while the scholars sit over in San Mateo, but the question of county rights doesn't interfere with the discipline of the institution in the least. When the schoolmarin wants an offending youngster transferred for sentence and punishment from one county to the other, no requisition from the Governor is required. She simply takes him by the coat collar and yanks him over the line in a style that would make Fred. McCrellish tremble for the destinies of our country.

HERE is a banquet of compliments:—"There are but two fine things in the world," says Malherbe, "women and roses." Lessing exclaims, "Woman is the masterpiece of the universe." Burden says, "The pearl is the image of purity, but woman is purer than pearls." Thackeray writes, "A good woman is the loveliest flower that blossoms under heaven." Balzac says, "Even the errors of woman spring from her faith in the good." Voltaire declares, "All the reasonings of men are not worth one sentiment of woman." Lamartine asserts that "Women have more heart and imagination than men." Otway exclaims:—"O woman! lovely woman! nature made thee to temper man; we had been brutes without you." To which Mark Twain adds:—"But for you we should be nothing, for we should not be here."

Get Married.

A job to coax bachelors out of single blessedness, and to decrease the stock of old maids by an increased demand for wives, may be involved in some statements made by the London Review in regard to the relations existing between marriage and longevity. Old maids and bachelors, it says, rarely attain to extreme old age, and then it tells of people living to extraordinary ages by wedding a dozen times or so, while Jacob Jay, of Bordeaux, died in 1772, at the age of 101 years, having had sixteen wives in the grave; and Margaret McDowell, a Scotch woman, died in 1765, at the age of 105, having wept at the untimely demise of thirteen men whose names she had borne in rotation. Thus far the Review does not put a very extraordinary tax upon one's capacity for boiling a tough morsel, but the strain is rather severe when it goes on to speak of a pair named Rovi, who died in Hungary in 1741 the man aged 170 and the woman 164, leaving a tender youth of 116 years old to bewail his orphanage and reflect on the strength of that tie which held his parents together for 148 years.

Disgusted Dion.

(WITH APOLOGIES TO MR. PUNCH.)

OLD Dion says the drama has declined. Yet wishes still to swell the playwright's ranks. Just now he's in an acid state of mind. His last "new" drama's been declined—with thanks.

THE ladies (bless 'em) who brighten the hearths and gladden the homes of the dwellers in the Queen City of the Pacific, justly enjoy the distinction of possessing excellent taste in matters of dress. A walk along Kearny street any afternoon will sufficiently demonstrate this fact to the most casual observer. Whether robed in the silks and other costly fabrics which are the privilege of affluence, or attired in the less pretentious productions of the loom, they are all alike remarkable for neatness and "good style." It is, perhaps in the matter of boots and gloves that they are specially enticing; and in these particulars the latter for choice—several enterprising citizens take good care that they shall be well supplied. For excellence of make and fitting, promptitude in the execution of orders, and reasonableness of price, no establishment in the glove trade can surpass that of the "Danicheff" Glove Manufactory, at No. 114½ Post street, two doors from the White House. This factory is as well equipped as the most renowned establishment of its kind in Paris, having very complete machinery, a large staff of cutters, sewers, etc. Any lady or gentleman can have their gloves with from 2 to 4 buttons, measured to the exact size of their hands, and delivered to them in two hours. In regard to appearance, durability, etc., these gloves will be found immeasurably superior to any imported goods.

EASTERN THEATRICALS.

THE following items are from the New York Clipper:

ELEANOR CAREY is to make her first appearance in New York on the 7th inst. as Queen Elizabeth in "Richard III."

THE proprietors of the wine and cigar store adjoining Wallack's Theatre (S. & M. Israel) have failed. They attribute the failure to the enforcement of the Excise Law.

THE revival of "Helen's Babies," at the Eleventh Street Opera House, Phila., has met with the greatest success. Crowds are nightly turned away, unable to gain admittance.

THE largest week's business ever done in Tony Pastor's Theatre, and, as Mr. Pastor assures us, the largest ever done by him during his entire managerial career in this city, was that of the expired week, when numbers of people were turned away at the matinee, and standing room was at a premium at all the nightly performances. Harry Kernell proved as entertaining as ever in his North of Ireland eccentricities. Emerson and Clark and the Daly Brothers (Tommy and Willie) in their specialty entitled "Nonsense," created a positive furore, and responded to recalls until fatigue compelled them to desist.

"THE Man of Success," announced on the bills as "a new play by Fenillet," should be termed "The Man of Gall." Instead of being even a new version of Fenillet's ancient drama, it is substantially Chas. F. Coghlan's "Montjoye," which he played in San Francisco last spring. It was then announced as being produced for the first time in America; but Fenillet had been honored in San Francisco before, his "Montjoye" having been performed at Magnire's Opera House in 1864. As yet, not a solitary metropolitan journal has said aught about Coghlan's having played "Montjoye" elsewhere than in New York. [Ha! ha! We are much more clever here—and found out all about Mr. Montjoye before he produced himself at Baldwin's.—Ed. FOOTLIGHT.]

A SERIES of mishaps befell the entertainments at Detroit (Mich.) Opera House December 24th. First, a telegram was received that Miss Von Stanwitz could not arrive before Tuesday, necessitating a change of bill for Monday; the stock company producing "East Lynne," with Miss Wilmot in the chief characters. While rehearsing the play she fell fainting to the stage, and the management was obliged to close the doors, giving no performance. Tuesday (Christmas matinee, Von Stanwitz having arrived, inaugurated her season in "East Lynne," without any rehearsal, and consequently it was not a smooth performance. The abilities of the star were soon recognized as superior. Mrs. Carrie Jamison of the Grand Opera House was engaged as a substitute for Miss Wilmot, but failed to please. "Antony and Cleopatra" Combination followed on 31.

THE Esthetic tastes of the San Francisco public are being cultivated and ministered to more and more daily. Not only in the palaces which rear their heads unto eternal sky on the shores of Nob Hill, are fine collections of books, flowers, pictures, marbles, mosaics and all the beautiful things that make the charm of life to be found. Art, aided by science, has placed many of these luxuries within the grasp of men who have not yet achieved the distinction of being millionaires; and even the most unpretentious and modest home need not be without its adornments in the way of MUSEUM ART. The Danish terra cotta work, a large variety of which can be found in the magazines of Messrs. O. LAWTON & Co, 609 & 611 Market street, is amongst the most quaint and admirable of ornaments for the drawing-room tables and etageres. It is very delicately manufactured, and the greatest perfection is arrived at in the limning of the various figures of poets, peasants, warriors, amazons, Undines, etc., which are constructed from it. A special supply of this popular ware has been laid in to meet the want of purchasers during the holiday days.

Jah on Ceramics.

"It's my opinion," remarked Bijah, as he put his head out of one of the alley windows to see if it was a good morning to set out cabbage plants, "it's my opinion that I've lived in this world long enough. I've seen April and December rolled slap! dab! into one month, and I don't care to live any longer in a country where there are only 'leven months in a year. Hello! here comes a dukess."

A well-dressed lady, wearing a hat with a sky-blue feather, entered the station, smiled sweetly, and inquired:

"Is B. Joy in?"

"He air, madam; my name is Joy."

"Mr. Joy, I have called to invite you to attend the monthly meeting of the Ladies' Musical, Literary and Ceramic Society of Detroit."

"Au—um—yes," he stammered.

"And to invite you to deliver an address on the subject of 'Pottery—ancient and modern—its first manufacture—its first decoration—did the Phenicians or Aryans excel in ornamentation—the treasures of the past, and how to reproduce them.' You will come?"

He opened his mouth but he could not utter a word for half a minute. He finally blurted out:

"W—when is it?"

"Saturday evening, Mr. Joy; and it will be a great disappointment to us if you are not present."

"I can't possibly c-come, madame!"

he gasped, as the back of his neck turned lemoncolor.

"Why?"

"C-cause I'm going to have a b-brother-in-law die that very evening, and I must be there to help b-brace him up?"

After she had gone he fell into a chair, reached his handkerchief down between his shoulders, and whispered:

"Did the Phenishans or Arrans excel? Great heavens? Why, all the ancient history I ever read was that little paragraph about Daniel in the lion's den!"—Free Press.

At a church fair in Pittsburgh they had a slave market. Young girls disguised with sheets were put on the block and knocked down to the highest bidders, the money going to the church treasury, and the goods never being delivered. Pretty soon the stage will have to fulminate against the immorality of the church.

We do not suppose that lecturers are, as a class, particularly renowned for personal courage, but we have yet to meet one who would not rather see one of his audience pull a revolver on him than a watch. When a man in the audience pulls out a watch as big as a basin, then fixes a glare of stony, inexpressible amazement and outraged patience on the man who talks—brethren, you want to look around for a clean place in which to lie down and die.

Grand Opera House.

Miss Minnie Walton in "Three Millions of Money" this evening. The little lady has made herself very popular since the opening night, and the piece, altogether, is given with much spirit. Miss Walton dresses with much taste, and has that easy manner which is only acquired by habit and acquaintance with the beau monde. "The Regiment of Champagne" will succeed the comedy next Monday, and in the former Miss Walton will be fitted with a part demanding acting of the emotional type. The piece was a great success some short time since in Paris, and admits of much scenic display, for which the stage of the Grand Opera House is eminently adapted.

California Theatre.

The Black Crook is drawing the town nightly. It is rumored that Mr. Keene has demanded an increase of salary, in consequence of the strain that the impersonation of the wicked enchanter entails on the muscles of his lumbar region. The ingenious M. Bolossy Kirally has introduced some new dances into the ballet, which are very graceful. Fifth matinee to-morrow.

Emerson's Opera House.

The favorite burlesque of "Kenilworth," with Miss Catherine Lewis in the character of the ill-fated heroine of Connor Hall, is drawing large audiences to this theatre. Miss Lewis is, in all respects, a charming actress, and sings like Philomel. "Kenilworth" matinee to-morrow.

THEATRICAL GOSSIP, Etc.

The first anniversary entertainment and ball of the Orion Club will take place at Platt's Hall on Friday evening, February 5th.

MISS FANNY MORANT's benefit is announced to take place on Sunday evening at Baldwin's Theatre. "The Danicheffs" will be performed.

DAMPIER is to appear at the Broadway Theatre, New York. He will open in "The Courier of Lyons." Puck says, Australia endorses Dampier, and Australia is waiting to be endorsed.

SIGNOR and SIGNORA MAJERONI, two Italian dramatic stars of great celebrity, arrived yesterday from Australia by the steamship "City of Sydney." The lady and gentleman are under engagement at the California Theatre, where they will appear in the early part of next month. La Signora Majeroni is a niece of the famous actress Madame Ristori, and possesses an ability almost equal to that lady. Signor Majeroni is admitted to be only second to Rossi and Salvini amongst Italian actors who have appeared on the English stage. He has a great facility for the acquirement of languages, and speaks English well and with but little Latin accent. The Majeroni's have been playing with great success in Australia and New Zealand during the last year and a half. Their repertoire includes "Camille," "East Lynne," "Marie Antoinette," "The Old Corporal," "Jealousy," "The Isle of St. Tropez," "A Living Statue," "Faith and Friendship," "Essex," "Mistaken Education," and "The Idiot."

ARGANDIANA.

BEECHER's salary has been reduced and at the same time he has his portrait in the New York Dramatic News. Coghlan and the other stars are getting uneasy.

By the S. S. "City of Sydney" which arrived yesterday, we have received our usual budget of theatrical news from Australia and New Zealand. Our correspondents' letters will be found in another column.

THERE were only seventy cats at Philadelphia's recent cat-show. The other 7,000,547 were sitting on back fences and sheds of nights growing at the small amount of the premiums offered, and discussing methods to avert the dangers threatened by the lively sausage season.

THE weather has certainly been damp, dam damp, for some days past, but does it always have such an effect on the critic of the Mail as is suggested by the following paragraph which appeared in Thursday's issue of that respectable journal: "Ditto and 'Led Astray' at Baldwin's rather casts a damp on a play so much as damp weather."

THE pupils of the Washington Grammar School will give an entertainment this evening at the school building, on the S. W. corner of Washington and Mason streets. The programme comprises recitations, musical selections, etc., under the direction of the Principal, Mr. C. O'Connor. The proceeds will be devoted to the purchase of a pianoforte and other necessities for the institution.

WHAT has become of the Baby Show? The 14th is drawing nigh, and the only outward and visible sign of the projector is a little notice in the "personal" column of some of the dailies, requesting him to "call and settle." Col. Andrews looks askew when asked about the "preminims" which were advertised to be "on exhibition in a few days" in his window, and those babies who had confidently expected to win candle cups and papspoons are howling with disappointment.

THE Foreign mails announce the death of Frederico Ricci, the composer, brother of Luigi Ricci, his collaborator in several works. He was born in Naples in 1809, and was a prolific and successful writer, his best piece being the buffo opera "Crispino e la Comare," in which Adeline Patti made a notable hit. Among other works may be cited "Una Follia a Roma," "Luigi Rollo," "Un Duello Sotto Richelieu," "Le Prigioni d'Edinburgo," "Griselda." He also leaves a great many minor pieces, Venetian chaussonnettes, duos, &c. For twelve years Ricci was a Professor at the St. Petersburg Conservatory. Of late he had grown tired of the world and so had retired from Paris to Conegliano, where he died on the 10th ult.

EASTERN THEATRICALS, ETC.

EMILY RIGL, while witnessing Modjeska's dying scene in "Adrienne Lecouvreur," was so impressed as to faint dead away.

MCKEE RANKIN and Kitty Blanchard, assisted by Louis Aldrich and C. T. Parsloe, commenced a week's engagement at the Walnut Street Theatre, Philadelphia, December 14th, appearing in "The Danites," which then received its first representation in that city. This drama met with unqualified success, the attendance being very large during the week. It was admirably acted, Kitty Blanchard displaying unusual excellence as Billie Piper.

At Haverly's Adelphi, Chicago, Ill., business has been large. "Antony and Cleopatra" was produced with some especially fine scenery from New York, with appropriate and elegant costumes and a capital ballet, led by Betty Rigl, under the direction of Mons. Zavistowski. Miss Rose Eytinge gave a very good impersonation of Cleopatra, looking the dark Egyptian syren of the Nile in a truly regal manner, while she often caught the Shakspearian inspiration in her delivery of the lines. George C. Boniface presented a good portrait of Antony.

MONS. ALFRED PERBIER is requested to call at this office at his earliest convenience.

Our Australian Letter.

MELBOURNE, December 11, 1877.

ED. FOOTLIGHT:—I am in receipt of your valuable little paper regularly and send you some of mine by every mail. Since last I wrote, the Theatre Royal has not been doing much, the new people imported from England, so far, have not proven themselves much; but we are to have a grand Christmas pantomime that is to outdo all previous ones. The scenic effects will be by Mr. John Hennings. The title is "The Forty Thieves." The interior of this house is undergoing a thorough renovation. Mr. Blank Holt is engaged as clown for the pantomime.

Opera House. The Soldene's are doing really splendid business, and Mlle. Sara has proved a success as a wonderful dancer. Mr. Macdonald, the business manager, and Mr. W. C. Conkling, agent, must be congratulated upon the able management of their company. The pantomime at this house will be the "Sleeping Beauty." Scenic effects by Mr. Hubbe; and Salsbury's Troubadours are to play in the opening. And to judge by the amount of money they are spending at this house on the pantomime, it will be something gorgeous. The Soldene's leave on the night of the 19th December, after the performance, for New Zealand; then Sydney, Melbourne and Adelaide.

Academy of Music. This evening is the last appearance of Mr. William Coeswick, the great tragedian. He has two benefits. He opens at the Victoria Theatre, Sydney, 26th December, for a season, and then comes back to Mr. Lewis at the Academy again. The pantomime at this house will be "Robinson Crusoe;" and the scenic effects will be from the pencil of Mr. Charles Massay. The clown will be Mr. Walter Canle (well-known as business manager for Mr. Haggerty, Sydney,) and pantaloons, Dave Gardner.

The Princess, under the management and lessorship of Mr. M. L. Bayless, opens about the 22d, after a complete renovation. The attention costs over $6,000. It will open with two concerts, in which Mr. Beaumont and Miss Christian appear, and other well known artists; then Baker and Farron (who have just returned from an overland tour from Sydney) in "Struck Oil;" then Mrs. Mary Gladstone, supported by Messrs. Charles Pope and Geo. Ireland; also a first-class dramatic company. Cooper and Bailey's advance agents are in the town, commencing to lay out for the appearance of the great show.

St. George's Hall—Was opened with a dirty lot of Georgia Minstrels, under Chas. B. Hicks, Chas. Crusso, Frank Wade, and Tom Kennedy. At first their business was fair, but as soon as the public found out what a scrubby lot they were the attendance fell off. They open at Sydney on the 26th of December. The minstrel company, in Melbourne, consisting of Lewis, Copeland, Moore, Going, Lomas, Jackson, Perkins, Carter, and R. B. Lewis, are really good; but on account of the bad business management of the other lot, they were not able to make any headway until they appeared at Geelong. The Troubadours have returned from Adelaide; and Webb's Marionettes open next at White's rooms.

Tasmania Baylis's dramatic company have done fairly. Mrs. Scott-Siddons will open there on the 18th inst. The Fakir of Oulu (Dr. Sylvester) is there, and will proceed shortly to New Zealand, and very likely America.

Mr. James Allison has taken the Balmain and Sandwich Theatres for the Christmas holidays.

Ada Warde is only doing middling biz at the Theatre Royal, Sydney. The Christmas pantomime at this house will be "Humpty Dumpty."

Victoria Theatre will be occupied by Mr. Creswick. It has been closed for a thorough renovation.

New Zealand is overstocked with companies. Yours, etc. ALBERT.

TOWNSEND'S STEAM CANDY FACTORY is well worthy of a visit, to see the immense variety of candies that are manufactured by steam on the premises from pure sugar, rich fruits, and natural fruit flavors. New Zealand Theatricals.

BY FAIRFAX.

WELLINGTON, December 16, 1877.

SIGNOR and SIGNORA MAJERONI have, on the whole, done a good business in New Zealand, though for some time past they have been living in retirement at Wellington, as they were unable to find people to support them in Auckland. The boat which brings this letter will also convey to American shores the Signor and his amiable lady. They will be taken in hand on their arrival in San Francisco by Signor de Vivo, and will make their reappearance in New York first of all; then they will go on a tour through the States, and next to the Lingards. The Majeroni's have taken the most money out of New Zealand.

R. H. Kohler has entered into partnership with Mr. J. C. Hall, (who is also known in America), and they are now joint lessees of the Gaiety Theatre, Christchurch, the Theatre Royal, Timaru, and the Queen's Theatre, Dunedin. They are now performing in the latter city.

New Zealand is full of opera just now. The Italian Opera Company has done well in Dunedin, and are now playing to crowded houses in Christchurch. Wellington, on the 21st of the present month, is their next fixture.

Emily Soldene's Opera Bouff Company will open at the Princess Theatre, Dunedin, on the 26th inst. They have been favorably received in Australia, notably in the two chief cities, (Sydney and Melbourne); and if they are as good as our Australian neighbors say they are, they will have no reason to regret their visit to this colony.

Charles Clark, the lecturer, has been coining money in New Zealand. Latterly he has been touring through the west coast of Goldfields, where most of the halls have been too small to hold the numbers that would like to see him.

Miss Ada Ward makes her debut at the Theatre Royal, Christchurch, in a few days.

Mr. Henry Walton, an English comedian, has been playing at Christchurch and Dunedin. Business anything but encouraging.

The new theatre at Wellington has been leased by Mr. Sam Howard, formerly of the Royal. It is expected to be finished towards the latter end of January.

Mr. Richmond Fletcher is going the rounds of the colony as agent for Levy, the great cornet player, and his company. They have been eminently successful in Dunedin and other towns; and on the 26th inst. Levy will commence a series of promenade concerts at the Skating Rink, Christchurch. Mr. De Laas, of Auckland, has secured him for his theatre in that city, and there the cornet player and his company will go next.

Mr. Charles Dillon, a son of the great English tragedian of that name, has been playing, recently, at the St. George's Hall, Wellington, supported by Miss Emily Pender, a young actress of considerable promise.

Mr. Charles Wheatleigh has not yet made up his mind as to when he will return to America; but Charley is one of those men who can tell to a moment when a stay in any country is profitable, and I presume the instant he finds it doesn't pay him he will bid us au revoir.

THE Aesthetic tastes of the San Francisco public are being cultivated and ministered to more and more daily. Not only in the palaces which rear their heads into eternal sky on the shores of Nob Hill, are fine collections of books, flowers, pictures, marbles, mosaics and all the beautiful things that make the charm of life to be found. Art, aided by science, has placed many of these luxuries within the grasp of men who have not yet achieved the distinction of being millionaires; and even the most impretentious and modest home need not be without its adornments in the way of BRIC A BRAC. The Danish terra cotta work, a large variety of which can be found in the magazines of MESSRS. O. LAWTON & CO., 609 & 611 Market street, is amongst the most quaint and admirable of ornaments for the drawing-room tables and etageres. It is very delicately manufactured, and the greatest perfection is arrived at in the limning of the various figures of poets, peasants, warriors, amazons, Undines, etc., which are constructed from it. A special supply of this popular ware has been laid in to meet the want of purchasers during the holiday days.

WILE AND OTHERWISE.

THERE is no law against opening a postal card.

Why didn't he eat up the whole desk? We refer to the anaconda who swallowed a pigeonhole.

Hosiery is lower to-day—Boston Globe. There is only one remedy. They should wear garters.—Graphic.

It is useless to tell the ladies that camel's hair shawls are not made of camels any more than they are made of the barks of dogs.

THE study of ceramics is a modern intellectual struggle to find out what sort of pictures ancient Egyptians had on their shaving-mugs.

THE Cincinnati Enquirer asks us to think of an actress receiving $320 per week as a regular stipend. We accordingly do so, but don't believe she's worth it.

Don't give your girl a watch. Because the old folks will make her wear it, and inquire with great carefulness what time you went home Sunday night.

A CORRESPONDENT writes to inquire why a cat always begins devouring mice at the head? It is probably so that the animal may reserve the tail to the last to pick his teeth with.

"I call you darling," she said, as she leant her head on his coat collar.

"Show your hand," he returned, mechanically.

The young miss, not understanding his answer, continued to poke her head against his chin, and he hove a high of relief at her unconsciousness of his mistake.

GRANT to Vesuvius—Do you object to smoking?

Vesuvius—Oh, no; not at all. Smoke away. I like it. I'm an incorrigible smoker myself. Puff!

Grant—Smoking ever make you sick?

Vesuvius—Yes. I throw up a good deal and am troubled with chronic eruptions.

Grant—Ever make you nervous?

Vesuvius—Makes me a little shaky sometimes.

Grant—Folks complain of your smoking any?

Vesuvius—Yes, but it makes no difference to me, I can't live without smoking. I smoke away as long as I please.

Grant—No do I. Think it a bad habit?

Vesuvius—No. I'm as old as the hills, and I've smoked ever since I can recollect.

Grant—So have I; only my folks complain because my tobacco scents the rooms.

Vesuvius—Egad! I scent all Naples sometimes and the surrounding country.

Grant—Got a match about you?

Vesuvius—No matches, General; plenty of sulphur, though. I'm in the gunpowder line, General, like yourself.

Grant! Why, I fought it out on that —Humph! I've heard that before. Good morning.—Graphic.

Grand Opera House.

The last representation of "Three Millions of Money," will be given at this theatre this evening. On Monday, the first production in America of Jules Clarette's grand historical military drama, "Le Regiment du Champagne" will take place. This play is at present being given with great success in Paris. The action of the play takes place in the early part of the eighteenth century, and relates to the events of the religious war of that period. The hero is a natural son of the Count de Pardailhan, a proscribed Huguenot noble. The boy has been under the care of Sergeant Fanfare of the Regiment of Champagne, since his infancy, and has, under the name of Roger, attained to the rank of captain. The Count de Pardailhan has another son, Bernard, whom he has disowned, because the latter has renounced his religious faith. Both these young men are in love with the Countess Eliane de Nangis, a Huguenot lady in high favor at the Court of Louis XIV, who is, however, engaged in secretly serving the interests of the Dutch government. Bernard has seduced a young girl named Therese, in a village on the French frontier, whom he has subsequently deserted. The Countess Eliane's carriage breaks down near Therese's hut, and the dame takes temporary refuge therein. There she meets Roger, and also the Count de Pardailhan and Nicholas Chevalier, a proscribed journalist, who have also sought shelter there, the French army being encamped in the vicinity. Roger declares his love for the Countess and is told by her that she cannot love a man unless she fears him. Bernard enters, and, finding Roger with Eliane, high words pass between them, and a duel is apparently inevitable when the blast of the bugle interrupts the quarrel. Bernard hurriedly gives Roger, as a gage de guerre, a glove with the Pardailhan crest embroidered on it, and by comparing this with a ring given him by his dying mother, Roger discovers the secret of his parentage. The grand scene of "The Defence of the Standard" follows, in which the Regiment of Champagne, after a bloody mellay remain masters of the field. In the third act, Bernard visits the journalist Chevalier, in the latter's lodgings in Paris, when he is told that he must not fight with Roger, and is informed of their close relationship. Bernard refuses to believe, and threatens Chevalier. At this juncture the Count de Pardailhan (whom it was supposed had been killed in battle,) arrives, and also Therese and the witless boy Petit Jacques. Therese beseeches Bernard to marry her, which he refuses and leaves the place. Roger then enters, and is acknowledged by his father; who is about to receive from Chevalier the papers establishing his (Roger's) identity, when the house is surrounded by soldiers led by Bernard, in pursuit of the proscrit. The Count and everybody, except Chevalier and Le Petit Jacques, escape. Chevalier gives the papers to the boy for safety, and then in a struggle with Bernard, who enters with the soldiers, is stabbed.

In the next act the boy Jacques delivers the papers to Roger at the Palace of Marly, and apprises him of the intention of Countess Eliane to endeavor to persuade him desert the King's service and join the Huguenot cause thro' his love for her. The Countess, in fact, solicits him to this course, which Roger indignantly rejects, calls her a traitress, and then when she is at his feet suing for mercy, tells her that she must now love him as she fears him. All hopes of peace between France and Holland bring at an end, every preparation for the struggle is made by the King, who, in order to obtain money, sends the royal plate to the mint. The Count de Pardailhan is given the command of the Regiment of Champagne, and the final act opens with the camp of the French Army before Landrecis. Countess Eliane has obtained the plan of the proposed tactics of Marshal Villars, the French Commander, and is about to send it to Prince Eugene. Her love for Roger, however, leads her to give up the idea of betraying his co-religionists, and she poisons herself, first acquainting Bernard of her having abandoned her traitorous intention. Bernard determines to carry the information himself, but is confronted by Roger, who opposes his passage. They fight, and Bernard is slain. Roger is struck with horror, and exclaims that the mark of Cain is upon him. The old Count Pardailhan, who has witnessed the duel, however, gives his own sword to Roger, and tells him that in killing Bernard he has saved the family honor from being stained by a traitor. The curtain falls on the death of the Count, who is killed in the battle of Landrecis. This tableau, as well as the "Defence of the Standard," and the other military spectacles will be presented with great magnificence. Miss Minnie Walton will undertake the part of the Countess Eliane de Nangis; Mr. Ed. F. Thorne that of Roger; Mr. Grismer, the Count Pardailhan; Mr. Barrows, Nicolas Chevalier, the journalist; Mr. Stanley, Molincau; Mr. Billings, Sergeant Fanfare; Miss Pixley, Madelon; Miss Murdock, Therese, and Miss Moore, Petit Jacques.

California Theatre.

"The Black Crook" concludes the third week of its successful run to-night. It will positively be withdrawn after another seven performances. On Monday the dances of the ballet will be entirely altered; the Uhn Sisters will introduce new songs, and the Vaidis Sisters will perform some fresh feats of daring and skill on the trapeze. "The Black Crook" is by far the finest spectacle that has ever been presented at the California Theatre; and anybody who fails to see it will commit "the mistake of a lifetime." Respect this!

THEATRICAL GOSSIP, ETC.

"Happy Jack" has promised to sign the temperance pledge to-day. (This advertisement is gratuitous.)

M. B. CURTIS' benefit takes place to-morrow (Sunday) evening at the Grand Opera House. It promises to be an extremely entertaining performance. The seats are being disposed of very rapidly.

THERE will a matinee performance at Emerson's Opera House on Wednesday next for the benefit of the widow of the late John de Angelis. Many professional friends of the late artist have volunteered

"LES DANICHEFFS" will be given at Baldwin's Theatre to-morrow (Sunday) evening on the occasion of the benefit of Miss Fanny Morant. The same admirable play will also occupy the boards Monday and Tuesday. On Wednesday evening "The Geneva Cross" will be presented.

THE management of the Grand Opera House, with commendable sagacity, have decided upon the adoption of "popular prices" to suit the times. On and after Monday, the 14th, there will be no extra charge for reserved seats. The charge for the orchestra, dress circle and balcony seats will be $1; for the mezzanine boxes, $4; and the gallery, 50 and 25 cents.

A CHARITABLY inclined young lady of 437 Lafayette Avenue, Brooklyn, announced a "Baby Show," which took place at her residence on the Monday before Christmas. Her friends attended in large numbers. The fifty babies were in reality so many dolls, which she had prepared as Christmas gifts for the little girls of the Church Charity Foundation. The proceeds of the "Baby Show" (twenty cents admission) sufficed to arm each doll with a large cornucopia of sweetmeats. This is the most sensible and successful "Baby Show" we have yet heard of.

ARGANDIANA.

AND now some clever person discovers that Mr. Mackeye's play "Won at Last," which the author claims to be entirely original in thought, dialogue, and conception, bears a most suspicious resemblance to a book by a German author, (anonymous), entitled Gluck Auf (Good Luck.) Truly, there is nothing new under the sun.

"LED ASTRAY," as performed by the Union Square Company at Baldwin's, is invested with a sort of charm which makes one almost inclined to look upon infidelity with approval. The neglected wife, as portrayed by Miss Ida Vernon, displays so much dignity and consummate nobility in her struggle with her passion for an unworthy lover, that the sympathies of the audience are forced to go out to her, to the exclusion of the strictly moral aspect of the case. Armande's self-inflicted sufferings are pitiful to behold, and her late repentance and agony are most vividly portrayed. Miss Vernon, in this character, exhibits the depth of feeling of which she is capable, and which she has had no opportunity of displaying as the hard and cynical Princess Lydia, Sister Therese, or Lady Maggie Wagstaffe. The acting of Miss Maud Harrison as Mathilde, adds another to the successes this accomplished young lady has achieved in this city. If Miss Harrison would trust a little more to her own talent, and not blindly follow the Neilson standard on all occasions, she would be even more acceptable. Of Mr. Thorne's acting as Rodolph Chandee we have nothing but unqualified praise. Mr. Jennings is amusing as "Meerj" O'Hara, and Mr. Seymour does very respectably as Hector, although, in appearance he reminds one more of Moses Primrose.

EASTERN THEATRICALS.

From the New York Dramatic News we take the following items:

At Niblo's, the "Duke's Motto" is being played, with Samuel Piercy as Lagardere. He gives an excellent performance of the part.

MAZURKA, Countess Bonanza, begins her out-of-town starring tour with Mr. Sargent next week. It is a pity we have had no opportunity of seeing her in "Camille" during her engagement here.

THE variety houses in New York, are doing well. The advent of Lunatic Landis (The Eastern Aibischer) at Tony Pastor's has been the means of nightly introducing to that establishment an accompaniment of vegetables and sulphuretted eggs.

THE unfortunate Watkins Family is playing to still more unfortunate houses, in their everlasting drama of "Trodden Down," at the National, late Globe. Miss Amy Lee is a good little actress, and she should be given the leading female parts, as Miss Rose Watkins is really getting beyond them. Like the case of the Florences, the lady has got to that time of life when she should leave the stage or play puts in keeping with her years. It is absurd to expect interest or sympathy from an audience in the love passages of a lady, who, however good an actress she may be, is beyond the age when this sort of interest can be excited. Rose Watkins belonged to Mitchell's Olympic Company in 1848, and she was then twenty-seven of age.

THE ladies (bless 'em) who brighten the hearths and gladden the homes of the dwellers in the Queen City of the Pacific, justly enjoy the distinction of possessing excellent taste in matters of dress. A walk along Kearny street any afternoon will sufficiently demonstrate this fact to the most casual observer. Whether robed in the silks and other costly fabrics which are the privilege of affluence, or attired in the less pretentious productions of the loom, they are all alike remarkable for neatness and "good style." It is, perhaps in the matter of boots and gloves that they are especially enticing, and in these particulars—the latter for choice—several enterprising citizens take good care that they shall be well supplied. For excellence of make and fitting, promptitude in the execution of orders, and reasonableness of price, no establishment in the glove trade can surpass that of the "Danicheff" Glove Manufactory, at No. 114 1/2 Post street, two doors from the White House. This factory is as well equipped as the most renowned establishment of its kind in Paris, having very complete machinery, a large staff of cutters, sewers, etc. Any lady or gentleman can have their gloves with from 2 to 40 buttons, measured to the exact size of their hands, and delivered to them in two hours. In regard to appearance, durability, etc., these Gloves will be found immeasurably superior to any imported goods.

The Voices of the Night.

I stood on the stoop at midnight
When the gutter was freezing hard,
And a chorus of howls quite deafening
Came from the near back-yard.

I heard the frightful clamor
From the nearest high wood-shed,
Like a chorus of fifty demons,
It pierced into my head.

And far in the sleety distance
Of that cruel winter's night,
The music was re-echoed
From roof-trees clothed in white.

Along the great high fences
Some wavering shadows lay,
And the screams that came from the darkness,
Seemed to rise and bear me away.

And at those yells, uplifted
Into the evening air,
A sickly shudder went through me
That made me clutch my hair.

How often, O how often,
In the nights that had gone by,
Had I listened to that chorus
Until I wished I'd die.

How often, O how often!
I had wished as I did just now,
That I had a brickbat handy
To stop the infernal row.

O for a good breech-bender!
O for a bushel of balm!
To lull them to asleep forever—
Those ———— calls!

—PREF.— R. W.

The Croaking Raven.

The editor of the New York Dramatic News thus moraliseth over the departed year: "A. D. 1877 which has gone is not a year to be remembered for any event of note in our particular sphere. No great artist has risen to occupy the attention of the world. No great play has been written. Nothing upon which the art world should peculiarly congratulate itself has happened. To things theatrical in nearly all portions of the world, 1877 was a year of disaster and gloom, and in no portion of the world more than in our own. Probably not one of our managers has found himself better off on December 31st than he was on the previous 1st of January, while many have been gradually measuring out their fast ebbing means. So far as New York is concerned, this is undoubtedly true. The year saw the downfall of two able managers, John McCullough and Augustin Daly. Of deaths, Titiens is the only great name that passed away. To dramatic art generally it was a lost year." We fear Mr. Byrne is a little "hipped." Perhaps the lobster salad or "the salmon" or something at his Christmas dinner disagreed with him; and dyspeptic people are always inclined to take a melancholy view of things. Last week the News wrote a kind of obituary of the California Theatre, simply because it was announced that some of the useless old fossils had been weeded out of the company. That establishment has certainly suffered reverses of late, but is now flourishing like a green bay tree, and is likely to have a very prosperous season. Now Mr. Byrne talks of the "downfall of McCullough." Surely this is, to say the least, an unauthorized statement. "Genial John" has doubtless been imprudent in making certain engagements, and has perhaps been over lavish in his expenditure; but to rank him with a bankrupt is so outrageously unjust, that we cannot believe Mr. Byrne to have been quite in his sober senses when he permitted his pen to wander so far into the realms of fancy. Take a pill, Mr. Byrne.

Longfellow is said to have received $3,000 for his recent poem "Keramos," and no one will deny that it is "cheap at the price." Equally beautiful in their way, and far more reasonable in cost, are the delightful specimens of the Keramic art to be found in the store of Messrs. O. LAWTON & Co., 609 and 611 Market street, opposite Montgomery. Amongst countless varieties of the most artistically designed ornaments of all descriptions, perhaps the most special admiration is given to the splendid collection of Doulton and Wedgwood Ware which is at present the rage in London and other European cities. An eager crowd always attends the periodical sales of Doulton China, which is elegant in shape and beautifully ornamented.

In addition to a rare collection of pottery and faience, Messrs. Lawton have also in stock an immense assortment of Jewel Cases, Clocks, Bisque Statuettes, Terra Cotta Figures, etc., suitable for Christmas and New Year's Gifts.

BARTLING & KIMBALL

505 Clay Street, San Francisco

Woodward's Gardens.

An excellent programme has been prepared for Saturday and Sunday by the enterprising managers of this popular resort. Among the new attractions are "Willie" Chapman, with his silver rings, and Prof. John Saveniers, cornet soloist, from the Conservatory of Brussels.

Rayther Muddy.

The worst-looking specimen of a Christ-mas drunk ever seen in North America was uncovered in the gray of morning by an officer patrolling around the Randolph street park. His attention being called to what a newsboy declared was "a bust in the pavement," the officer investigated and hauled William Scudder out of the sea of mud. William was speechless, sightless and deafless, and even after he had been drawn around on the sidewalk, scraped with a shingle, loaded on a cart and unloaded at the station, it was scientifically calculated by Bijah that the drunkard had yet clinging to him:

Clear mud.....24 pounds.
Mixed mud.....13 pounds.
Ashes.....3 pounds.
Asphalt.....1 pound.

When morning came and court convened, the prisoner was still sleeping. When noon came his slumbers were even deeper. At night there was a faint show that he might wake up in about a week. At midnight he was heard to turn over, and at daylight on the second morning he opened his eyes and called out:

"Whar's maw?"

When he entered the court room, the dried mud hanging to his hair and sticking to his ears, nose and chin, Bijah stood back and looked him all over and mused:

"If he only had one ear bitten off I'd keep him in the corridor a whole week, and look at him a hundred times a day?"

"I plead guilty," said William as he squinted his sleepy eyes this way and that in search of the court.

Mr. Scudder, get right out doors!" commanded his Honor in an indignant voice.

"Wha' for! Ham't I guilty?"

"Yes, but I won't disgrace the Bar of Michigan by even asking you a legal question! Get out! go away and find a hog and try and make him believe you are his long-lost brother!"

"I won't do 'er! I demand to be tried and sent up."

But Bijah rushed him out, the scales of baked mud flying in every direction, and the prisoner unable to get his heels to the floor. When the door was shut to on him he peered through the glass and shouted:

"I'll be hanged if I don't break into your ole House of Correction before night!"—Detroit Free Press.

BEECHER'S idea that there is no hell is had for newspaper publishers, as so many subscribers may now utterly refuse to pay up, if they have the most remote suspicion that Beecher knows what he is talking about.

JARRETT & Palmer will make close upon $20,000 by their venture at the Academy of Music with "Uncle Tom's Cabin."

MONDAY - - - - - JANUARY 14

Grand Opera House.

"The Regiment of Champagne" will be produced at this theatre to-night, with Miss Minnie Walton in the part of the Huguenot Countess Eliane de Nangis and Messrs. Ed. F. Thorne and T. F. Egberts in the characters of Roger and Bernard, the two sons of the old proscribed Count de Pardailhan, which later part will be assumed by Mr. Grismer. We have already given a synopsis of the plot of "The Regiment of Champagne" in our issue of Saturday last, so that it will suffice on the present occasion to note that the action of the play takes place partly in France and partly in Holland, about the year 1712, and relates to the events connected with the religious struggles of that martial period. The several battle scenes introduced into the play will give an opportunity for much spectacular display, and a number of the company will have a chance of showing their skill in equestrianism. The piece, in fact, partakes largely of the character of a military pageant, and "the pomp and circumstance of glorious war." With a strong cast, and the great advantages for scenic display possessed by the Grand Opera House, the production of "The Regiment of Champagne" in San Francisco bids fair to rival its success in Paris; the more especially as it is announced that the management, with great discretion, have decided to abolish the charge for reserved seats, and to make a general reduction in the prices.

California Theatre.

The "Black Crook" enters upon the fourth week of its wonderfully successful run to-night. It will positively be withdrawn after Saturday and will be succeeded by the grand spectacular conceit, entitled "A Trip to the Moon."

THEATRICAL GOSSIP, Etc.

Signon and Signora Majeroni will commence their engagement at the California Theatre on the 4th proximo.

The seventh anniversary party of the American Club will be held at Union Hall on Monday evening, February 4th. Dancing will commence at 9 o'clock.

The charming little bouffe prima donna, Catherine Lewis, will appear as Porthos this evening at Emerson's Opera House, in the musical extravaganza entitled "The Three Musketeers."

Miss Lizzie L. Clark will give the first of a series of dramatic readings at the Metropolitan Temple to-morrow evening. The lady has a very high Eastern reputation, and a great treat may be confidently expected. Miss Clark will recite, amongst other gems, the much admired poem, "The Pride of Battery B.," by Frank H. Cassaway, Esq.

To console themselves for the loss of the Prophet, the Salt Lake folks are going in heavily for diversions. Mlle. Ilma di Murka, with the re-organized Caroline Richings-Bernard Opera Company, are announced to play in the Mormon Capital from the 14th to the 17th instant. To them succeed Madame Renz's Female Minstrels, from 22d to 24th; followed by the Union Square Company, January 31st. The Kiralfy Company, the Frank Frayne Combination, and Miss Fannie Louise Buckingham-Mazeppa are also underlined as coming attractions.

ARGANDIANA.

FRANK FRAYNE and his dog—Fannie Mazeppa and her horse—and Forepaugh's elephants, have all left us. We are n-happy without some four-footed performers. Bring along Regnier and his wrestling bear.

NINETY-SEVEN babies are said to have been entered for the "show" at Pacific Hall. It is possible that the mothers of these darlings won't be very pacific when the "show" is over and they begin to look for those prizes.

A wag wickedly summarizes the "Man of Success" (Montjoye) as follows:

Act I.....A bad man.
Act II.....A very bad man.
Act III.....A dreadfully bad man.
Act IV.....An emphatic racial.
Act V.....An undoubted villain.
Act VI.....Transformed to goody-goody.

It is announced that George Rabbitt has "seceded" from the cooks and waiters association. No wonder. Histericity in so long running the risk of being served up by his associates is remarkable. Rabbitt would probably have been incontinently stewed with onions if he had not wisely "seceded" in time.

At a meeting of the "Gospel Temperance Reform" movement at Dr. Jewell's Church on Thursday evening, the reverend gentleman is reported to have said that he hated the traffic, (in liquor), hated the ministers that truckled to it, and daily prayed for strength to hate them more. If Dr. Jewell has been correctly reported, the above is rather startling language to come from a minister of the gospel of love.

THE devil can quote scripture for his purpose. So can Mr. Wellock. But such quotations to be of any force should at least be accurate. Such garbled extracts as Mr. Wellock (unless he is incorrectly reported) is in the habit of making are simply sublime trash. However, Wellock is wise in his generation. He knows the capacity of his audience. "Where ignorance is bliss," etc. As he is so fond of talking about "the sword," he might with profit remember the Great Teacher's reproof to Peter, "They that take the sword shall perish by the sword."

GILBERT's new comedy is now being played at the Haymarket Theatre, London. It is called "Engaged," and is a broad satire on everything and everybody. Every scene is a surprise, and each surprise takes a most surprising turn at each change. All of the characters in the play are thoroughly mercenary. Each of them does anything or is willing to do anything for money; from the first scene when Angus surrenders for forty shillings the girl to whom he has just been engaged, to the last when Maggie refuses Cheviot's second offer of marriage because his solicitor tells her that she can make more money by suing him for breach of promise.

PROFESSOR RUDOLPH HEROLD has issued his prospectus for second season of orchestral matinees to be held at the Metropolitan Temple on Fifth street, near Market, commencing on or about the 23d instant. The orchestra will be large, and composed of the best available talent on the coast. The selections, as heretofore, will be from the works of the best masters, ranging from the older classical composers, to the more modern school of music. The subscription lists will be found in the principal music stores of the city. The previous series of concerts under Mr. Herold's direction were most ably directed and enjoyable, and consonant with the projector's well-known ability. A large number of musical novelties will be offered during the forthcoming season.

SAN FRANCISCO, albeit young in comparison with other large cities of the Union, occupies a foremost place in matters of dramatic interest. It is noteworthy that many artists who occupy prominent positions on the American stage began their professional career in this city. The inclination for a Thespian life is very prevalent amongst our young people, and there are a large number of them always "in training" for the stage. Amongst the most successful of teachers in this connection, is Mrs. Julia Melville, who has prepared a great many aspirants to theatrical honors; of whom there are several who have made their mark on the boards. Mrs. Melville is well known as a very talented and painstaking instructor.

EASTERN THEATRICALS, ETC.

The following items are from the New York Dramatic News.

ALL the theatres in Philadelphia are doing well.

ATOESTA SOHLKE, premiere danseuse, is favorably noticed by Toronto papers.

"FREAKS OF FORTUNE," J. C. Williams' new play, will be produced at the Globe Theatre, Boston in February.

MODJESKA extended an invitation to the profession to witness her performance of "Adrienne" at the Fifth Avenue on New Year's afternoon. Seats were furnished on application at the box office.

MR. GUS. WILLIAMS was walking up Broadway hurriedly the other day. He met Len. Grover. They shook hands. "Have you heard my last song?" asked Williams. "I hope so," said Grover.

MA. LEIGH LYSEN, the representative in New York of Baldwin's Theatre, San Francisco, is negotiating with Mr. Samuel Colville for an appearance of the Thompson Company in that city on February 1th. A good certainty has been offered, but there are still several points of detail between the two gentlemen—questions of deposit in advance, transportation, etc.,

"PIPPINS," which was produced at the Globe Theatre, Boston, and claimed by J. Cheever Goodwin as its author, turns out to be nothing more nor less than Francis Talford's "Atalanta," which was brought out at the Haymarket Theatre, London, in 1867. The story is that of "Atalanta," and her race with Melanion or Hippomenes worked over.

FRANK MAYO appeared at the Providence (R. I.) Opera House December 24th, 25th, 26th. "The Three Guardsmen" was given at each performance, excepting at the Christmas matinee, when "Davy Crockett" constituted the bill. The support was good. Ada Gray, who was especially engaged to play Queen Anne of Austria, gave an admirable piece of acting. The average attendance was excellent.

AT GRISWOLD'S Opera House, Troy, New York, holiday week has afforded another specimen of what Mr. Daly is capable of doing, and to what an unlimited extent he will allow duplicity under his own sanction to exist. Flaming posters announcing the Fifth Avenue Theatre Company, in a round of Mr. Augustin Daly's society plays, adorned the streets for two weeks. The people were led to expect something grand, and were promised an exceptionally strong cast. Christmas day matinee was the first performance, and afternoon and evening the house was well filled, but audiences more thoroughly disgusted never assembled in the Griswold, and all felt they had been taken in, and practically deceived. "Lemons" and "Big Bonanza" "with the original cast from the Fifth Avenue Theatre, N. Y." A more contemptible lie and open fraud was never imposed upon a public.

AT the recent performance of Richard III, by the Count Joannes at the Bowery Theatre, N. Y., everybody appeared to be profoundly interested in his movements, and, as an example of the general concern, it may be stated that in the scene with Polonius his classic donk slipped from his shoulder, and instantly a chorus of shrill voices advised him to "button his cluster." In the love scene with Ophelia, that lady was encouraged with "Brace up, Phelia," and tin horns proclaimed the success of Hamlet's denunciation of his slanderers. A very deaf juvenile in the gallery frequently queried: "What der yer say?" but the haughty nobleman disdained to reply. During Hamlet's soliloquy a fog-horn voice, in stentorian tones asked, inquiringly: "Say! What are ye giving us?" This was immediately followed by a salvo of "dry ups" from an upper tier. The crowning act of familiarity, and which might be construed as reflecting upon the Count's sanitary condition, was in the form of a command to "go and take a bath." Some of the audience fearing that Ophelia would succumb to Hamlet's intensely passionate "Get thee to a nunnery," begged him to give us a rest." Thus three hours of intellectual enjoyment and instructive comment resulted from the artistic efforts of the most entertaining tragedian the world has yet furnished.—N. Y. Mercury.

WISE AND OTHERWISE.

THE times are so bad and payments are so rare that the girls complain that the young men cannot even pay their addresses.

Mrs. HAYES doesn't wear low necks, even for full dress.—Star. No; until she is a widow, she don't mean to be addressed as Her Lone Excellency.—Phila. Bulletin.

THE coming dramatic critic must be able faithfully to describe all the stage wardrobes the female "star" is capable of putting on and off during a three hours' performance, or he will not prove a success.—Norr. Herald. How about the critic of the Mazeppa business?

Our Bloomington Letter.

BLOOMINGTON, ILL., Jan. 3, 1878.

ED. FOOTLIGHT:—We have been favored this winter with a greater number of first-class entertainments than ever before. Our two halls, Durley and Shroder's Opera House, have been filled nightly. The "Naïd Queen," by Arthur C. McKnight & Co., have just concluded an engagement of six nights in Durley's Hall. The performances were well attended, and it was a decided success. Miss Muni Dolson as the Naïd Queen, and James Blair as Vestus, were the stars.

The lady Swedish quartet occupied the Opera House for two nights at the close of the week. The concert was very fine and well received.

Lou Benedict's Minstrels in Durley's Hall, December 31st. Poor show, and a poor house.

Neil Bryant's Minstrels in Durley's Hall, January 2d. Good show, and a good house.

The "Dizzie Blondes" will exhibit in the Opera House on Monday, Jan. 7th. They were billed for last Monday, but owing to their success in Chicago they deferred their appearance one week.

NEMO.

MULLER'S SPECTACLE DEPOT, 135 MONTGOMERY STREET.

WHAT A LOVELY FIGURE!—Exactly so; but the secret lies in the splendid fit of the dress. She uses the "DOMESTIC" PAPER FASHIONS. Fall styles now ready, at 29 Post street, between Kearny and Montgomery.

The attention of all suffering from DISEASES OF THE SCALP, or from FALLING OUT OF THE HAIR, is called to the merits of MISS H. A. MOORE'S SCIENTIFIC HAIR PRODUCER. Prepared on purely scientific principles. It will cure all humors and remove all obstructions in the tissue, insuring a rapid and healthy growth of hair. Abundant testimonials furnished at the Depot, 1008 1/2 Market Street.

THE Esthetic tastes of the San Francisco public are being cultivated and ministered to more and more daily. Not only in the palaces which rear their heads unto eternal sky on the shores of Nob Hill, are fine collections of books, flowers, pictures, marbles, mosaics and all the beautiful things that make the charm of life to be found. Art, aided by science, has placed many of these luxuries within the grasp of men who have not yet achieved the distinction of being millionaires, and even the most pretentious and modest home need not be without its adornments in the way of nice ARTS. The Danish terra-cotta work, a large variety of which can be found in the magazines of MASSON, O. LAWTON & CO., 609 & 611 Market street, is amongst the most quaint and admirable of ornaments for the drawing-room tables and elegances. It is very delicately manufactured, and the greatest perfection is arrived at in the limning of the various figures of poets, peasants, warriors, amazons, lions, etc., which are constructed from it. A special supply of this popular ware has been laid in to meet the want of purchasers during the holiday days.

THE ladies (please 'em) who brighten the hearths and gladden the homes of the dwellers in the Queen City of the Pacific, justly enjoy the distinction of possessing excellent taste in matters of dress. A walk along Kearny street any afternoon will sufficiently demonstrate this fact to the most casual observer. Whether robed in the silks and other costly fabrics which are the privilege of affluence, or attired in the less pretentious productions of the loom, they are all alike remarkable for neatness and "good style." It is, perhaps in the matter of boots and gloves that they are specially noticing, and in these particulars—the latter for shoes—several enterprising citizens take good care that they shall be well supplied. For excellence of make and fitting, promptitude in the execution of orders, and reasonableness of price, no establishment in the glove trade can surpass that of the "Danish Heff" (Glove Manufacturers), at No. 114 1/2 Post street, two doors from the White House. This factory is as well equipped as the most renowned establishment of its kind in Paris, having very complete machinery, a large staff of cutters, sewers, etc. Any lady or gentleman can have their gloves made from 2 to 40 buttons, measured to the exact size of their hands, and delivered to them in two hours. In regard to appearance, durability, etc., these gloves will be found immeasurably superior to any imported goods.

Our Sacramento Letter.

SACRAMENTO, January 10, 1878.
ED. FOOTLIGHT:—The Frank Frayne combination arrived in town yesterday from Marysville, and are quartered at the Orleans Hotel. We are always pleased to greet old faces, many of whom compose this excellent company. They appeared to a crowded and enthusiastic audience last night. Even Jack, the dog, seemed to appreciate the situation, and gave his "lines," made his entrances and exits, and acted his role throughout with that perfection which at once stamped him as a steady and reliable devotee of his art, one whom managers fain would meet with often. The enthusiasm of the audience upon the first representation of "Si Sloeum," was unbounded. It was gratifying to all present to be so agreeably surprised in finding an actress personating the character of Ruth Sloeum; and Miss A. Adams certainly deserves credit for a neat and admirable portrayal. Adieu Fisk. The Frank Frayne combination, after leaving Oakland, played at Santa Cruz, San Jose, Stockton and Marysville prior to opening here, and report says to only fair business, owing to the fact that other combinations of a similar sensational line having played there years before. The field is open to all, but the company now with us, deserves to be considered "par excellence." They will close here on Sunday night; and, as their engagement with Mr. Locke closes, will proceed East. They contemplate playing at Salt Lake, Cheyenne and St. Louis, closing the season with one week in Chicago, two weeks in Canada and two weeks with John Ellsler in the Oil Regions. Mr. Frayne and family will then retire to their farm in Pennsylvania.

General W. B. Barton, the able partner with Mr. Locke, is at the Orleans' to-day, en route for the East on business connected with their theatrical enterprises.

Miss Mary Fisk passed through here to-day on the train bound East.

Madame M. A. N. Pollard arrived at the Orleans Hotel Tuesday evening. She will leave shortly on a professional tour East; prior to which she may lecture or give some of her inimitable readings in character, for the entertainment of Sacramentoans.

The Daily Dramatic News of this city, appeared again yesterday, after a suspension of ten days. Some of the advertisers would not consent to pay for the time when the theatre was closed.

Mr. Locke has surrendered his lease of the Metropolitan Theatre, having lost quite enough money on the investment. He will play his attractions in Sacramento hereafter, renting the theatre when required. Had he met with sufficient encouragement to warrant the undertaking, a first-class entertainment would have kept the doors of our theatre open throughout the entire season. Doubtless some of our theatre-goers desire to witness the performance of the Union Square Company, now at Baldwin's, but it is a question "which no feller can find out," whether it would pay for them to play here for one night, for it must be remembered that this company is an expensive one, and no manager can afford to bring them here and play to empty benches.

Grand Opera House.

The magnificent spectacular play "The Regiment of Champagne," was produced last night to a crowded and highly delighted audience. Owing to the repeated and careful rehearsals, the whole play went with perfect smoothness, and the curtain fell in good season for those who wanted to catch the Oakland boat. The scenery is marvellously handsome, and the great military scenes of the "Defence of the Standard," and the Battle of Landrecies are excellently presented. The play (of which we gave a sketch in our Saturday's issue) relates to certain episodes in the history of the Regiment of Champagne during the prolonged struggle between La Grande Monarque and the States General of Holland, assisted by their British allies under Albemarle, in the earlier years of the Eighteenth Century. The province of Champagne, which to-day is divided into the departments of the Ardennes, Aube, and Marne, with part of the Seine-et-Marne, Meuse, Aisne, and Yonne, has always, from its geographical position, been the theatre of hostile operations; and like Alsace and Lorraine, has suffered severely in consequence. In the wars of the Sixteenth Century, in the campaigns of 1814, and later still, in the bloody struggle in 1870, Champagne has been afflicted with all the horrors which inevitably attend the last argument of Kings. The battle of Landrecies, in which the Regiment of Champagne covered themselves with glory, took place not far from Sedan; and Prince Eugene's colleagues, Lord Albemarle and the German Princes, surrendered to Marshal Villars on nearly the same ground where a century and a half later "the man of December" gave up his sword to victorious Kaiser Wilhelm. The various passions of love, hate, military ardor, state craft and intrigue all find a place in the Regiment of Champagne. Miss Clara Jean Walters, who, at very short notice, undertook the part, makes a very good representative of the intriguing Countess Elise; and in the character of Captain Roger, Mr. Edward Thorne finds an opportunity for the display of that soldierly and good humored bravado, which belongs to him naturally, and which was apparent in his impersonation of the gallant and reckless D'Artagnan. The rest of the cast is efficiently sustained, and the play may be considered very successful altogether. The noble chargers behave admirably, and are as steady as tho' they had been accustomed to the smell of gunpowder and the din of battle all their lives.

California Theatre.

There was a large audience last evening at the California Theatre, in spite of the unfavorable condition of the weather. "The Black Crook" will cease to occupy the boards after this week. On Monday next, "A Trip to the Moon."

NEXT to John McCullough and Dion Boucicault, Happy Jack Harrington is now the best advertised man in California. His "dive" is situated on the corner of— but no, we won't say anything more until he comes "to see us."

THEATRICAL GOSSIP, ETC.

Miss Minnie Walton has abruptly terminated her engagement at the Grand Opera House, in consequence of a difference with the stage manager.

Mr. C. Rice, while riding at night on a train, experienced a sudden impulse to hug his wife, who was sleeping beside him. He was well rewarded, for an engine came dashing along at the moment, which tore away one side of the compartment. Had it not been for his motion towards his wife, he would have been struck and killed.

"Ye Olde Folkes" announce a series of seven "costume" concerts to take place at the Metropolitan Temple, beginning on Thursday evening next. Miss Ella Seager, Miss Leonore Simons, Miss Hattie Moore, Miss Marion Singer, Harry Gates, M. B. Curtis, and the Clark family will assist. Mr. W. H. Kinross will be the musical director.

SEVERAL theatrical costumers were on hand lately at an auction sale, to buy a Russian sable cloak, made for an unnamed "royal personage." It was composed of 115 of the choicest skins. One customer bid as high as £200, and private bids sent it up to £450, at which price it was bid in by the owner.

THE Chicago Post is charmed with the particularly luxurious way in which Rose Eytinge, as Cleopatra, falls into the arms of her lover at Haverly's Theatre. It also criticises a buffalo robe which was hung as the only ornament at the palace scene. A buffalo robe in tropical Egypt, and seventeen hundred years before a buffalo was ever seen, except by Indians, is good, —Er.

THE first of the series of Grand Opera House Sunday evening concerts at popular prices, under the direction of the popular musical conductor, Mr. H. Widmer, will be given next Sunday evening, the 20th inst. A splendid selection of sacred and secular themes will be rendered by the orchestra of manager Kennedy's fine theatre, assisted by a number of the most accomplished musicians in the city. The entertainments will be a real treat for all lovers of the divine art, and will assuredly suit the public taste.

MR. J. C. FRYER, manager of the Pappenheim Opera Troupe, who so mysteriously disappeared a few days ago, has turned up in St. Louis. There are several unpleasant stories going the rounds—one that he contracted some debts in New Orleans and unsuccessfully applied to Leigh Lynch (Tom Maguire's agent) for the loan of $4,000 on account of an engagement to play in San Francisco in March; another, that he disappeared several years ago in the same manner when business was poor. His interest in this trip was based on prospective profits and as the receipts only paid expenses and at Louisville ran short, he wanted to break up them and disband. Sixty-two persons were in the troupe and were almost famished on reaching Louisville.

THE Union Square Company, at Baldwin's, appear this evening in "Les Danichefs." To-morrow the romantic play the "Geneva Cross" will be presented, in which Mr. C. R. Thorne will appear as Riel Du Bourg. The engagement of this company at Baldwin's terminates on the 26th inst. Mr. Thorne denies that he had declined to play after last Saturday evening in consequence of the leading part in the new French play, "Un Cause Celebre," having been given to his rival, Mr. Coghlan. Mr. Thorne asserts that he has never been jealous of Mr. Coghlan's success; and that Messrs. Shook & Palmer have had no notion of supplanting him (Mr. Thorne) as leading man of the Union Square. The fact is that Mr. Wallack and Boucicault are desirous to secure Mr. Thorne as leading man in the place of the great Lester, W., who contemplates retiring from the stage; but altho' it would be to Mr. Thorne's interest (pecuniarily) to accept such an offer, he would on no account withdraw from his present engagement with the management of the Union Square Theatre, except under such conditions as would be consistent with his own feelings of honor and with professional etiquette. It is to be regretted that any such story (arising, no doubt, in a great degree from coulisse gossip) should have obtained publicity.

ARGANDIANA.

APPARENTLY Boucicault is not satisfied with pirating plays. He wants to pirate actors also, as appears from the correspondence published relative to the Thorne-Coghlan business.

OUR worst fears are realized! Joe Diomed has "sworn off"—and for a year, too. The announcement has caused the most profound depression at Myers' and other resorts of plutocratic politicians.

MR. S. ARTHUR BENT, late English editor of Galigiani's Messenger, (Paris), now of Boston, has adapted a five act drama from the German, entitled "Anna Lisa." Negotiations for the production of the same are now pending. It is, of course, of the adventures of Mrs. Brigham Young that the play treats.

"SUNDAY bull fights are the rage in San Francisco. The hours are arranged conveniently for morning church-goers."—Portland Bee. Nothing like industry in the pursuit of news, O Bee! but pray be a little careful as to its correctness. It isn't every Sunday that the "bull fights" are the rage, only every other one. The bears take the alternate Sundays to settle their little differences.

AN amateur musical critic tells what he knows about a temperance concert, in the columns of a contemporary, as follows: "The concert commenced with a Solipsism, the extraneous modulation of which struck us as being too pneumatic, but it was well sung, con impeto doloroso. The Misses Bifkin then played a duet a quattro mani, in which the appoggiaturas were very appassionato. They have played in public for many years, and last Sunday was their first debut. Mr. Elijah Wells has a fine double counterpoint voice, which he displayed to great advantage in that well-known fugue, 'The Old Sexton.' As a fuguist he probably has no rival in America. His auxiliary notes were also much admired."

Our Sacramento Letter.

SACRAMENTO, Jan. 12, 1878.

ED. FOOTLIGHT:—It is with pleasure that I am justified in announcing one success of a dramatic engagement in this city, and a deserving one at that; in the Frank Frayne combination which has played here for three nights with a matinee and two evening performances to come. The surest indication of their having met with popular favor, is that the audiences have increased in number with each performance. "Si Slocum" is presented in good taste, and enacted by a fine company. It is truly refreshing to look upon some new settings in scenery. "Si Slocum" is full of humor, abounds in pathos and presents many striking and natural situations. The shooting of the Frayne family, the precocity of their child, and correct deportment of the dog Jack, are the drawing elements of their play. The result is their patronage is confined to no class, but draws equally from all, which is rarely the case with plays of this character. It is a good lesson for all who come to Sacramento to fix in their memory and be governed by hereafter.

The local musical and vocal talent of this city have in rehearsal the cantata of "Esther," which will be given at the Metropolitan Theatre Wednesday and Thursday evenings, January 19th and 17th. Mrs. R. K. Marriner and Mr. W. C. Campbell of San Francisco will take part therein.

Professor Gunning, of Boston, Mass., gave his third geological lecture last night to a fine audience at the Congregational church, and is announced for a fourth on Monday next. Subject: "The origin of Animals, or, Darwinism in the Light of Pacific Coast Geology."

The Howard Benevolent Association, propose to give an entertainment for their annual benefit, to take place at the Pavilion the latter part of this month. Professor Davidson of the United Coast Survey, is to deliver a course of lectures on "Irrigation" in the Assembly Chamber, the first to be given on the evening of the 16th inst.

VIATOR.

The attention of all suffering from DISEASES OF THE SCALP, or from FALLING OUT OF THE HAIR, is called to the merits of MRS. H. A. MOORE'S SCIENTIFIC HAIR PRODUCER. Prepared on purely scientific principles. It will cure all humors and remove all obstructions in the tissues, insuring a rapid and healthy growth of hair. Abundant testimonials furnished at the Depot, 1008 1/2 Market Street.

EASTERN THEATRICALS.

THE Olympic Theatre has collapsed. The main reason is said to be a rigid enforcement of the liquor law, there being a bar attached to the theatre.

SAM PIERRY has made an excellent hit as Lagardere, in the "Duke's Motto." Niblo's is crowded every night, and one recently he played to an audience of over two thousand people.

For several months Andy McKee had a ravenous appetite. The more he ate the more he wanted to eat, and he kept getting thinner. He couldn't understand it. He called on Dr. Adams Neisingheimer, of Newport, Ky., a day or so before Christmas, and began taking the doctor's medicine. On Christmas day after the matinee he called at the doctor's office. Result, tape worm 109 feet long.

MADAME MARIE ROZE, the opera prima donna, arrived here December 30th, in the "Republic," and will appear as Leonora in "La Favorita" in Philadelphia January 8th, under management of Max Strakosch. She gave a concert on the steamer for the benefit of the Seaman's Orphan Institution, and another towards presenting a testimonial to Captain Perry. The concert and subscriptions realized $300, with which a set of silver was to be purchased. Madame Roze will return to England in the spring for the London season, and will also sing in Paris during the Exposition.

THE Eagle Theatre, having succumbed to the demand for lower prices, is doing a good business, notwithstanding that Boucicault is playing to cheap admissions. He is opposed to the reduction of prices, and says he believes managers could not live if prices were reduced. Most of the managers are against the reduction for the same reason, and say it would not add to business; yet, it is a fact, that the theatres which have come down are doing remarkably well, and the others but moderately. For instance, on Saturday night the Grand Opera House and Niblo's, at reduced admission, had a combined audience of 4,933 people, as against 4,440 in the Union Square, Wallack's, Fifth Avenue, Eagle, Broadway and Park combined, at the old rates.

OPERA GLASSES OF HIGH POWER AT MULLER'S.

HOFFMAN'S AUCTION HOUSE, 608 Market street.—Gentlemen's White and Colored Shirts, of the finest kinds, at from 75c to $1; worth double the price.

WHAT A LOVELY FIGURE!—Exactly so; but the secret lies in the splendid fit of the dress. She uses the "DOMESTIC" PATTERNS. Fall styles now ready, at 29 Post street, between Kearny and Montgomery.

THE spectacle stores of MESSRS. O. LAWTON & CO., on Market street, Nos. 609 and 611, are daily crowded from morning until evening, with multitudes of people, all anxious to become the possessors of some of the myriads of useful and ornamental articles, which are to be found there in such profusion. The beginning of the New Year naturally brings in a large influx of visitors from the country, and they, as well as everybody else, are charmed with the beauty of the various descriptions of drawing-room and parlor ornaments, which are here displayed. The show of Minton's majolica, a species of china which has attained the highest celebrity amongst connoisseurs, and which has for some time been "all the rage" in London, is very varied and extensive. The wonderful beauty of this kind of china is well known and appreciated, and it forms one of the handsomest possible ornaments of an elegantly furnished house.

THE ladies (bless 'em) who brighten the hearths and gladden the houses of the dwellers in the Queen City of the Pacific, justly enjoy the distinction of possessing excellent taste in matters of dress. A walk along Kearny street any afternoon will sufficiently demonstrate this fact to the most casual observer. Whether robed in the silks and other costly fabrics which are the privilege of affluence, or attired in the less pretentious productions of the loom, they are all alike remarkable for neatness and "good style." It is, perhaps in the matter of boots and gloves that they are specially enticing, and in these particulars—the latter for choice—several enterprising citizens take good care that they shall be well supplied. For excellence of make and fitting, promptitude in the execution of orders, and reasonableness of price, no establishment in the glove trade can surpass that of the "Danicheff" Glove Manufactory, at No. 114 1/2 Post street, two doors from the White House. This factory is as well equipped as the most renowned establishment of its kind in Paris, having very complete machinery, a large staff of cutters, sewers, etc. Any lady or gentleman can have their gloves with from 2 to 40 buttons, measured to the exact size of their hands, and delivered to them in two hours. In regard to appearance, durability, etc., these gloves will be found immeasurably superior to any imported goods.

Literary Banquet.

Victor Hugo gave a dinner lately in Paris to Mlle. Bernhardt, after the performance of his chef d'œuvre "Hernani." The dinner was emphatically for her and to her; so, to make assurance doubly sure, no other lady was invited. Fancy in prosaic America a hundred and fifty gentlemen, comprising all there is in France of the highest nobility, of title, wealth, literature, art, and science, waiting for a tall, cold, dark Jewess, whose entrance is greeted by that hush and suppressed breathing which is more eloquent than the loudest ovation. She is thin, nay, emaciated, possessing indefinable magnetism, which sways the audience as the wind a reed. Her gloomy, fiery eyes look from under a mass of raven hair, her slightest gesture has a deep meaning, and underneath it all lies a power she holds in reserve. You feel it always; there is ever a conviction that had she a mind she could take more absolute possession of your soul than she does; she makes you thrill, she might make you rave; you weep, she has it in her power to make you feel such anguish as a man on the rack. She is dressed in crepe, embroidered with immense pearls. She is perfectly at her ease, with that inimitable grace inborn in a Frenchwoman; she takes the seat at the right hand of Hugo, as if she were at the head of her own table; she nods and smiles at her admirers; while M. Hugo makes a most complimentary speech, she has on her face merely the smile of a well-bred woman of society, who is listening to a fade flattery. Victor ends his speech with the toast, "La France et l'Art Français." The peculiar French cheer follows the sentiment, and convives enjoy a really good dinner at the Grand Hotel. Mlle. Bernhardt holds a reception afterwards; utterly unembarrassed, she distributes her smiles, her few precious remarks as judiciously as any lady of the grande monde. When one recalls the giggling actresses one meets in private life, their fads, their airs, their mock manners of good society, a man feels like prostrating himself and touching reverentially with the ends of his luxuriant moustache that marvellous pearl-satin drapery which envelops the actress of Paris.—Boston Opera Glass.

Ada Ward Arrested.

A great sensation was created in Sydney, N. S. W., on the 11th of December, on its becoming known that the popular actress, Miss Ada Ward, had been arrested for debt, and lodged in jail pending payment of the amount due. It appears that Miss Ward has for some time had as an admirer a Russian Count, or a person representing himself as such. She seems to have accepted the attentions of this worthy, and to have made herself responsible for his debts for clothing and other articles. This amiable nobleman suddenly shipped away to New Caledonia on the quiet, and the actress had to pay his hotel bill, which was very large. This, it seems, drained her purse considerably, and Miss Ward was unable to meet the claim upon which she was arrested. She, however, admits her liability, and expresses an intention to pay, but in the meantime the creditors will not relax the law in the slightest degree, and intend to keep the lady in jail until she pays. Much sympathy is expressed for her, and it is likely that a subscription will be started to pay the debt and secure her release.

California Theatre.

After this week there will be no further opportunity of seeing the wonderful spectacle of "The Black Crook" at the California Theatre. It is intended to withdraw it after the Saturday evening performance; and on Monday the California patrons will be afforded an opportunity of leaving terra firma for a time, and taking "A Trip to the Moon." In this spectacle will be produced a number of new and startling scenes and stage effects, such as the mountains of the moon, an air ship, rainbows, etc.

Grand Opera House.

"The Regiment of Champagne" is drawing good houses. The play is brilliant as to mounting, and breezy as to dialogue. The situations are dramatic and effective, and the piece is well suited to so large a theatre. It will be repeated every evening during the week.

Emerson's Opera House.

"The Three Musketeers," with Miss Catherine Lewis as Porthos, was produced at this theatre on Monday. The bright, saucy little lady is an excellent singer, and it is a veritable pleasure to witness her performances. Miss Adah Richmond and the rest of the company constitute a decided foil; but Miss Lewis' tractile power seems sufficient to compensate people for having to hear the infliction of their tawdry appearance, harsh voices, and coarse jokes as an adjunct of the entertainment.

THEATRICAL GOSSIP, Etc.

Chicago's baby show nearly ruined its managers.

CHARMING Kate Lewis is very suggestive of Aimee.

HELLER, the magician, recently lost $30,000 by the failure of a Boston mercantile house.

ALICE OATES cried like a baby when she found that somebody hadn't put a new husband in her stocking.

IMPICO is being roughly handled by the London press because he was once a barber.—Boston Society.

HARRY MEREDITH says that there will be no fight with Rankin unless it is with stuffed clubs from the property room.

THE Philadelphia Sunday World says that Mr. Boucicault don't believe in hell. He is writing another play for Wallack.

THE Arcadian says "Miss Eleanor Carey, who will play the leading feminine roles during Booth's engagement, is a young actress of much personal beauty and rare histrionic gifts. She was a favorite in Australia, and was last season a member of the Grand Opera House Company in San Francisco. She is now under engagement as leading lady of John T. Ford's Theatres, at Baltimore and Washington, and appears here by special arrangement with Mr. Ford. Miss Carey is a lady in private life, and in the present temper of the public, it is from this class that managers have been selecting their attractions. And fair Eleanor is "attractive," in every sense of the word. We feel sure that now that she has the opportunity, we shall hear great things of her. Ed. FOOTLIGHT.]

ARGANDIANA.

We congratulate our crisp little contemporary and namesake of Virginia City on the complete "stopper" it has put on that item about the "Bird that Caused a Divorce."

THE first "Olde Folkes Concert," under the direction of Mr. W. H. Kinross, will take place at the Metropolitan Temple, Fifth and Jessie streets, on January 17th. An excellent programme is announced, and the entertainment bids fair to be of an extremely high class.

THE national colors were displayed at half mast yesterday on the Custom House and other public buildings; and the flags of the various Foreign Consulates were similarly displayed as a mark of respect to the memory of the late Sovereign of Italy. Half hour guns were fired from the saluting battery at Alcatraz Island during the day.

A DISASTROUS boiler explosion occurred lately on board a steamer in the harbor of Victoria, Hong Kong, from the effects of which, eighty-six persons (mostly Chinese) have since died. It appears that some hundred bags of California flour were used by the surgeons in endeavoring to alleviate the sufferings of the scalded people, and a story is current that the native attendants subsequently sold the flour which had been so used, to a wholesale bakery in the neighboring Portuguese colony of Macao. This story is doubtless untrue, but that it should have obtained credence at all, is an apt illustration of the peculiar ideas on the subject of Chinese habits, which obtain amongst many people.

A CORRESPONDENT of the Graphic says that hunting is becoming a fashionable sport for women in France. The majority of these female disciples of St. Hubert, when going out for a day's shooting, appear in simply a short dress and high boots; but some have adopted a special costume ad hoc, which merits attention. It is composed of a blouse a la Russe, of colored velvet, fastened around the waist by a leather belt and metal buckle. Large, loose Zouave trousers, stuffed into leggings of the same material as the blouse complete the costume. The boots are made of leather of the same shade as the rest of the suit, and fastened with bright metal buttons, which glitter in the sun. But it is not only by the presence of their beauty that the fair daughters of France have rendered shooting in that country a far more agreeable pastime than it was heretofore. They bring with them a spirit of refinement, of elegance, of good taste, and good breeding, both in conversation and manners, which are quite unknown in gatherings composed entirely of male Gauls.

By the courtesy of the artist, Mr. Hermann Stender, we have been afforded a private view of his very meritorious work, "Lear mourning over the dead body of Cordelia." The picture represents the aged and sorrow-stricken monarch of Britain kneeling on the heather, supporting on his bosom the inanimate form of his cherished child; whilst in his desolate agony he exclaims:

"Cordelia, Cordelia! stay a little,
Hie! what is't thou say'st?
Her voice was ever soft,
Gentle and low, an excellent thing in woman."

Mr. Stender is an artist of good ability and considerable originality of conception; of which his "Lear" gives abundant proof. The rugged and furrowed features of the old King are depicted with a masterly freedom, and the anxious listening expression of the face is well rendered. The form of Cordelia, draped in some soft fabric of a tint like that of the late autumn leaves, and leaving the voluptuous bust and the lovely face uncovered, is drawn with much accuracy as to contour. Her golden hair streams in masses over the regal mantle, and the eyes are closed. The flesh tints are well chosen, and the chastened style of coloring generally is applied with much discretion, and harmonizes with the gloomy wintry sky, which forms the background. Mr. Stender is a German artist who has studied at the Düsseldorf school of art, and has but lately come to this country. We hope to see some further specimens of his undoubted talent very soon.

MODJESKA has made a great success at the Fifth Avenue Theatre, New York, in "Camille." A telegram dated January 25th, says: "Modjeska's 'Camille,' at the Fifth Avenue Theatre last night, received the very highest praise from the papers this morning. The Tribune says: The part has never been acted on the American stage with more pure fervor and splendidly passionate expression than with which Mme. Modjeska represented it. Her support is generally condemned."

THE St. Louis Herald of January 5th, has the following: "Among those who received calls on the first, perhaps none enjoyed themselves better, or received more henteux novice honours, than did the charming young ladies who received with Miss Lottie Franklin, at her home on Pine street." Just so! Any charming young lady who failed to enjoy herself with a lot of "henteux novice honours" would be very hard to please. That's the way it strikes us, at any rate. We believe there are not any "henteux novice honours" in San Francisco, but our girls get along pretty well on jewelry, candy, and moonlight drives to the Cliff. Won't Miss Lottie Franklin and her charming friends kindly tell us what kind of henteux fete a "henteux novice honours" is, anyway. Perpend, Oh Herald!

THE Arcadian administrators to us a well mannered rebuke, for having, as it says, "taken the Arcadian to task for saying that the 'Danicheffs' was not a success at Baldwin's Opera House;" and then goes on to the announcement of the nightly receipts at the box office, which, says the Arcadian, "ought certainly to be within the knowledge of a San Francisco paper." We humbly submit that in our primitive arcadian simplicity we have fallen into the absurd error of imagining that the artistic success of a play counted for something; even tho' the treasury should not be very plethoric. The Arcadian made the sweeping and unqualified assertion that the "Danicheffs" had been "unsuccessful;" and it was merely as a protest against the implied want of good taste and judgment on the part of our public contained in that assertion, that we "put in a demurrer." We avail ourselves (as the diplomatists say) of this occasion to congratulate the Arcadian on its excellent appearance, both typographically and editorially; and beg leave to convey the assurance of our most distinguished consideration. May the Arcadian pipe to good purpose sacra saeculorum.

"SOUND the loud timbrel!" and let the daughters of Judah rejoice and sing! Aibischer has at last received the appreciation due to his talent and must now be accepted by all the land as the tragedian of the day. This hitherto derided hero has received the stamp of success from no less an authority than the critic of the Portland (Oregon) Bee, who speaking of Aibischer's appearance at the New Market Theatre lately, says: "The finest thing of the evening, however, was the fourth act of 'The Merchant of Venice,' in which Mr. Aibischer made his first appearance in the role of Shylock, the Jew. His fame had preceded him to the city, and all present expected something unusually fine, nor were they disappointed. It was a most creditable rendition, and was received with great favor by every one present. His impersonations of triumph, defeat, and final humility, were faultless, and stamped him at once as a careful, conscientious actor." After this the feeble critics of San Francisco (and also the idiotic public who have persistently declined to recognize this great actor) should hide their diminished heads.

As a means of alleviating suffering the splendid contrivance patented by the California Elastic Truss company, whose office is at 615 Sacramento street, San Francisco, is deserving of the most intelligent attention of the medical profession and all persons having the misfortune to suffer from rupture. Without question it is the most perfect truss that has been invented, as it causes no pain or unpleasant pressure, can be worn easily, directly assists in effecting a permanent cure without the aid of medicine, and immediately relieves the suffering and inconvenience which it is the nature of rupture to produce. This truss has secured the indorsement of the medical faculty and is rapidly replacing all other contrivances for the same purpose.

EASTERN THEATRICALS, ETC.

A LAUNDRESS at one of the New York hotels was formerly a member of the original Lydia Thompson troupe and used to captivate all the young men in the audience by her beauty and cleverness. Now she vexes them by washing their shirts badly.

It has been definitely decided to succeed the "Man of Success," at the Union Square Theatre, with Adolph D'Ennery's latest Parisian success, "Une Cause Celebre." It was produced in the French capital on the 14th ult., and achieved almost instantaneous success. Marston is at work on the scenery, Canzuran on the translation, and the roles of the piece are being assigned to the various members of Mr. Palmer's company. The piece has two prologues.—Arcadian

Our Sacramento Letter.

SACRAMENTO, Jan. 14, 1878.

ED. FOOTLIGHT:—The Frank Frayne combination closed an otherwise successful engagement here on Sunday evening, playing then to a poor house; which should convince every one that it is poor policy to try and draw an audience in this city on a Sunday evening. I have seen the theatre packed to suffocation on Sunday evenings to enjoy an entertainment of the variety order, when given by a Father Mathew society, with admission at ten cents.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Frayne, Robert E. Frayne, Frankie Frayne and their manager, Charles A. Wing, left on the overland train this afternoon for Salt Lake City. Frank Lawlor, Mark Thall, Miss Adams, Miss Montgomery, Mrs. Flechter, H. M. Brown, Willie Sims and others left for San Francisco this morning. We have no knowledge of future entertainments beyond the cantata of Esther to be given on Monday and Thursday evenings of this week. VIATOR.

OPERA GLASSES OF HIGH POWER AT MULLER'S.

SILKS, VELVETS and LACES are sold cheaper at the Fourth Street Auction Store, Nos. 52 and 54 Fourth street, than any other place in the city.

REMOVAL OF BAZAAR PATTERNS AGENCY 1073 Market street, in the Howe sewing Machine office; Fall and winter patterns received.

HOFFMAN'S AUCTION HOUSE, 608 Market street.—Gentlemen's White and Colored Shirts, of the finest kinds, at from 75c. to $1, worth double the price.

WHAT A LOVELY FIGURE!—Exactly so; but the secret lies in the splendid fit of the dress. She wears the "DOMESTIC" PAPER FASHIONS. Fall styles now ready, at 29 Post street, between Kearny and Montgomery.

THE spacious stores of MESSRS. O. LAWTON & CO., on Market street, Nos. 609 and 611, are daily crowded from morning until evening, with multitudes of people, all anxious to become the possessors of some of the myriads of useful and ornamental articles, which are to be found there in such profusion. The beginning of the New Year naturally brings in a large influx of visitors from the country, and they, as well as everybody else, are charmed with the beauty of the various descriptions of drawing-room and parlor ornaments, which are here displayed. The show of Minton majolica, a species of china which has attained the highest celebrity amongst connoisseurs, and which has for some time been "all the rage" in London, is very varied and extensive. The wonderful beauty of this kind of china is well known and appreciated, and it forms one of the handsomest possible ornaments of an elegantly furnished house.

THE ladies (bless 'em) who brighten the hearths and gladden the homes of the dwellers in the Queen City of the Pacific, justly enjoy the distinction of possessing excellent taste in matters of dress. A walk along Kearny street any afternoon will sufficiently demonstrate this fact to the most casual observer. Whether robed in the silks and other costly fabrics which are the privilege of affluence, or attired in the less pretentious productions of the loom, they are all alike remarkable for neatness and "good style." It is, perhaps in the matter of boots and gloves that they are especially enticing and in these particulars—the latter for choice—several enterprising citizens take good care that they shall be well supplied. For excellence of make and fitting, promptitude in the execution of orders, and reasonableness of price, no establishment in the glove trade can surpass that of the "Danicheff" Glove Manufactory, at No. 114 1/2 Post street, two doors from the White House. This factory is as well equipped as the most renowned establishment of its kind in Paris, having very complete machinery, a large staff of cutters, sewers, etc. Any lady or gentleman can have their gloves with from 2 to 48 buttons, measured to the exact size of their hands, and delivered to them in two hours. In regard to appearance, durability, etc., these gloves will be found immeasurably superior to any imported goods.

WEEKS AFTER MARRIAGE.

My dearest, you are going out?
Indeed, 'tis very cold;
Let me, sweet love, around your neck
This handkerchief enfold.

You know how anxious for your health,
My own dear George, am I;
One loving kiss before we part.
Good-by, sweet chuck, good-by!

THREE YEARS AFTER MARRIAGE.

You're going out!—why don't you go?
I couldn't help the rain.
You wouldn't grieve me mightily
To ne'er come back again!

Umbrella? I don't know where 'tis!
What'll you want next, I wonder?
Don't pester me about your cold;
Good gracious!—go to thunder.

PHIL. WORLD.

Our Buffalo Letter.

BUFFALO, January 6th, 1878.

ED. FOOTLIGHT:—Mrs. D. P. Bowers played in "Lady Audley's Secret" Monday and Tuesday of last week, and was ably assisted by Mr. McCollum and a fair company. For the remainder of the week we had "Otto," or "A Game of Chance," a play written expressly for three characters. Geo S. Knight, dialect comedian, and the Worrell sisters (Sophie and Irene), the rest of the cast is only a back ground. Nevertheless, the performance was good; Mr. Knight, as Otto Rutger, being constantly before the footlights, kept the audience in laughter all the time; but we cannot help thinking that they are out of their element when not in a variety theatre, and that they seemed much more at home when doing the song and dance business, with which the play is interspersed.

Denman Thompson and his company perform here this week; and afterwards Miss Kate Claxton, the fire queen, will honor us with a call.

Shelby ran a pantomime, "Flick and Flock," at his theatre last week, which drew crowded houses. H. W. H.

"27."

Capt. Ahrens, a neat, nice little blonde of an ex-Prussian officer, best known to fame as husband to Pappenheim, caused a laughable little error at a hotel in Memphis on the 26th. Going to the steward the captain said: "I want supper for twenty-seven after te opera do-nidt." "Certainly, sir." "Te finest you can ged up, mint!" "Certainly, sir." The opera was over and the cantatrice was going to her room. The head waiter steps out, shows his ivory and bows. "They are ready madame." "What?" questioned the lady. "The twenty-seven suppers you ordered." "Me?" "Your husband ordered them, madame." "No, not twenty-seven supper, but doo supper for numper twenty seven room, I order," said the little captain, as he came up with his sponse's wraps. An explanation followed. The cantatrice's room was number twenty-seven, but the steward understood the captain to mean twenty-seven suppers, there being twenty-seven members of the troupe staying at the hotel. The bill was settled.—Memphis Avalanche.

California Theatre.

The "blessed rain," of course, keeps a large number of people away from the theatres of an evening; but still the "Black Crook" is so attractive that the house has been moderately well filled. The magical glitter of the mise en scene, the voluptuous display of the feminine form divine, the exquisite scenery, and the enchanting ballet, will cause the "Black Crook" to be long remembered. Only four more performances will be given; the last on Saturday evening. The rehearsals of "A Trip to the Moon" are nearly completed, and the piece will be produced on Monday.

Grand Opera House.

The military instincts of our theatre-goers are evidently in accord with the scenes delineated in the drama of "The Regiment of Champagne," at the Grand Opera House. In spite of the very uninviting condition of the weather, the big theatre was again well filled yesterday evening, and as the play has now been submitted to a judicious course of pruning as to dialogue, it goes with a good deal of smoothness. The whole of the cast act with much spirit and intelligence. Miss Annie Pixley makes a matchless Madelon, and infuses an immense amount of "go" into the piece. She is all to nothing the "star" of the company at present. Miss Elsie Moore is an "interesting" Petit Jacques. The battle scenes are very effective; and the final tableau is especially commendable.

THEATRICAL GOSSIP, ETC.

Mr. J. B. Polk plays a trivial part in "The Man of Success" so neatly and artistically, that it is meet he should receive especial recognition for it.—Puck.

THE San Francisco Company of the Lafayette Guard will give a masked ball at Lafayette Hall, 730 Montgomery street, on Saturday, the 26th inst., for the benefit of the Lafayette Benevolent Society. Every arrangement has been made to assure the success of the entertainment, which will be one of the most brilliant reunions of the season.

THE first Old Folks Costume Concert takes place at the Metropolitan Temple this evening at 8 o'clock. The musical arrangements are under the direction of Mr. W. H. Kinross, the talented chef d'orchestre of the Bush Street Theatre, to whose careful and energetic training the choir of madrigal boys, who have lately been singing at the Grand Opera House, owe their success. The names of a number of well known artists of ability appear in the programme, which promises a delightful musical treat.

THE late Mrs. General Hooker, then Miss Groesbeck of Cincinnati, was once at an evening party in that city, when a young dandy was asked if he would like to be presented to her. "Oh, yes," said he languidly, "trot her out." The lady overheard the remark, and when he was presented she adjured her eye-glasses deliberately and closely scanned his clothing from hoof to collar. The survey finished, she waved her hand and carelessly said: "Trot him back; I have seen all there is of him."

ARGANDIANA.

WE are glad to hear that Dr. Cornelius Herz may be expected back here in April, or perhaps sooner. The Doctor was in Paris on New Year's day, and had successfully accomplished the object for which he had visited Europe.

MISS LIZZIE L. CLARK gave a "dramatic reading" at the Metropolitan Temple Tuesday night. A tolerably large audience were present. The lady is of majestic proportions, and possesses a powerful voice, capable of bearing a long continued strain. Her delivery is, however, far too rapid, and as her enunciation is anything but distinct, it follows that she is for the most part unintelligible. Her declamation of the "murder" scene from Macbeth was, on this account, a conspicuous failure. She succeeded better as the Irish servant, Biddy Maloney, giving her views on the Chinese employment question. In this style of elocution her volubility stands Miss Clark in good stead, and it is evidently her strong card. Her lung power is extraordinary, and altogether we think (with the most profound respect) that the lady would be better appreciated in the Naval Service than on the platform. The entertainment was varied by the interspersment of some musical selections. Miss J. Tucholsky sang the ever delightful recitative and aria, "Où est l'âme" from Linda di Chamounix, with infinite grace and sweetness, and was also deservedly applauded for her excellent rendering of Millard's song, "Waiting."

EASTERN THEATRICALS.

THE following items are from the New York Clipper:

SIGNOR ROSNATI, the fresh European tenor that was to have appeared in Philadelphia in conjunction with Marie Roze, is likelier than not—not to appear.

MAPLESON'S recent season of opera at cheap prices at Her Majesty's, London, is reputed to have yielded him £5,000. Hence cheap opera in Italian at that house and in English at the Adelphi, is prophesied for February next. And now the Philadelphia managers threaten to bless that city with cheap prices.

A LARGE business was done last week at Tony Pastor's Theatre. Dr. S. M. Landis appeared in the title character of his his own sketch entitled "Dick Shaw, the Fiend." Both are entirely original, and their like have never been hitherto seen here. Dr. Landis undoubtedly gives us his ideas of what a tragic actor should be. He is a creature of impulse; he delighteth in gore, and desires to slay all with whom he comes in contact.

Thanks to "The Grasshopper" ("La Cigale") the American rights to which have been assigned to Maggie Mitchell, the receipts at the London Globe Theatre for the week ending December 15th, were larger than for any other similar period in the history of that house, viz., $7,000. Notwithstanding the rebuff "Sula" met with at Booth's Theatre, on New Year's eve, it is probable that Pauline Markham will travel in it.

MRS. CLARA FISHER MAEDER, now of the Oates Troupe, was with them in St. Louis last week. N. M. Ludlow, long ago of the managerial firm of which the Senior Sol Smith was the junior partner, learning of Mrs. Maeder's presence in St. Louis, of which city he is a resident, called upon her at her hotel. The twain conjointly represent nearly one hundred and sixty years of well-spent life. It was about forty-five years ago that Mrs. Maeder, now nearly seventy, played in Ludlow and Smith's St. Louis Theatre. Until last week she and the nonagenarian had not seen each other for forty years.

"STANDING ROOM ONLY" was displayed in the vestibule of the Grand Opera House nightly last week, and many persons were turned from the doors for the lack of accommodation. Between the acts a long line of gentlemen were noticed waiting their respective opportunities to purchase seats for future performances, at the box-office. Dion Boucicault began an engagement December 31, 1877, acting Conn in "The Shaughraun." Conn, to use the language of the composers, scendish and otherwise, is a very "fat" part. Mr.

Boucicault as the author has assigned Mr. Boucicault as the actor many of the most effective situations in the drama, and has compressed into his dialogue all of its fun, wit and humor. The impersonation of the vagabond Irishman, who is the central figure around which all the others revolve, was very natural and quite artistically presented by Mr. B.

"THE DECK'S MOTTO," which was originally acted in America in Niblo's Garden, then under the management of the late William Wheatley, June 1, 1863, was revived in the theatre bearing the same name December 31, 1877. The drama was creditably mounted with freshly painted scenery by George Heister, mechanical effects by John Lee, properties by W. S. Perkins, and new costumes by Romer & Son, the piece being produced under the direction of T. E. Morris. Samuel Piercy gave a chivalrous and dignified impersonation of Captain Henri De Lagadere, adding to his reputation as a conscientious and painstaking actor.

Matrimonial Sensation.

LORD HICKS (On Monday, December 31st, by his Eminence the Cardinal Archbishop of New York, Thomas Lord to Annette Wilhelmina Wilkens Hicks, both of this city.

The above announcement appeared in the New York papers on New Year's day, and has created quite a sensation in Gotham society.

Thomas Lord is an octogenarian millionaire, and the father of a family well known in the social world. He is nearly eighty-five years old, and it is said that for some time past his mind has not appeared to be quite sound. He owns very valuable real estate near Wall street, and is worth, according to moderate estimates, not far from two millions. He has been a widower only a few years. As might be supposed, considering his great age, his health is quite feeble, and for some time past he has not ventured out without a companion. If the notice above quoted is correct, he now has a companion who is not likely to neglect him.

The lady is the famous "rich American widow," whose dinners and receptions attracted so much attention in London during the past few years. Probably the most notable of these was her dinner in honor of Gen. Grant some months ago, which received a great deal of newspaper notice. She is about forty years old, and a woman of handsome and commanding presence. Her first husband was a wealthy Quaker, of the family from which the Hicksite branch of the Society of Friends took its name. He left her a large fortune, which she has since been spending quite freely in lavish social entertainment. No one had the slightest suspicion, however, that she had any matrimonial intentions, and if any one had suggested a probable alliance on her part with one of the oldest men in New York, the ancient and decrepit Thomas Lord, that person would have been promptly written down a fool.

Rumor says that Mrs. Hicks was rapidly running out of funds and came home to replenish in some way, and that she deliberately set her cap for the rich and semi-foolish old man who is said to have made her his wife. His family remonstrated, but he disregarded all that was said and kept on visiting the attractive widow. He made a purchase of $500 worth of gloves at Stewart's on Saturday, and gave a check for $5,000, receiving $4,500 in return. When his check was presented at the bank it was protested, there being no funds to pay it. Mr. Lord had drawn all his money out of the bank a few days before. At 12 o'clock on Monday his coachman drove him to the residence of Mrs. Hicks and was then dismissed, with the remark that he (Lord) would not want him any more. The old gentleman has not been seen since by any of his friends. Late in the afternoon word came privately to one of his sons that Mr. Lord and Mrs. Hicks had been married by Cardinal McCloskey. Naturally the family was astounded, and inquiries were at once set on foot to find out exactly what had occurred. If Mrs. Hicks married Mr. Lord for his money, she may possibly be disappointed; for his sons intimate very strongly that legal proceedings of some sort will be taken.

In these Days.

These are the days when the maiden with a number nine shoe departeth unto a retired corner of the pond and putteth on her own skates. And when her sister, who hath a small foot, yea, and a shapely, girdeth at her and maketh sport of her, she maketh answer unto that sister after this manner: "Nay, rather take thou heed unto thyself, O my sister! For thou knowest not, in the hour when thou wast fresh, and putteth thy foot into the hand of the young man with the sealskin cap, thou knowest not then that there was a hole in the toe of thy boot." And it is a lie, but that sister dareth not look down, and all the day is she troubled in mind. And thereat the maiden with the number nines rejoiceth exceedingly. And in these days the Bank President and the man that rehypothecate, and he that defaulteth after the manner of our fathers, and he that maketh his deficit with the modern improvements, and all men like unto these, shall be scattered far and wide throughout the world. And it shall come to pass that no man shall lend his umbrella unto his bosom friend, lest that he rehypothecate it, and on the proceeds thereof flee from the sight of man. For verily, this thing is getting down to a fine point.—Puck.

A pedestrian on Bush street yesterday came across a boy about thirteen years old who was trying to get up a bloody battle between a goat and a dog. The man halted and said:

"Boy, what sort of way is this to end the old year?"

"But the goat kin hick if he's a mind to sail in," protested the boy.

"No matter if he can, you ought to feel ashamed to end the year in this manner."

"What time is it?" queried the lad.

"Three o'clock," was the answer.

"Nine hours yet to repent in—go for him, Watch—stand up to him Billy!" yelled the young imp.—Detroit Free Press.

THE unfortunate lunatic Kearney says he wants to be "amongst the slain" as soon as possible. Well, nobody will interfere with him if he likes to take "a dose of his own blather" and quietly de-cease. The soberer the better!

POCKET COMPASSES AT M'LLER'S, 135 MONTGOMERY STREET.

REMOVAL OF HAZARD PATTERN AGENCY to 873 Market street, in the Howe sewing Machine office; Fall and winter patterns received.

WHAT A LOVELY FIGURE!—Exactly so; but the secret lies in the splendid fit of the dress. She wears the "DOMESTIC" PAPER FASHIONS. Fall styles now ready, at 29 Post street, between Kearny and Montgomery.

Amongst the numerous descriptions of Ornamental Pottery which is now so universally sought after by Collectors of BRIO-A-BRAC, none holds a higher place in general estimation than that particular sort which is known as "Orin" faience, which is a very artistic and ornamental imitation of the Ancient Etruscan ware, and is very quaintly beautiful. The revival of the manufacture of this elegant Pottery, with the additional beauty which experience and the advance of art have enabled modern handicraftsmen to impart to their work, appears to have taken the popular mind by storm. At the spacious store of Messrs. O. Lawton & Co., 609 and 611 Market Street, a large quantity of this as well as other descriptions of beautiful objects of ceramic art that can be found.

THE ladies (bless 'em) who brighten the hearths and gladden the homes of the dwellers in the Queen City of the Pacific, justly enjoy the distinction of possessing excellent taste in matters of dress. A walk along Kearny street any afternoon will sufficiently demonstrate this fact to the most casual observer. Whether robed in the silks and other costly fabrics which are the privilege of affluence, or attired in the less pretensions productions of the loom, they are all alike remarkable for neatness and "good style." It is, perhaps in the matter of boots and gloves that they are especially enticing, and in these particulars—the latter for choice—several enterprising citizens take good care that they shall be well supplied. For excellence of make and fitting, promptitude in the execution of orders, and reasonableness of price, no establishment in the glove trade can surpass that of the "Danishoff" Glove Manufactory, at No. 114 1/2 Post street, two doors from the White House. This factory is as well equipped as the most renowned establishment of its kind in Paris, having very complete machinery, a large staff of cutters, sewers, etc. Any lady or gentleman can have their gloves with from 2 to 40 buttons, measured to the exact size of their hands, and delivered to them in two hours. In regard to appearance, durability, etc., these Gloves will be found immeasurably superior to any imported goods.

BANDS have proved disastrous ever since the one King Herod inaugurated.—Cin. Sat. Night.

A Natchez wig-maker, named Giles, trusts his customers, but when they don't settle according to agreement Giles Natchez 'em bald-headed.—Cin. Griswold.

It is a bad sign when, the morning after a young man has been to the evening meeting of his literary association, he goes around the house asking for a shoe-horn to put on his hat with.—Puck.

An Irishman, fresh from the old country, saw a turtle for the first time and at once made up his mind to capture it. The turtle caught him by the finger, and he, holding him at arm's length, said: "Faith, and you had better let loose the howldt ye have, or I'll kick ye out of the very box ye sit in, be jabbers."

GEN. SHERMAN can't help waltzing. His profession is schottish.—Cincinnati Commercial. And he clings to his squad-drill, though he never thought much of the Lancers. He made the Old Virginia reel when he was down there, but his favorite, after all, is the American Gal. Oh!—Phila. Bulletin. The distinguished officer has, by marching thro' Georgia and other deeds of "derring-do," deservedly acquired the reputation of a bolero.

SHAKESPEARE says "a low soft voice is an excellent thing in woman." "Yes, it probably is, but Miss Lizzie L. Clark evidently thinks differently. Her "organ" would be of great value should she suddenly have occasion to call her eldest son off the top of the house, shout after the departing milkman, shoo a cow out of the garden, shriek down the cellar that the baby had fallen into the cistern, and howl "fire" for her neighbor's blazing barn, all at the same time? Miss Clark can severely discount the "lady with the iron jaw."

"ANDROMACHE," said megas koruthiolas Hector as he lifted the infant Astyanax to his well-greaved knee and searched his vest pocket for a gum drop, "Andromache, wilt listen?"

And the wife of the Trojan hero sat down on his plumed helmet with a look of ineffable tenderness and replied: "Wilt."

"Then," said the vanquisher of Patroclus, "why is your name like the first experience of our little Astyanax with green apples?"

A puzzled look overspread the features of the fair Andromache, and she sweetly murmured:

"I pass."

"Because," replied the Hellenic warrior and friend of Achilles, "because it—(here he placed Astyanax on the floor and cautiously retreated toward the open door)—because it ends in ache."—Hawkeye.

Baldwin's Theatre.

George Fawcett Rowe's "romantic" play (as it is styled) "The Geneva Cross" was presented by the Union Square Company at Baldwin's Theatre on Wednesday evening to a very sparse audience. This play, which is based on certain incidents of the Franco-Prussian war in 1870, possesses but very little merit as a dramatic composition, and its general effect is entirely destroyed by the absurd English-French text. As a means of illustrating the multitude of ways in which the Gallic tongue can be distorted in the mouths of persons who are unfamiliar with it, the dialogue of "The Geneva Cross" is highly successful. The names of the dramatis personae, and each and every untranslated word, are fearfully "mangled" by the ladies and gentlemen of the Union Square Company, and the literal rendering of many ordinary complimentary and other phrases, has a painfully ludicrous effect. The performance was slipshod and faulty to an inconceivable extent, so much so that it was scarcely possible to believe that one was listening to the same people who had made such a good impression in "The Danicheffs." Even Mr. Thorne was stagey and ill at ease in his "original character" of Riel Du Bourg, and moreover permitted himself the unpardonable carelessness of appearing in totally inappropriate costumes throughout the representation—wearing black evening dress "continuations" and diamond rings in his character as an ouvrier, for instance. The latter fault is also chargeable to Mr. Edmonds, usually a very "conscientious" actor in all respects, who, on this occasion, was entirely out of his element in the part of Mathieu Moineau, and who in the last act appeared in a nondescript uniform, which even a man who formed an integer of that mob of ruffians whom the Union Square Company are pleased to designate "the Kneew," would have been ashamed of. Miss Ida Vernon, whose previous performances have won for her much deserved admiration, made a sad failure in the part of Gabrielle. The lady has reached that particular point in life when, altho' she can present us with a stately and charming Princess Lydia, or a dignified and motherly Sister Therese, it becomes utter folly for her to attempt the assumption of the part of a jeune premiere. In an ill-fitting white robe, and stage wreath of flowers, Miss Vernon irresistibly reminded us of lusty Mike Kennedy as Thisbe, in "A Midsummer Night's Dream." Her voice, also, is unsuited to the necessities of long declamatory speeches, and in the fine apostrophe to France, at the end of the third act, she was quite inaudible thro' the abortive efforts of a crowd of snipers who punished an English version of Queen Hortense's martial hymn in a severely determined, though lugubrious manner. Miss Harrison, as Martagon, was remarkable for nothing but the extraordinary rapidity with which she winked her eyes, and Miss Wilkins was simply an overdressed "Frochard." Mr. Jennings and Mr. Seymour burlesqued the parts of M. Pierre Lebrun and Simon Cornichet to their hearts content, and are to be commended for having relieved the insufferable dullness which would otherwise have afflicted the audience. It is much to be regretted that just prior to the close of what may otherwise be fairly characterized as a successful season, artistically considered, the Union Square Company should have been so ill-advised as to produce a play which reflects so little credit on their ability as "The Geneva Cross." The piece is announced for repetition this evening and to-morrow, at both matinee and evening performances. On Sunday evening Mr. Walden Ramsey will take a benefit, for which "The Marble Heart" is underlined. Miss Ellie Wilton will appear as Marco. Miss Mand Harrison's benefit is announced for next Wednesday afternoon, when the company will appear in "Led Astray."

California Theatre.

The last performances of the "Black Crook" are announced for this evening and to-morrow. Seats for the matinee had better be secured early, as the house will indubitably be crowded to its utmost extent. The spectacle, "A Trip to the Moon," will be produced (with great scenic splendor) on Monday.

Metropolitan Temple.

The first of a series of six concerts by the "Old Folks" took place last evening at the Metropolitan Temple on Fifth and Jessie streets, and was well attended. The programme contained a number of vocal and instrumental gems, which were on the whole well rendered, under the direction of Mr. W. H. Kinross. We defer notice.

THEATRICAL GOSSIP, Etc.

MODJESKA is advertised in an Israelite sheet with the line in Hebrew, "Welcome, sister."

THE superior courts have confirmed the verdict of $15,000 against Mr. Sothern gained by Mr. Coe, stage manager of the Haymarket Theatre, London, who was discharged by Mr. Sothern because he levied a commission upon the salaries of actors engaged for the theatre.

MADAME EME ROSEAU has already won enviable laurels through her charming singing and acting at the Eagle Theatre in "Oxygen." She is the "prima donna" of the ci-devant Lydia Thompson Company, which, all reports to the contrary notwithstanding, will probably be the next attraction at Baldwin's Theatre.

FRED LYSER, who has been absent from this country for a number of years, during which he has been engaged in operative ventures in Australia, recently arrived in San Francisco. A long while ago, Mr. Lyster was a capital baritone, and shone to decided advantage in the Rosalie Durand English Opera Troupe.—Phila. Mirror.

MR. JOHN McCULLOUGH has purchased of Messrs. Tompkins & Hill, of the Boston Theatre, the new Russian play of "The Exiles," now running with great success in Boston, and obtained from the owners of that play the sole right of its production in California. "The Exiles" will be produced at the California Theatre probably immediately following the conclusion of the Majeroni engagement.

ARGANDIANA.

Take, O, take that bill away,
That, alas! long since was due.
Call again some other day,
When the trees do bud anew—
Mebbe, dimly distant spring
Some financial change will bring.

ANOTHER act has been added to the "Two Orphans," in which the blind orphan recovers her sight. It is now being played at the Bowery, New York.

THE following conversation took place the other day in Paris between an elderly gentleman and his nephew:

Uncle—What! you have three mistresses?

Nephew—Yes, uncle, but—

Uncle—And it is for this that I have sent you to Paris?

Nephew—Exactly.

Uncle—Miserable boy!

Nephew—Well, didn't you say to me, "Go to the Capital and make acquaintances."

BABY Show "postponed" until the 28th inst. Distribution of prizes postponed sine die. Ille illo lachrymæ.

EASTERN THEATRICALS

THE following items are from the New York Clipper:

At a performance of "Mignon" lately in Philadelphia, Miss Montague received much applause as well as Miss Kellogg and Miss Cary.

THE Brooklyn Academy of Music will be occupied this week by E. A. Sothern, who is announced to appear in "A Crushed Tragedian," "Dandycary" and "David Garrick." The price of orchestra-chairs has been fixed at $1.25.

EVER since we published the true history of the O. P. riots in London, there has been a growing inclination to go back to old prices at the theatres of this country. This has no reference to old Price's reign during "the palmy days of the old Park pit."

MISS THURSBY, Mme. Theresa Carreno, Aptommas, Messrs. Alfred Wilkie, T. T. Schneiser, and Henry Strass appeared in concert under the Redpath management at the Boston Music Hall, January 4th, Miss Thursby replaced Ilma di Murska, who failed to keep her contract.

EMERSON'S California Minstrels opened at the Olympic Theatre January 14, under the management of Gus Phillips, "Oofy Gooft," and with Billy Emerson as proprietor. Emerson and Luke Schoolcraft make the fun on the ends, and George Coes is the interloper. A first-class company of performers and instrumentalists has been engaged, and every effort will be made to make the entertainments attractive. Good specialty artists are advertised for.

THE manly art of assault and defense is being cultivated among the profession. On December 30th, in Rochester, N. Y., George S. Knight tapped the os-frontis of J. W. Fox, a member of the Opera House company, in that city. The law then interposed its majesty. Knight's combination had just closed at the Opera House, and in entering the railroad depot to depart from Rochester, the Worrell Sisters, as they claim, were rudely jostled and insulted by Fox, as the latter was coming out of the depot. One of the sisters is the wife of Mr. Knight, who upon learning of the collision, went in quest of Fox, and played Corinthian Tom in Corinthian Hall. McKee Rankin and Harry Meredith were not present.

"Here be Truths."

A correspondent of an Australian journal writes in the following effusive manner of our old friends, the Soldenes: "Of the Soldene Comic Opera Troupe much more could have been said in unqualified praise than my time or your space would permit. The principal, Miss Emily Soldene, stands far and away above ordinary opera bouffe actresses in every respect. As a cantatrice, she is superlatively excellent; as an actress, it is a moot point with critics proper in which direction her excellence lies—whether inclining to tragedy or comedy—so perfectly has she grasped the intent of her several parts, and so accurately does she take that 'one step' (so difficult always to any but the true artist) from the sublime to the ridiculous. With each impersonation she increases from sterling admiration to more perfect enthusiasm. For my part—having seen all that was to be seen in acting during more years than I can specify—I am yet undecided whether she excels in tragedy or comedy, so richly are all her lines drawn. She is the queen of comic opera. In considering the great and quite unprecedented success of the Soldene company it must not be forgotten that much of it is due to the surroundings and the strict unity of the several parts. Miss Soldene has supplied herself with a good company, of whom I name the following: Mr. C. J. Campbell (tenor), whose chief fault is a want of repose; Mr. Farley (basso), who has gained experience in his foreign travels, and now enjoys much public favor; Mr. Wallace, stage manager and eccentric actor; Mr. Marshall (low comedy), who reminds me of some one I long ago learned to admire, and who also I mourn among the departed; Mr. Jarvis, also one of the 'funny men,' besides others too numerous to particularise. In the matter of fine-looking, fine limbed ladies, the company is exceedingly strong. Miss Rose Stella, a lady with a pleasant English-French accent, assists Miss Emily Soldene as second, and right artistically too; in her wake follow ladies of varied degree, but all aiding in exhibiting a loul ensemble never before witnessed in opera bouffe. Mlle. Sara, as a danseuse, I am unable to describe. The company give opera bouffe of a quality as unexpected as welcome; and the taste of even the raff has considerably improved under the Soldene influence."

POCKET COMPASSES AT MULLER'S, 135 MONTGOMERY STREET.

REMOVAL OF BAZAAR PATTERN AGENCY to 873 Market street, in the Howe sewing Machine office; Fall and winter patterns received.

WHAT A LOVELY FLOUR—Exactly so; but the secret lies in the splendid flour the dress. She uses the "DOMESTIC" PAPER FASHIONS. Fall styles now ready, at 29 Post street, between Kearny and Montgomery.

Amongst the numerous descriptions of Ornamental Pottery which is now so universally sought after by collectors of BRIC-A-BRAC, none holds a higher place in general estimation than that particular sort which is known as "Grin" latene, which is a very artistic and ornamental imitation of the Ancient Egyptian ware, and is very quaintly beautiful. The revival of the manufacture of this elegant Pottery, with the additional beauty which experience and the advance of art have enabled modern handicraftsmen to impart to their work, appears to have taken the popular mind by storm. At the spacious store of Messrs. O. Lawton & Co., 609 and 611 Market Street, a large quantity of this as well as other descriptions of beautiful objects of ceramic art that can be found.

THE ladies (bless 'em) who brighten the hearths and gladden the homes of the dwellers in the Queen City of the Pacific, justly enjoy the distinction of possessing excellent taste in matters of dress. A walk along Kearny street any afternoon will sufficiently demonstrate this fact to the most casual observer. Whether robed in the alks and other costly fabrics which are the privilege of affluence, or attired in the less pretentious productions of the loom, they are all alike remarkable for neatness and "good style."

It is, perhaps in the matter of boots and gloves that they are especially enticing; and in these particulars—the latter for choice—several enterprising citizens take good care that they shall be well supplied. For excellence of make and fitting, promptitude in the execution of orders, and reasonableness of price, no establishment in the glove trade can surpass that of the "Danicheff" (Hove) Manufactory, at No. 114 1/2 Post street, two doors from the White House. This factory is as well equipped as the most renowned establishment of its kind in Paris, having very complete machinery, a large staff of cutters, sewers, etc. Any lady or gentleman can have their gloves with from 2 to 40 buttons, measured to the exact size of their hands, and delivered to them in two hours. In regard to appearance, durability, etc., these gloves will be found immeasurably superior to any imported goods.

WISE AND OTHERWISE.

THE only direct way in which to get at a loan from a banker is through his cash-ear.

Why may a foolish fellow reckon on having the sympathy of a hater? Because a hatter has felt for a fellow in want of a headpiece.

What portion of the trimming of a lady’s dress resembles East India sherry of the first quality? That which goes around the cape.

A Young lady, intending to paint her cheeks with rouge put all the paint on her nose, and did not discover her error until requested to sign “the pledge.”

A BOARDING house mistress, like the rest of us, has her weak and strong points, the weak point being her coffee and her strong point being the butter.

“JAMES WILLIAM, when you were in the south, did you happen to see such a thing as a woolen mill?” “Oh yes, sir, I often saw the darkies fighting.”—Ex.

A CHINAMAN a few days since found a door-plate and fastened it on his own door as an ornament. He didn’t know that the name would betray him, as he thought it was merely carved on it for the beauty of the thing. The Chinaman now languishes in the elegant retirement of the City Prison. Another victim to the mysteries of English orthography.

A TEMPERANCE orator recently made this statement: “I bought a supper for a man to-night who was worth $50,000 eight years ago. His wife was a judge’s daughter. She is in a pauper asylum for the insane to-day. Ever dollar of the $50,000 went for rum.” Whereupon the New York World goes to work and coolly calculates that, inasmuch as there are 2,922 days in eight years, and allowing ten cents a glass for rum, the man must have got away with 171 drinks each day for the eight years.—Phila. Bulletin.

California Theatre.

At the matinee to-day, and at the evening performance, San Francisco playgoers (whose name is Legion) will look their last upon the lovely scenery, the enchanting ballet, and the mysterious diabolisms of "The Black Crook." When the curtain descends this evening, Mr. Keene will straighten up his "noble Roman" back, which, for the last month has been abnormally bent; and will once more stand erect before the American people. The terrible Zamiel will cease his unholy incantations, and the gorgeous nightly apotheosis of the nativity of Venus will give away to the fun and jollity contained in Offenbach's grand spectacular opera bouffe entitled, "A Trip to the Moon." This piece, one of the most delightful conceits of the Lutetian composer, will be produced from the original Parisian models, costumes, ballets and all sorts of novel effects never before attempted in any theatre in this country. The incidental music and the various choruses are taken from the original French libretto, and not the least amongst the many things the piece has to recommend it, will be the circumstance that it will give us an opportunity of hearing a great deal of the charming singing of Miss Alice Harrison, as well as of another young lady who is new to the California stage, Miss Grace Plaisted, who has been specially engaged for the production. The Kiralfy ballet will support a varied selection of dances, including the celebrated calisthenic acts, "Les Mouches et les Chimeres," and the "Flacon de Noye," invented and arranged by M. Bolossy Kiralfy, in which Mmes. de Rosa and Palladino will appear. Magnificent scenery for the "Trip to the Moon" has been specially painted by Voegtlin and his assistants, representing scenes on terra firma in the Kingdom of Nowhere, in the "blue Empyrean," and also in the moon. Messrs. Greenlock, Torrence, and Stackhouse, have excelled themselves in the preparation of the properties and mechanism, and some of the most extraordinary effects ever witnessed on the stage will be introduced. The "Trip to the Moon" is a purely imaginary excursion, and the characters therefore are not ordinary sort of people. The first act takes place on the earth, in the domain of King Pin, (Mr. Bishop), whose son, Prince Caprice, (Alice Harrison), is a fast young gentleman, who, having exhausted all the ordinary pleasures of life, decides on the extraordinary diversion of taking a journey to the moon. From the Royal Observatory the planetary system is examined, and it is determined to manufacture an enormous gun from which a projectile shall be discharged sufficiently large to contain the Prince and the companions of his journey. The monster piece of artillery is accordingly made in the King Pin Foundry, and the illustrious explorers being inclosed in it, the piece is "laid" for the moon, and with a terrific explosion the "patent breech-loading Pullman Palace Sleeping Shell" speeds on its upward course. In the second act we find the voyagers in the inter-stellar space, observing with much amazement the real moon, (which has been specially engaged for this occasion), and the numerous

"fixed stars," planets, and asteroids with which they are surrounded. They presently arrive in the city of the moon, the Innate inhabitants of which (the Selenites) are very naturally disturbed at the approach of a monster so unfamiliar to their eyes. The "Lunatics" hold a council, and King Cosmos (Mr. W. A. Mestayer) decides on the destruction of the audacious invaders, but is dissuaded therefrom by his lovely daughter, Princess Fantasy, (Miss Grace Plaisted), who is at once smitten with a tender passion for the handsome terrestrial Prince. The King relents and welcomes the travelers, and all is "hunky." The Prince and Princess visit together all the lunar "sights," including the Realm of Silver in Bonanza Valley, the Cosmos Comstock, and the Virginia City of the Moon; and in their happiness indulge in songs descriptive of the delights of love. The grand "lunatic" ballet Les Mouches et les Chimeres then takes place, showing what pretty insects they have up in the moon. The third act introduces us to the Halls of Fantasy, the Lunatic Market Place, where princesses and other fancy vegetables are sold, and the "Land of Too much," with the Ice Mountains and the famous snow ballet, Les Flocons de neige. In this act the Elm Sisters will give their eccentric songs, and the Vaidis Twins will appear in their silent gymnastics. In the fourth act the prince and his companions Microscope, (Mr. Keene) and Focus (Mr. Long), are arraigned before the Moon-icipal Court of King Cosmos for attempting the abduction of the Princess Fantasy. They are found guilty, and sentenced to be thrown into the crater of the mountains of the Moon, when Cactus comes to the rescue with a flying ship. They telegraph to the earth and escape just in time, returning to terra firma through a splendid transformation scene representing the sun, moon and stars via the Golden Gate. "A Trip to the Moon" bids fair to surpass even "The Black Crook" in point of gorgeous scenery and magnificent effects. In addition to the ladies and gentlemen already mentioned, the cast includes Miss Marian Singer and Miss Jennie Reiffarth who have been specially retained for the occasion, and the majority of the California company.

Woodward's Gardens.

A grand novel, instructive, amusing and sensational entertainment will take place at this favorite resort to-day and Sunday. The rival of the great Levy—Mons. J. Saveniers, premier cornet soloist, who bears the first prize of a gold medal from the Conservatory of Brussels, makes his first appearance on Sunday. Professor Everett will introduce his "Punch and Judy" show. Professor W. A. Chapman will produce his original illusion, "A man sewed up in a sack full of ghosts." The Star Novelty Combination in new specialties. A grand musical performance takes place at 2 o'clock on Sunday.

THEATRICAL GOSSIP, ETC.

JOHN MCCULLOUGH commences an engagement at Brooklyn, N. Y., on Monday next.

A new organ of amusements, called the Stage, is about to be published in Virginia City by an old-stager.

Miss ANNA DICKINSON is reported to be writing a new play—a comedy. She works many hours a day upon it, and with great enthusiasm.

LAWRENCE BARRETT takes the correct view of dramatic critics and criticisms. Here is his opinion in the premises. "A healthy and honest criticism cannot but be efficacious in elevating the drama. And the true function of the press, in connection with the drama, is to stimulate and aid the artist, and to denounce and oppose the introduction of a degraded dramatic literature or a degraded style of acting. The rapid production of novelties in this country has in many instances lowered the standard of criticism into simply reporting plays, and it would be unfair to criticize the work which the reporter does under stress of time and labor with the same severity that you would Hazlitt, or criticisms which have had time, thought and labor devoted to them."—Phila. Mirror.

ARGANDIANA.

The last accounts of Garibaldi are very pleasant. He is in excellent health and the brightest of spirits.

ITALIAN journals say that the death of Victor Emmanuel was, in a great measure accelerated by the loss of "la bella Rossina," His Majesty's morganatic wife, who died only a few days previously.

HERE is a chance for Mr. Tom Kean, Prof. Hogan, and the rest of our Western fancy. "J. Laxton will box any man in the world at 8st 4lb, under the Queensberry rules, for any sum up to £100." The above challenge is contained in Bell's Life. Stakes can be deposited at the Footlight office.

DR. J. VAN VLACK, whose office is in the St. Ann's Rest Block, 4 Eddy street, has made arrangements to give consultations and advice free of charge to the poor, every day in the week, from 9 until 10 o'clock A. M. This generous devotion will be of great benefit to a number of people.

THE Salt Lake Times announces that the "musical department of the performances of opera by the Ilma di Murska-Caroline Richings-Bernard Company, will be under the sole supervision of the distinguished violinist and pianist, 'Mastero J. T. Hill, K. S. R. A.'" "Mastero" is good! So is "K. S. R. A." "Kussid sick of roaming about," does it mean? or "Knight of the shabby respectable appearance?"

This city is blessed (or the reverse) with quite a number of clocks exhibited in public places; which are remarkable chiefly for the variety they affect in marking the time. In California, Kearny, and Montgomery streets there are some dozen clocks which the public are accustomed to regard as reliable; but which, however, from the frequency of their idiosyncracies in the way of taking holidays are, in reality, the most vexatious misleaders. It is by no means uncommon, for example, to find a difference of some minutes between the Exchange clock and that over the establishment of Messrs. Anderson & Randolph, whilst the horologe of the Catholic cathedral on California street preserves a "mean" between the two, and the clocks at Morse's, the photographer, and Willey's, the coachmaker, indicate a different hour to either. We lately called the attention of Messrs. Braverman & Levy to the circumstance that the clock on the sidewalk in front of their establishment, had been right only twice during each 24 hours for over two months; and have had the satisfaction of noticing that it has since been removed; presumably for repairs. In the interest of the peripatetic public, we now implore the management of the London, Liverpool and Globe Insurance Company, on the corner of California and Leidesdorff streets, to call in the aid of a clock doctor to their magnificent timepiece, the hands of which have for a long time stood idle at the hour of ten minutes past nine. This clock was, we believe, imported from England, and from its central position, and the fact that it derives an additional dignity from occupying a place between a bank and an insurance office, has, hitherto, been regarded as a most responsible piece of mechanism. The precise cause of its defection is not known to us. Its cessation of movement may possibly have been occasioned by some occult influence, such as those which cause the fluctuations in the stock market, or it may be that the gentlemen employed in the offices in the neighborhood have cunningly hit upon the device of stopping the clock at ten minutes past nine, so as to have constantly the means of appealing to it when they happen to arrive late in the morning. Whatever the reason, the public suffer inconvenience, and it is the duty of the proprietors of the clock, as good citizens, to take immediate steps to put it into working order again, or, as an alternative, to remove it from its present position. They manage these things better in Philadelphia. The Common Council of that model city have just voted an appropriation of $100 "for cleaning and repairing public clocks." Time is money; and a clock which is a continual deception is an enemy to the State.

REMOVAL OF BAZAAR PATTERN AGENCY to 873 Market street, in the Howe sewing Machine office; Fall and winter patterns received.

WHAT A LOVELY FIGURE!—Exactly so; but the secret lies in the splendid fit of the dress. She uses the "DOMESTIC" PAPER FASHIONS. Fall styles now ready, at 29 Post street, between Kearny and Montgomery.

THE great rage for "China" and pottery which has latterly manifested itself amongst the higher circles of society all over the civilized world, has not failed to find its way to San Francisco. The thousand beautiful designs of Dresden and other work which are to be found in the emporium of Messrs. O. Lawton & Co., 602 and 611 Market street, attract every day a large crowd of purchasers. The rare beauty of this ware, both in design and color, is hardly to be surpassed—and its popularity never on the increase.

THE ladies (bless 'em) who brighten the hearths and gladden the homes of the dwellers in the Queen City of the Pacific, justly enjoy the distinction of possessing excellent taste in matters of dress. A walk along Kearny street any afternoon will sufficiently demonstrate this fact to the most casual observer. Whether robed in the silks and other costly fabrics which are the privilege of affluence, or attired in the less pretentious productions of the loom, they are all alike remarkable for neatness and "good style." It is, perhaps in the matter of boots and gloves that they are especially enticing; and in these particulars—the latter for choice—several enterprising citizens take good care that they shall be well supplied. For excellence of make and fitting, promptitude in the execution of orders, and reasonableness of price, no establishment in the glove trade can surpass that of the "Danish" Glove Manufactory, at No. 114 1/2 Post street, two doors from the White House. This factory is as well equipped as the most renowned establishment of its kind in Paris, having very complete machinery, a large staff of cutters, sewers, etc. Any lady or gentleman can have their gloves with from 2 to 40 buttons, measured to the exact size of their hands, and delivered to them in two hours. In regard to appearance, durability, etc., these gloves will be found immeasurably superior to any imported goods.

NEW IMPORTATION OF OPERA GLASSES AT MULLER'S.

EASTERN THEATRICALS.

From the New York Clipper we take the following items:

ADELAIDE PHILLIPS has left the Fryer Opera Company.

At the London Vandeville, that fearful and wonderful success, "Our Boys," is rapidly approaching its 1000th night. The bill reads in the old stereotyped fashion, as follows: "Every evening, at 7:30, 'A Fearful Whirligig.' At 8, 'Our Boys.' Concluding with 'A Fearful Fog.'" It begins to look as if this bill would never be changed.

WISE AND OTHERWISE.

THE Printer of Wales is growing bald; so bald, it is said, there will soon be no hair apparent.

A MONTANA justice of the peace doesn't splurge any when he marries a couple. He says: "Arisel Grab hands! Hitched! Six dollars." And that is all there is to it.—Ex.

THE London Lancet says a piece of lemon balm on a corn will cure it in a few days. The trouble about here is, that it is the general custom to soak the lemon in the corn, which, at this season of the year, is generally hot. But the cure is just the same, the lemon remains there long after the corn is gone.—Virginia City Footlight.

ONE of the new financial fancies of Paris is a company for "Insurance Against Female Celibacy." Holders of policies begin to derive benefit from the insurance in the shape of an annuity, if they remain unmarried after the age of thirty. In other words, on the receipt of an annual premium the company guarantees to insure ladies against celibacy, by placing them in communication with eligible partis, and, if they do not succeed in securing a husband before the age of thirty, undertakes to pay them an annuity or a lump sum down. Widows are excluded from insurance. Now the one aim of woman, in life, to get married, has been taken away.

The Fountain.

After the theatres are over every evening crowds of people patronize "The Fountain," on the corner of Sutter and Kearny streets. The oysters are always fresh and fat, the beer is undeniable, and the music, provided by an excellent string band, is a most pleasant accompaniment to one's supper. Under its present management the "Fountain" is rapidly establishing a very high reputation; and is about the best resort of its class in the city.

Michigan's "Pote."

Julia A. Moore, "the sweet song bird of Michigan," has been interviewed by a reporter of the "Chicago Tribune."

She is described as wearing "a short gown of pre-historic cut," and possessing "coal black eyes and long black hair, which floats wildly over her somewhat stooping shoulders."

It was "washing day" when the Tribune man called on Mrs. Moore, and the lady had no shoes or stockings on when she received him. She said that the subjects that snit her best to write about are of people who have been either "killed, died, or drowned." In compliance with a request to write some impromptu verses, Mrs. Moore, after digging about in a pile of rubbish to find her pen, and having first given each of her seven children (all poets) a large hunk of bread and molasses to keep them quiet whilst her mighty brain was at work, produced the following, saying as she handed to the reporter, "Yew must excuse mistakes for I ain't much of a scholar, you know," and she read:

Beautiful little greenbacks
Something to buy our bread;
Now the poor will get along
And none more will wish they're dead.
Hurrah for Cooper and Cary,
Greenbacks rule the day.
How brave men fight for greenbacks,
Go tell the news to all.

We fought for liberty, no doubt,
In stern rebellion broken out;
But not enough greenbacks to pay
The boys for being brave and gay.
Now the handholders down will go
To trample in the dust,
Down where Cooper & Cary sent them
In the dark and silent dust.

"You were the oldest of the family, were you not?" said the reporter.

"No, of course not. My father and mother was older than me."

"To return to the poetry, Mrs. Moore. Do you ever see the criticisms of the papers on your works?"

"I used to see them, and they made me mad at first, and I just told them fellows if they didn't like my poetry, they could quit printing it."

"You never fostered a feeling of permanent antipathy against the newspaper fraternity, did you?"

"I guess so," meekly answered the songstress, grappling with the thought.

"What have you to say to these editors who persist in printing your verses?"

"I ain't got nothing to say. If it did make me mad at first, I guess I don't care much about it now, anyway."

The Tribune man thinks that it is certain Mrs. Moore chose the inside track to fame, and will distance the most sanguine before another year has passed. First she sought to supply the vast dearth of rural poetry, and this done she leans calmly back in her bliss, and, with unruffled self-esteem, winks at the fastidious remonstrances of the modest editor.

California Theatre.

Offenbach's musical and spectacular play, "A Trip to the Moon," will be produced at the California Theatre this evening, with all imaginary splendor as to scenery and stage effects. A description of the play appeared in our columns on Saturday last. The cast includes nearly all the leading members of the California Company, supplemented by some clever people engaged for the occasion. The much admired Kiralfy ballet will appear, and a number of new and graceful dances will be introduced. There is every indication that "A Trip to the Moon" will prove another bonanza to the enterprising management of the California Theatre.

Grand Opera House.

The first of the series of popular Sunday evening concerts at the Grand Opera House took place last night, but the appreciation in which musical entertainments are held by San Francisco people was not shown by the attendance. The music was well selected, and consisted partly of sacred and partly secular numbers. The orchestra augmented by a number of well known performers, was under the direction of Mr. H. J. Widmer, and acquitted themselves with much distinction. These entertainments will undoubtedly become very fashionable, and the prices being arranged to suit the times, the enterprise should bring grist to the managerial mill. The next concert will take place on Sunday the 27th inst.

"The Regiment of Champagne" commences its second week this evening. "Uncle Tom's Cabin" is in rehearsal at Mr. Kennedy's Theatre. Messrs. Jarrett and Palmer have lately revived this favorite old play with immense success in Boston. It will be produced at the Grand Opera House with the most careful attention to detail. Upwards of 100 colored performers have been specially engaged from New Orleans for the production.

THEATRICAL GOSSIP, ETC.

Miss MAUD HARRISON will return from San Francisco to appear in the new play, "A Celebrated Cause," at the Union Square.—N. Y. Mercury.

"The San Francisco Minstrels" will probably pay a visit to this city shortly. They are immense favorites in New York, where for upwards of ten years they have uninterruptedly given a most enjoyable entertainment.

"THE DELUGE," a play treating of the history of the world before the flood, will, most likely be soon produced at the California Theatre. Like the "Black Crook" and "A Trip to the Moon," it is of the spectacular character, and will furnish another opportunity for the Kiralfy ballet.

A GENTLEMAN recently from London, who professes to be well acquainted with the facts, insisted at the Mercury office that Lillian Adelaide Neilson appears on the baptismal register as Bessie Lovell. Thus vanishes a highly-seasoned, romantic name, which, when etymologically interpreted, means: the white noble son of Neil. Thus, Lillian is white, Adelaide noble and Neilson the son of Neil or Nell. But Bessie! Shade of "Lord Lovell" what a "Lord" his own garden gate, what a falling off is here!

THE great marksman and rival of Bogardus, Dr. Carver, will be one of the special attractions in the production of "A Trip to the Moon" at the California.

THE two performances at the Academy of Music, New York, on the 17th inst, for the benefit of John Brougham, netted over $10,000. Madame Modjeska, Clara Morris, Maggie Mitchell, John McCullough, Edwin Booth, Sothern, Fichter, Montague, Brignoli, Tony Pastor, and a host of others took part.

"PINK DOMINOS" will be given by the Union Square Company at Baldwin's Theatre this evening and to-morrow. This is the last week of this excellent company's stay in San Francisco. Miss Maud Harrison's benefit is announced for Wednesday afternoon, when "Leda Astray" will be performed.

KATE CLAXTON's engagement at the California Theatre has been postponed until after the production of "The Exiles." It was possible that the management might have also found it expedient to defer that of the Majeroni's for the same object, but there is happily no longer any occasion for Mr. Hall to apprehend any forestallment of his rights to the Russian play.

THE first grand orchestral matinee of the second season of Mr. Rudolph Herold's popular concerts will be given on Wednesday afternoon at 3 o'clock at the Metropolitan Temple, on Fifth street near Market. An excellent programme is announced, comprising some grand numbers from the works of Beethoven, Meyerbeer, Hermann, etc., and an overture by Goldmark on "Sakuntala," the celebrated work of Kalindaya. The box sheet will be open on Tuesday and Wednesday at Gray's Music Store; and on Monday for subscribers. Popular prices will prevail.

ANOTHER professional fracas has taken place. John A. Mackay, who plays Con with the "Shanghaier" traveling company was entering a railroad car at Lancaster on the night train for Philadelphia, when the conductor attempted to prevent him and a tussle ensued, which left the actor uppermost. A local paper thus describes what followed: "When the conductor came around for the tickets the 'pleasure' he experienced was of a different kind from what he anticipated. On entering the car he found a guard stationed at each door, and, before he really knew where he was, found himself battered beyond recognition. After being thoroughly punched and pounded by another member of the incensed combination, he fled from the car, the guard at the door being moved to compassion for the unlucky official and suffering him to escape.

ARGANDIANA.

A NEW YORK dramatic critic, writing on the subject of the behavior of audiences, approves very highly of "the pretty actress in the box, who, just as the scene is being cut off by the curtain, rises to her feet and insists with her kidded hands that a sister artist shall be recalled. Unless it is done for effect, which it often is, there is nothing prettier than this spontaneous tribute of genius to genius. From my humble position I have often observed such a declaration of peculiarly feminine approbation which did me a great deal of good. As a rule, gifted women love each other, and when you see some charming creature rise in the box and clap her hands together in almost childish glee, after a fine tableau point, you can rest assured—if it is not acting—that you observe the actress off the stage at her best. Modjeska and Jannuschek both drew this tribute on nights when I was present. I would like to tell you who the applauding ladies were, but as it is not news, and as the world will wag on just the same without a specification, I beg to refrain. I only know that I felt like kissing both of the friendly rivals, and telling them that they were trumps—"hearts" being the card turned up."

NOTICE.

ADVERTISERS and patrons of the FOOTLIGHT are hereby respectfully cautioned not to pay any sums to any person whatever, subsequent to this date, except to the regular collector, who will bear a written authority from the undersigned, dated this day; otherwise receipts will not be recognized.

A. H. KIMBALL, MANAGER.
FOOTLIGHT OFFICE, Jan. 21, 1878.

The Coming Stars.

Signor and Signora Majeroni will make their first appearance at the California Theatre on Monday, February 4th. The piece selected is "The Old Corporal," a sensational French play in five acts, translated expressly for Signor Majeroni by J. Birchell, the same in which the Signor made his debut in Melbourne, where he at once established a reputation which promises to be world wide. The plot abounds with incidents in which Signor Majeroni is the prominent actor as Corporal Simon, the trusted friend of his general of division, who is killed at the battle of Jena. In his dying moments General Roquebert confides to Simon's care a daughter, Genevieve, whose mother (Mme de Rensberg) he was about to marry. Simon causes the little girl, seven years old, to be sent to his own home, where she is brought up with his son Lucian. Simon in the fortune of war is taken prisoner, and is sent to work in a Siberian mine; but after the lapse of eleven years he returns to his native village St. Laurent, unencumbered, and having an aged appearance. As Simon had long since been thought dead a mass had been said in the little church at the anniversary of his supposed death for the repose of his soul; and the day that he reached St. Laurent, was one of these anniversaries, when the villagers were in church. The general had entrusted the corporal with a secret message of two words for a notary, Gyrmont, to whom before his death Roquebert had despatched some documents in an enclosure which was only to be opened in the presence of a person who should speak the two words, when the General's daughter would become entitled to a large property, but of which Pierre Frochard, the deputy mayor, had unlawfully possessed himself. Finding that the Corporal had returned, the deputy mayor became alarmed, and contrived to take out of Simon's knapsack his passport which he tears up, and to have a sum of money belonging to the poor which had been stolen by another person, but restored by the father of the thief, placed in the knapsack, and then Simon was accused of having stolen the money. The dismay of the old soldier in finding himself in such a position, just at the eve of his anticipated pleasure at meeting his son and adopted daughter, causes him to lose his speech, the two words, which would secure wealth to Genevieve, cannot be uttered, and the old man is unable to write. Lucian (Simon's Son) and Genevieve have long been deeply attached to each other; but Tavernier and Frochard conspire together to effect a marriage between the latter and Genevieve, which causes Lucian to fire a pistol at his own head; but he misses the mark, and in the excitement of the occurrence the old Corporal recovers his powers of speech, when he becomes able to explain everything, Frochard's machinations are defeated, and Genevieve having recovered her father's property is wedded to Simon's son. The Majeronis last appeared with great success in this piece in the Australian colonies, and a contemporary speaks in the following eulogistic terms of their performance: "Signor Majeroni's performance was unique, and his make-up, first as the soldier friend of the dying general, honored with the charge of the little girl, and afterwards as the old soldier almost worn-out with eleven years' toil and travel, was perfect. His display of hopeful joy as he alighted at his native village, near his home—his strong emotion when charged with stealing the poor's money, he, a soldier and a man of honor—his dismay at not being recognized by his own son and Genevieve, and his utter prostration when he lost his powers of speech, were so true to nature, so intensely thrilling, as to hold the audience in a spell, from which they were eventually glad to be relieved by bursts of applause from all parts of the house. The scene in the fifth act in Tavernier's chateau, when Genevieve (Signora Majeroni), under the influence of love for her mother, relinquished her troth to Lucian, and consented to sign the marriage contract was one of the most exciting that could well be imagined; and succeeded by the sudden recovery of speech by the latter, presented a tableau not to be forgotten by those who witnessed it.

PREMIUM CANDY FACTORY—DIPLOMA 1875. MEDAL 1877. Vegeleya Candies are not to be surpassed by any make in the city. At 26 Second St., they have a large variety of candies, Marron Glaces, Fruits Crystaline and Fancy Candy Boxes.

PHILIP OPPENHEIM successor to Burner & Oppenheims, has removed to 219 Post street, where a full line of ARTISTS' MATERIALS, Brushes, Frames, Paints, Oils, Varnishes, etc., can be found. Preparations are being made to exhibit the Works of our Local Artists Free to all. Remember, 219 Post.

THE great rage for "China" and pottery which has lately manifested itself amongst the higher circles of society all over the civilized world, has not failed to find its way to San Francisco. The thousand beautiful designs of Dresden and other work which are to be found in the emporium of Nevers, O. Lawton & Co., 609 and 611 Market street, attract every day a large crowd of purchasers. The rare beauty of this ware, both in design and color, is hardly to be surpassed—and its popularity is ever on the increase.

THE ladies (bless 'em) who brighten the hearth and gladden the homes of the dwellers in the Queen City of the Pacific, justly enjoy the distinction of possessing excellent taste in matters of dress. A walk along Kearny street any afternoon will sufficiently demonstrate this fact to the most casual observer. Whether robed in the silks and other costly fabrics which are the privilege of affluence, or attired in the less pretentious productions of the loom, they are all alike remarkable for neatness and "good style." It is, perhaps in the matter of boots and gloves that they are specially enticing; and in these particulars—the latter for choice—several enterprising citizens take good care that they shall be well supplied. For excellence of make and fitting, promptitude in the execution of orders, and reasonableness of price, no establishment in the glove trade can surpass that of the "Bankhoff" Glove Manufactory, at No. 114 1/2 Post street, two doors from the White House. This factory is as well equipped as the most renowned establishment of its kind in Paris, having very complete machinery, a large staff of cutters, sewers, etc. Any lady or gentleman can have their gloves with from 2 to 40 buttons, measured to the exact size of their hands, and delivered to them in two hours. In regard to appearance, durability, etc., these Gloves will be found immeasurably superior to any imported goods.

EASTERN THEATRICALS

THE following items are from the New York Mercury, etc.:

A grand welcome greeted the great American tragedian (Edwin Booth) at the theatre which bears his name, and which was honored by his return to its stage on the 7th. The occasion was notable for the number and quality of those present and for the presentation of Shakespeare's original text of "Richard III," in six acts, instead of five, as in Gibber's version. The dialogue and situations were arranged by Mr. Willie Winter.

MODJESKA has, unfortunately, attracted the officious interest of the absent Neilson's chief engineer of high-pressure newspaper prints, and, like her, must endure the consequences of the infliction. Modjeska is, however, an artist, while Neilson is only an actress. Modjeska's refinement and intellect is apparent in all her attempts, but her most powerful scenes fail to thrill, and it is in this that she ceases to merit comparison with Rachel. Clara Morris, although not as polished as Modjeska, is yet her superior in this respect. Had Modjeska been less puffed in advance, Mr. Fiske's audience would have more fully appreciated her artistic qualities, but in addition to preliminary puffing aroused the public to a keener critical sense of what she lacked toward greatness. Her mastery of English in a few months indicates indomitable will, earnest application, and scholarly intelligence, which has already won intellectual sympathy. It is not improbable that Manager Fiske has duplicated in Modjeska the business tactics employed in presenting Mary Anderson. That lady appeared in her weakest portraiture first, and probably Modjeska has done the same. Great things are, therefore, expected of her "Camille." (It has been announced by the telegraph that Madame Modjeska made a triumphant success in "Camille" on Monday night.—ED. FOOTLIGHT.)

THE ladies (bless 'em) who brighten the hearth and gladden the homes of the dwellers in the Queen City of the Pacific, justly enjoy the distinction of possessing excellent taste in matters of dress. A walk along Kearny street any afternoon will sufficiently demonstrate this fact to the most casual observer. Whether robed in the silks and other costly fabrics which are the privilege of affluence, or attired in the less pretentious productions of the loom, they are all alike remarkable for neatness and "good style." It is, perhaps in the matter of boots and gloves that they are specially enticing; and in these particulars—the latter for choice—several enterprising citizens take good care that they shall be well supplied. For excellence of make and fitting, promptitude in the execution of orders, and reasonableness of price, no establishment in the glove trade can surpass that of the "Bankhoff" Glove Manufactory, at No. 114 1/2 Post street, two doors from the White House. This factory is as well equipped as the most renowned establishment of its kind in Paris, having very complete machinery, a large staff of cutters, sewers, etc. Any lady or gentleman can have their gloves with from 2 to 40 buttons, measured to the exact size of their hands, and delivered to them in two hours. In regard to appearance, durability, etc., these Gloves will be found immeasurably superior to any imported goods.

Our Sacramento Letter.

SACRAMENTO, Jan. 18, 1878.

EDITOR FOOTLIGHT:—The cantata of "Esther" was presented at the Metropolitan Theatre on Wednesday and Thursday evenings. The house was almost packed in every part on Thursday evening, many ladies occupying the gallery. The gods of the gallery have no great taste for entertainments of this nature; though, doubtless, the management could have added many "shekels" to the coffers if they had introduced a dog into the scenes. I must confess that I was surprised at the completeness of every stage detail in the production of this lyrical drama. Aside from the fact that the scenes were old, time worn, and an eye sore to this community, the selections and settings evinced good taste and judgment. The music of "Esther" is possessed of but little character, yet it particularly adapted to the amateur's egotisms. The company was composed as follows: Manager and pianist, Mrs. T. H. Berkey; leader of orchestra, A. Heyman; stage manager, Albert Hart; conductor, H. K. Snow; treasurer, C. M. Prodder; caleinm lights managed by M. S. Hamann; solo singers, eleven; a double quartett; adult chorus singers, sixty-one; five children as pages and dancers, forty-four children in marches and choros, and one person in a speaking part, altogether one hundred and twenty people.

The Sacramento Bee of last evening published a very truthful and deserving article, condemnatory of the action on the part of the agent for the Morrow Estate, (the Metropolitan Theatre), which has been the means of so many managers loosing money in this city and disgusting the public. It is about time that the ex-centrix of this property, or her agent, should wake up to the fact that the days of the Metropolitan Theatre are numbered. A policy of "freeze out" has been pursued for so long, that the house can no longer stand, and is now offered for sale; but he can rest assured no sane person will even purchase it for a theatre. Its reputation is ruined, and its usefulness as such is at an end. The recent action, which deprives our people of the pleasure of witnessing the performances of the Union Square Theatre Company, by asking a weekly rental, equal to $13,000 per year, has capped the climax.

I have to announce to your readers that a new and appropriate act was added to the cantata to "Esther" on this occasion. It was performed this morning at about ten o'clock at a private residence in this city. Mr. Walter Campbell who, the evening before personated King Ahasuerus, and Mrs. J. K. Marriner, who assumed so successfully the role of Queen Esther; were in the presence of five witnesses united in the holy bonds of matrimony by the Rev. Dr. Dwinelle. They took their departure for San Francisco on the 10:45 train. A large number of friends were present at the depot to bid them adieu, not one of whom were aware of that but a few moments before the King and Queen of the lyric stage were bona fide man and wife. Mr. and Mrs. Campbell may rest assured that their merits as artists are fully understood and appreciated by the citizens of Sacramento, and if, as man and wife they again appear before our people to cater to their amusement, they are sure of a cordial welcome.

California Theatre.

A "Black Crook" audience (which is synonymous for a house crowded in every part) assembled last night at the California Theatre to witness the first production in America of the celebrated Offenbachian play, "A Trip to the Moon." It would seem almost impossible that the "Black Crook," as a spectacle, could be excelled—but it must be admitted that in "A Trip to the Moon" Voegelin has surpassed all his former efforts in beautiful scenic effects, and given us a series of pictures of unparalleled beauty; whilst the Kiralfy ballet, improved by their extended practice, present a series of new and graceful choreographic performances, which blend most harmoniously with the action of the play. The musical excellence of "A Trip to the Moon" is great, and the vast audience were lavish in the expression of their approval of the manner in which the numerous songs and choruses were rendered. Miss Alice Harrison sang in more brilliant style than usual, and made a decided hit in the sparkling chansons, "I want the moon," and "Cares and idens we leave below," with Mr. Keene and Mr. Bishop. Little Miss Grace Plaisted was well received in the part of the Princess, and was warmly applauded in her duet with Miss Harrison. Miss Marian Singer and Miss Jennie Reiffarth also contributed materially to the success of the musical portion of the play. The "Trip to the Moon" is superbly mounted, and the extraordinary and novel effect of the air ship leaving the "Queen of Night" is a marvel of scenic and mechanical art. The moon, from the mountains of which planet the air ship is launched, at first fills the entire area of the stage, but as the air ship, provided by "Cactus," nears the earth, it gradually recedes, and finally is seen overhead of the magnitude to which the vision of terrestrial beings is accustomed. The scene of the descent of the Prince Caprice and his adventurous companions is laid at the Golden Gate, and concludes a series of the most delightful stage pictures we have ever seen. The piece is full of fun from beginning to end, and in this respect "A Trip to the Moon" is superior to its successful predecessor; the "run" of which it is pretty sure to equal.

Grand Opera House.

"The Regiment of Champagne" commenced its second week at this theatre yesterday. The splendid military spectacle is evidently growing in public favor, as was sufficiently testified by the large and enthusiastic audience last night. The scenes of the Battle of Landrecies and "The defence of the Standard" are very exciting. The piece will positively be withdrawn at the end of this week to make room for the grand Southern spectacle of "Uncle Tom's Cabin," which will be produced in an entirely novel and very magnificent manner, with all the effects which have made the play so great a success lately in the East.

MR. GRAY will shortly issue the "Old Corporal" Quadrille, and other selections from Gorza's music for that powerful drama dedicated to Signor Majeroni, who commences an engagement at the California Theatre on the 4th proximo.

THEATRICAL GOSSIP, Etc.

CIPRICO may be expected "home again" next week. Fates and Furies!

THE Thompson Burlesque Company go to Boston soon—then jump to San Francisco. The party was never so strong as now.—Phila. Mirror.

A CHICAGO journal says that Aimee has envious rivals, but is, nevertheless, without a peer in opera bouffe, but after all she needs to join a Sunday school pretty bad.

THE Bush-Street Theatre will re-open on Saturday evening the 26th inst., with Madame Rentz's Female Minstrels, and the Mabel Santley London Burlesque Company.

WILLIAM MACRAY LAFFAN formerly connected with the San Francisco press, and recently of Baltimore, will visit this city in April next as business manager for John E. Owens ("Solon Shingle.") PIERRE BERNARD has thought it necessary to acquaint the Salt Lake folks, in a card, that Mlle. Irma di Muraka possesses, among a whole string of peculiar musical abilities, great "magnetic power of detonation." Exactly! Some of the lady's late lamented "consorts" were uncomfortably aware of this fact.

MRS. W. J. FLORENCE says that her husband will produce a new piece next season, in which, unlike "The Mighty Dollar," there will be several excellent parts for artists in different "lines," and one in which it is whispered the gifted lady herself will play a part as a principal member of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals.

The Boston papers are unanimous in their praise of the "Exiles." A contemporary says: "No one should fail to visit the theatre before the play shall be withdrawn, for it offers pleasure and profit to all, whether lovers of the drama or not,—a view of the tableau of the ferryman's boat being in itself well worth the time employed.

FRED. G. MAEDER is progressing with his new play for Mr. Frank Frayne and it promises to be strongly sensational. Scenes are laid in India, in the jungles, etc.; one act transpires in an island in the Pacific Ocean. Mr. Frayne is anxious that Mr. Maeder should personally superintend its production in either Philadelphia or Baltimore, in one of which cities it is likely to be produced in the spring.

Crowded audiences continue to witness the "Exiles," at the Boston Theatre. The centres of attraction are De Lussieres and Nadege, played by Mr. James and Miss Wainwright. There are said to be some inconsistencies in the production of the "Exiles." Four files of soldiers abreast in a march through a dense forest; Miss Wainwright's boot-heels, which are not larger than a three cent piece at the base, worn in a tramp through deep snow by a young lady "exile," who has not even bread to eat; the surprisingly quick reviving of Tatiana at the smell of brandy, and her strength of voice when coming out of the frozen situation she was in; and the quick death of Schelm after taking the medicine which the Surgeon-Major offers as a sleeping draught.

A MINNESOTA exchange, speaking of a recent performance of "The Chimes of Normandy" by the Hess Opera Company delivers itself of the following eulogy on our talented little California prima donna: "Miss Emelie Melville has a clear, flexible voice, full of sympathetic expression, and at the same time of a brilliant bravura quality, which in her range of impersonation, is an exceptional combination for enthusiastic success. Not a coldly conceded meed hard wrested from carping critics, and vacillating public opinion, but a staunch, true, spontaneous uprising of popular appreciation and approval wherever this charming young vocalist is heard. Her handsome face has the most winsome and arch expression, and the glance of her eye is more dangerous than the much besung Kate Kearney's. In the last scenes where there is considerable extravagance of speech and action in carrying out the role of the quasi Marchioness, Miss Melville, in her dress, dancing, and expression recalls the old palmy days of the Grand Duchess and the triumphs of the now forgotten Tosti."

ARGANDIANA.

Now the Devil is out of business.

THE latest thing in quack nostrums is to be called "The Beecher Elxir." It is to be taken by heads of families, with the object of enabling them to bring into the world beings superior intellectually and physically to those who inhabit it, and who will be disposed to good instead of evil. At least this is what we gather from last Sunday's discourse of the gay Lothario of Plymouth Church, as reported in the newspapers.

THE great New York Herald and London Daily Telegraph "explorer," Mr. Stanley, says that in the wildest part of Ujiji (near Lake Nyanza) he discovered a lot of Pongo's relatives, who, although they possess all the usual characteristics of the gorilla, yet an extraordinarily delicate perfume arises from their skins. His curiosity being excited by this unusual peculiarity, Mr. Stanley made enquiries, the result of which proved that this eminently cultured race were in the habit of using Slaven's Yosemite Cologne.

THE art of forgetting is a blessed art, but the art of letting things slide is quite as important. If we should take the trouble to write down the origin, progress and outcome of a few of our troubles, it would make us so ashamed of the worry we make about them, that we should hasten to drop such things and bury them at once in eternal forgetfulness. Life is too short to be worn out in petty worries, frettings, hatreds and vexations.

As an actress Mlle. Roze fails utterly. She is the possessor of rare beauty, and both in face and figure is undoubtedly one of the handsomest women on the stage, but of human passion and emotion she seems to have absolutely no conception. It is impossible to enter into the sorrows of Leonora as portrayed by her.

It is with feelings of great disappointment that we write these words, for we had anticipated a rare treat in hearing this new-found treasure of the art-mine of Europe."

[This is simply another of the inevitable results of the over-advertizing and puffing which is Max Strakotch's besetting sin. Ed. FOOTLIGHT.]

EASTERN THEATRICALS.

From the New York Sunday Mercury we take the following items:

EMILE REGINER and his wrestling bear "Lemi;" and Le Dompneur and his wrestling bear "Marion," were in Providence, R. I., 8th inst.

EFFIE ELSLER and company were in Akron, Ohio, 14th inst. The lady's engagement at the California Theatre has been deferred for the present.

"THE wonderful apostolic clock" has been the attraction at York, Pa. for the last week. Captain Reid and lady explain its mysteries, and attract large crowds.

THE Opera House, Hamilton, Canada, in its last throes. Manager Richardson is considerably down in the mouth because the police notified him that he must not produce his "Female Bathers" on the 5th.

FORDS' Opera House, Washington, has been closed for some time, and is likely to remain so for an indefinite period. No legitimate company will engage here, as the bad business by variety shows has killed chances for a respectable attendance.

COLD weather and bad business of the past week have added the following to the mortuary list of traveling companies: Harrison's "Two Orphans," at Covington, Ky.; Hughes' "Egyptian Mystery," at Crawfordsville, Ind.; and the Angle Schott company, at Columbus, O.; also the Tivoli Variety Theatre, at Little Rock, Ark.

At Wood's Theatre, Cin., the Dizzy Blondes were scooped in after the performance 1st, but were dismissed at the police court trial 3d. Hyams, the manager, was bound for two weeks on his own recognizance, Hyams wants the authorities to do something, but they won't; in fact, it is generally supposed that they cannot make out a case. He proposes, it is said, to sue the city for damages, as business has dropped off since the withdrawal of the Dizzies. From Chicago we hear that the show is too much restricted by police regulations.

Our Buffalo Letter.

BUFFALO, January 12, 1878.

ED. FOOTLIGHT:—Denham Thompson, assisted by a fair company, performed to well pleased audiences Monday and Tuesday of this week. The play was "Joshua Whitcomb," and is somewhat similar to "Solon Shingle." The title role was enacted by Thompson—who is immensely funny—in a very creditable manner, keeping the house in a constant roar all the time by his natural and talented portrayal of the Yankee Farmer.

On Thursday Col. Ingersoll, the great Western orator, delivered his lecture on "Liberty of Man, Woman and Child," drawing a very large audience.

At Shelby, Delehanty and Hengler, lions in their specialty, are engaged for next week.

Theatricals in Buffalo are very dull just now, but we are promised in the sweet by and by the creme de la creme of the profession.

Gilmore and his big band give a concert here on Monday, prior to his very soon departure for Europe. W. H. W.

"UNCLE Tom's Cabin" is the current attraction at Holladays Theatre, Baltimore, with Mrs. G. C. Howard as Topsy, and her husband as St. Clair. The Virginia Jubilee Singers are features, and sing some dismally pious melodies wherever they can be lugged in. The general tendency of the performance is depressing and suicidal, and the audience indulged in a wail of anguish at the end to see Uncle Tom and Eva going upward instead of another direction.

MULLER'S SPECTACLE DEPOT, 135 MONTGOMERY STREET.

WHAT A LOVELY FIGURE!—Exactly so; but the secret lies in the splendid fit of the dress. She uses the "DOMESTIC" PAPER FASHIONS. Fall styles now ready, at 29 Post street, between Kearny and Montgomery.

PREMIUM CANDY FACTORY—DIPLOMA 1875. MEDAL 1877. Vigoreys Candies are not to be surpassed by any make in the city. At 26 Second St. they have a large variety of candies, Marrow, glacés, Fruits Crystalline and Fancy Candy Boxes.

PHILIP OPPENHEIM, successor to Burner & Oppenheim, has removed to 219 Post street, where a full line of ARTISTS' MATERIALS, Brushes, Frames, Paints, Oils, Varnishes, etc., can be found. Preparations are being made to exhibit the Works of our Local Artists Free to all. Remember, 219 Post.

THE æsthetic tastes of the San Francisco public are being cultivated and ministered to more and more daily. Not only in the palaces which rear their heads unto eternal sky on the shores of Nob Hill, are due collections of books, flowers, pictures, marbles, mosaics and all the beautiful things that make the charm of life to be found. Art, aided by science, has placed many of these luxuries within the grasp of men who have not yet achieved the distinction of being millionaires; and even the most unpretentious and modest home need not be without its adornments in the way of BIRD A' NAAC. The Danish terra cotta work, a large variety of which can be found in the magazines of Messrs. O. LAWTON & Co., 609 & 611 Market street, is amongst the most quaint and admirable of ornaments for the drawing-room tables and etageres. It is very delicately manufactured, and the greatest perfection is arrived at in the finishing of the various figures of poets, peasants, warriors, amazons, Undines, etc., which are constructed from it. A special supply of this popular ware has been laid in to meet the want of purchasers during the holiday days.

THE ladies (bless 'em) who brighten the hearths and gladden the homes of the dwellers in the Queen City of the Pacific, justly enjoy the distinction of possessing excellent taste in matters of dress. A walk along Kearny street any afternoon will sufficiently demonstrate this fact to the most casual observer. Whether robed in the silks and other costly fabrics which are the privilege of affluence, or attired in the less pretentious productions of the loom, they are all alike remarkable for neatness and "good style." It is, perhaps in the matter of boots and gloves that they are especially enticing; and in these particulars—the latter for choice—several enterprising citizens take good care that they shall be well supplied. For excellence of make and fitting, promptitude in the execution of orders, and reasonableness of price, no establishment in the glove trade can surpass that of the "Danish" Glove Manufactory, at No. 114½ Post street, two doors from the White House. This factory is as well equipped as the most renowned establishment of its kind in Paris, having very complete machinery, a large staff of cutters, sewers, etc. Any lady or gentleman can have their gloves with from 2 to 40 buttons, measured to the exact size of their hands, and delivered to them in two hours. In regard to appearance, durability, etc., these Gloves will be found immeasurably superior to any imported goods.

Sacramento Letter.

SACRAMENTO, Jan. 19, 1878.

EDITOR FOOTLIGHT:—In the absence of theatrical intelligence, perhaps your readers would find something interesting in the society news of Sacramento, which seems to offer more for the entertainment of our people during the ensuing week than anything else.

The second meeting of the ladies of Sacramento was held last evening to perfect arrangements for the benefit of the Howard Benevolent Association, and there was a large attendance, comprising the "select" of our city. The next meeting will be held at the Library parlors on Monday next, at which the district committee, for the purpose of canvassing, will be appointed. This association is a credit to Sacramento, and does a noble work for relieving the poor and sick, both local and transient, among us, and its annual benefit will, doubtless, meet with the success it deserves.

The Eureka Social Club will give its fifth annual "Legislative Ball Masque" at Turner Hall, on Thursday evening, Jan. 24th. This is always the most "recherche" affair of the season in Sacramento, and no expense or pains is being spared to make it a success. The arrangements being made are thoroughly complete. Very handsome tickets, accompanied by printed rules, which are a credit to the printers art, have been issued, admitting a lady and gentleman, and an application card for ladies' ticket, on which the residence may be written, whereby the service of a carriage is secured for the evening. Price of gentleman's ticket $3, including carriage. The officers of the Eureka Social Club are as follows: President; D. J. Simmons, stock, money and real estate broker; Vice President, Gus. Lavenson, boot and shoe dealer; Secretary, Samuel Marks, clerk Pacific Mutual Life Insurance Company, and Treasurer, Benj. J. Wilson. The early part of the evening will be taken up by an instrumental concert, and we are promised something fine for the entertainment of the numerous spectators which will doubtless be present. In the cantata of "Esther" we became convinced that elegant costumes are procurable for Sacramento, and we trust the patronage on next Thursday evening will exercise their ingenuity and judgment to the end that this ball will be in every way the success which the enterprise and efforts of the management deserve.

The Robert Burns Scottish Benevolent Association announce its seventh anniversary entertainment to take place the following evening. It will consist of a vocal and instrumental concert, recitations, readings, and a grand ball.

VIATOR.

The Philadelphia folks are disappointed with Madame Marie Roze-Perkins, Max Strakosch's newest Queen of Song. The critic of the Musical Mirror says: "She is in no sense a great singer. Her voice is not powerful, is of very limited compass and its uppepper notes are strained, harsh and uncertain, entirely devoid of that liquid quality which gives to the singing voice its greatest charm. Its only remarkable and praiseworthy characteristic is the wonderful sweetness, richness and sympathy of its lower and middle register."

MR. HENRY KIMBALL having disposed of his interest in THE FOOTLIGHT, Mr. Albert H. Kimball is no longer connected with this paper.

ROBERTSON & SHELLEY, Proprietors.

NOTICE.

In consequence of the above-mentioned change, and the unavoidable confusion occasioned by the removal of the publication office to 525 Market street, the present issue of THE FOOTLIGHT does not appear in quite as unexceptionable a form as usual. To-morrow, however, our readers may rest assured that the paper will be quite up to the standard.

California Theatre.

"A Trip to the Moon" drew another immense audience last night. The rain seems now to be considered so entirely a matter of course, that people have given up all notion of staying at home in consequence. Such an attraction as "A Trip to the Moon" is, however, enough to lure the most timid from their homes. The play is the most splendidly glittering pageant that has ever been put on the California stage, and the two scenes of the "City of the Moon" and the "Mountains of Ice" are of themselves quite sufficient to repay a visit; to say nothing of the beautiful ballet scenes, the "transformation" scene, and the "Halls of Fantasy." The music is of that sparkling and "ear-tickling" character, for which the works of M. Offenbach are famous; and is efficiently rendered by Miss Alice Harrison (who in her "ravishing" costume as Princess Caprice has led captive the few adamant hearts that had hitherto been proof against her attractions), the tiny debutante Miss Grace Plaisted, Miss Marian Singer and Miss Jennie Reiffarth. Mr. Keene makes an excellent Microscope, costumed after the manner of Trenitz in the ever familiar "Angot," and he dares with a surprising agility and apparent delight. Henceforward he should be announced on the bills as Girard-Majillou-Vokes-Keene. Mr. Mestayer is fitted with a character completely sui generis in King Cosmos, and in the scene in which the Princess harmoniously implores her papa to "grant the pardon" of the adventurous trespassers, King Pin and his companions, her ineffectual efforts to embrace the Daniel Lambert figure of William B. bring down thunders of applause. Mr. Bishop is droll and good natured as King Pin and accomplishes the "Mountebank" song fairly. He is low comedy incarnate, but does not shirk musically—from no want of the ut de poitrine, however. The rest of the cast is as usual at the California Theatre, efficiently sustained. Miss Belle Chapman is a shade too youthful and pretty for the consort of so truculent a monarch as the "Mau in the Moon," though she looked quite sufficiently awful and grim for a moment or two on Monday evening when her black haired little "daughter" calmly handed her angust mother a bouquet or two to hold whilst she responded to an encore. "A Trip to the Moon" will of a surety draw bumper houses during its run, which at present is intended to cease on the 2nd Prox., the Majeronis engagement being announced to commence Feb. 4th.

Baldwin's Theatre.

The performance of "The Marble Heart" at this theater on Sunday evening, for Mr. Walden Ramsay's benefit, was such a marked success that the management have decided to repeat it on Friday and Saturday (matinee and evening). Miss Wilson will appear as Mademoiselle Marco, in which character she achieved a most signal triumph, which was all the more pleasing from the circumstance that she has been exiled from the stage by reason of the "spectacular" business, for some time past. The Union Square Company nominally conclude their season on Saturday evening—but a last performance of "The Two Orphans" is announced for Sunday evening—and it is just possible that manager Maguire, who has no attraction ready to replace them, may make arrangements by which we may enjoy yet further performances by this entirely excellent organization.

Grand Opera House.

"The Regiment of Champagne" continues as attractive as ever. The battle scenes are very fine; and the introduction of such a number of horses on the stage quite eclipses the former glories of Henry V., Chilperic, Peter the Great, &c. "Uncle Tom's Cabin," with a vast amount of exquisite Florida scenery, plantation and jubilee songs by real negroes, "The Little Log Cabin," and an immense deal of entirely new additions, will be produced next Monday.

The second concert under Mr. Widmer's direction takes place Sunday evening, and ought to be well attended.

THEATRICAL GOSSIP, Etc.

MISS MAUD HARRISON'S benefit will take place this afternoon at Baldwin's Theatre. The popular play "Led Astray" is underlined.

"THE TWO ORPHANS" will be performed at Baldwin's Theatre for the last time by the Union Square Company on Sunday evening.

MESSRS. I. W. TABER & Co., of the Yosemite Art Gallery, 26 Montgomery street, have just taken a very excellent portrait of Signora Majeroni, the coming star at the California Theatre.

FRED. LYSTER is organizing an opera bouffe company which will most probably appear shortly at Baldwin's Theatre. Miss Catherine Lewis will be the prima donna soprano, and Mr. Harry Gates, late of the Richings-Bernard Company, the tenor.

MR. THOMAS MAGUIRE, Manager of Baldwin's Theatre, has been tendered a benefit by the members of the Union Square Company who have been playing in this city for the past two months. The performance will take place on Monday next.

W. R. HEROLD'S second concert season commences this afternoon at Metropolitan Temple, and a first-class performance is promised. The orchestra consists of fifty pieces. Selections from the works of Beethoven, Handel, and other celebrated composers are included in the programme, and a new number—the overture to "Sakuntala," by Goldmark will be rendered for the first time.

THE World has a long history of the troubles of the Pappenheim Opera Troupe under the management of Mr. Fryer. That gentleman, whose late disappearance caused a good deal of excitement, turned up at the Louisville Hotel, on the 13th. He stated to a Louisville reporter that, feeling despondent, he had drank too deeply. He met with two gentlemen unknown to him, representing themselves as railroad men. The next he remembers is finding himself in Nashville; while there he staid at a private house. He did not know that he was causing any great uneasiness. He had with him enough of money for expenses. Inasmuch as Mr. Fryer has emerged from his retirement, his explanation must remain sufficient. He was despondent, and, crushed by ill-fortune, he simply, and without design, was obscured for a few days by too deep potations.

MR. FRYER complains of the embarrassments that Adams and Pappenheim always threw in his way, and their desire to get rid of him. He does not think they can, in that way, make him at all liable for the debts, and gain the advantage of future profits. He will insist on his contract.

EASTERN THEATRICALS.

MARY ANDERSON is meeting with great success in the South.

MONTAGUE is ill with malarial fever at the residence of Lester Wallack, at Stamford, Conn.

NELSON DECKER, late of the California Theatre, has been engaged for juvenile business at Union Square.

CLAY M. GREENE has joined the Williamsons to personally direct the forthcoming production of Freaks of Fortune.

Dead Secret is the title of Bonicault's new drama, to be produced at the Fifth Avenue at the conclusion of Modjeska's engagement.

LILY DAVENPORT had just accepted an offer from John McCullough to be leading lady in his San Francisco theatre when her fatal illness began.

MARIE WAINWRIGHT has filed a petition in the Supreme Judicial Court of Boston, asking that her husband, Winston Henry Slaughter, be restrained from interfering with her personal liberty.

MODJESKA is having immense success in Camille. A curious incident occurred on the first night of her "Camille." In the third act there was a noisy cavity in one of the cages which annoyed Modjeska exceedingly. She coolly took down the cage, threw the bird and all out of the widow, and then quietly turned to have her heart broken by "Armand's" father.

It is said trouble is brewing between Wallack and the Union Square Company in regard to Denney & Cormon's Cause Celebre. The play is to be produced at one theatre on the 24th instant, and at the other on the 26th. The right to produce the play in the United States was purchased by one house, and it is hinted that there is some awkwardness with regard to its production at the other, with which Boucault's name is connected.

ARGANDIANA.

"DR." WALTER J. ADAMS is the boss glass smasher. He can give Dr. Carver long odds. Adams amused himself on Monday evening by breaking a number of plate glass windows on Kearny street, and made splendid practice until "time" was called by the police.

THE morning papers are considerably exercised about a funny story published in the Bulletin last night, the subject of which was the capture of Buncan. The reason of the outcry seems to be that for an evening journal to indulge in a bogus sensation is regarded as an infringement of vested rights.

MR. EDWARD KIDDER, late agent to the Liugard Combination, is evidently an exceedingly well-informed person. He writes in a desperate "flurry" (and shockingly bad English) to the N. Y. Clipper to reveal the astounding fact that "Our Married Men," a play in which Messrs. Robson and Crane have lately made a considerable success in Cincinnati, has been taken "bodily" from Un Chapeau de Paille d'Italie. This is awful! and we cannot wonder that Mr. Kidder is indignant.

THE Methodist preachers of Boston have resolved that "all attempts to reform the theatre are Utopian and in vain, and that we can hold no relation toward this school of vice but that of stern, unrelenting, Christian hostility; and we honestly recommend all people who would support good morals in society to persistently abstain from attendance upon the theatre."—Ex.

WE apprehend that this exhortation will have but little effect, as long as the "School of Vice" can make its performances more attractive than those of Methodist preachers in general. "Stern, unrelenting Christian hostility" is queer doctrine. Kind, forgiving, Christian charity, reverend sirs, would be more fitting language for you to hold.—[Ed. FOOTLIGHT.]

DEATH OF MRS. ALEX. AUSTIN.—The many friends of Mrs. Alexander Austin, who has resided in this city since 1850, will be pained to learn that she passed away from earth yesterday afternoon. Her death was caused by a carbuncle on the neck near the spine. The funeral will take place on Thursday, from the Occidental Hotel. Every pioneer will feel a personal grief at the loss of this estimable lady.

WISE AND OTHERWISE.

ANNA DICKINSON is re-writing "Hamlet," and turning the First Gravedigger into a female star part.

"PAPA," said a little girl, "give me a ride on your knee, won't you?" He took the little gallop at once.—Unknown Paragapher.

MORAL suasion is good enough in its way, but a half pint of catnip tea will do more towards inducing the eolic to let go its grip on a young baby's interior than all the moral suasion in America.—St. Louis Journal.

WHAT A LOVELY FIGURE!—Exactly so; but the secret lies in the splendid fit of the dress. She uses the "DOMESTIC" PAPER FASHIONS. Fall styles now ready, at 29 Post street, between Kearny and Montgomery.

PREMIUM CANDY FACTORY—DIPLOMA 1875. MEDAL 1877. Voegelja Candies are not to be surpassed by any make in the city. At 26 Second St., they have a large variety of candies, Marron Glaces, Fruits Crystallise and Fancy Candy Boxes.

PHILIP OPPENHEIM, successor to Burner & Oppenheim, has removed to 219 Post street, where a full line of ARTISTS' MATERIALS, Brushes, Frames, Paints, Oils, Varnishes, etc., can be found. Preparations are being made to exhibit the Works of our Local Artists Free to all. Remember, 219 Post.

THE Esthetic tastes of the San Francisco public are being cultivated and ministered to more and more daily. Not only in the palaces which rear their heads unto eternal sky on the shores of Nob Hill, are fine collections of books, flowers, pictures, marbles, mosaics and all the beautiful things that make the charm of life to be found. Art, aided by science, has placed many of these luxuries within the grasp of men who have not yet achieved the distinction of being millionaires, and even the most unpretentious and modest home need not be without its adornments in the way of BRIC A BRAC. The Danish terracotta work, a large variety of which can be found in the magazines of Messrs. O. LAWTON & Co., 609 & 611 Market street, is amongst the most quaint and admirable of ornaments for the drawing-room tables and easels. It is very delicately manufactured, and the greatest perfection is arrived at in the limiting of the various figures of poets, peasants, warriors, amazons, Undines, etc., which are constructed from it. A special supply of this popular ware has been laid in to meet the want of purchasers.

THE ladies (bless 'em) who brighten the hearths and gladden the houses of the dwellers in the Queen City of the Pacific, justly enjoy the distinction of possessing excellent taste in matters of dress. A walk along Kearny street any afternoon will sufficiently demonstrate this fact to the most casual observer. Whether robed in the silks and other costly fabrics which are the privilege of affluence, or attired in the less pretentious productions of the loom, they are all alike remarkable for neatness and "good style." It is perhaps in the matter of boots and gloves that they are specially entailing; and in these particulars—the latter for choice—several enterprising citizens take good care that they shall be well supplied. For excellence of make and fitting, promptitude in the execution of orders, and reasonableness of price, no establishment in the glove trade can surpass that of the "Danish" Glove Manufacturing, at No. 114 1/2 Post street, two doors from the White House. This factory is as well equipped as the most renowned establishment of its kind in Paris, having very complete machinery, a large staff of cutters, sewers, etc. Any lady or gentleman can have their gloves with from 2 to 40 buttons, measured to the exact size of their hands, and delivered to them in two hours. In regard to appearance, durability, etc., these gloves will be found immeasurably superior to any imported goods.

Burlington Hawk-Eyetems.

DAVENPORT has 1,200 blue ribbon wearers.

Those Sunday school picnics have been indefinitely postponed.

COLLECTORS report that a great many people swore off on the first of January—from paying bills.

A BURLINGTON man has invented a method of bottling up sunshine in the summer, which he proposes to sell at the price of a dollar a quart in the winter.

BURLINGTON keeps abreast of the times. At a ball the other night one of the belles got mad, and in a fit of jealousy assaulted her partner and gave him the belle punch.

ON Monday night fifty-four fat chickens were stolen from the poultry house of a Davenport man. The thief would have taken a larger load, but the roads were so bad he couldn't pull it.

"The wicked stand in slippery places," but for a perfect picture of reckless insecurity, you want to look at a frightened woman trying to stand on a camp stool to keep out of the way of a mouse.

THEY are making fine gold jewelry now, so you can't tell it from brass, and it comes about as cheap, too. We make this statement from our own observation, but then we are not a very good judge of gold.

JOHN BILLINGS says, "Life is made up of sunshine and shadow—about five shadows to one sunshine." Joshua, Joshua, do you know what it is that makes men see shadows and things in quintuplicate?

"What makes you walk so strangely?" an inquisitive friend asked a man with an artfully concealed artificial leg. "Oh," replied the disabled railroader, "I've slipped an eccentric and am only working one side."

AFTER carefully counting himself, and very carefully verifying the count, Senator David Davis sighed, and sadly admitted to himself that he didn't believe he was much more of a majority this year than he was in 1877.

A CHRISTMAS message from the summer land was received at a recent seance in Salt Lake City. It read, "No rustling around to fill ninety-two long stockings this year," ended with an audible chuckle, and was signed, "B. Y."

"Nothing," remarked a teacher of botany, the other day, "Nothing will come up when the ground is frozen." If the teacher will just try to put the crupper on a bay mare when it is feeling a little dyspeptic, he will discover there are two things which come up like rockets without any regard to the weather.

A LITERARY man of Monmouth offers to sell us the plot of a splendid novel for one hundred and fifty dollars. One hundred and fifty dollars!!!! Three days after the first of the year! Gracious heavens, man, if all the plots of the middle ages, and all the novels from the days of Fielding down to yesterday, were offered for ten cents, we couldn't give a thirty days' note for a title page. One hundred and fifty—Gods! is the man mad?

A DYSPEPTIC subscriber of the Bridgeport Standard sent a postal card, anonymously, of course, beseeching the editor to suppress the funny man, as the subscriber couldn't endure him, and threatened to stop the paper if the funny man was kept on. Investigation traced the complaining card back to a man who owed for seven years' subscription, a six months advertisement, and had once been arrested for stealing the paper from a neighbor's doorstep. Prindle still glorifies the third page.

"MINNIE MYRTLE" writes us a charming little poem beginning, "Life is not all thorns." Well, dog gone it, did we say it was? Don't come howling to us about a statement we never made; go to the man who said life is all thorns, and don't go fooling around him with poetry either. Just slip a brick in the toe of a long-legged stocking, and hide it behind you and walk up to him and tell him he's a primordial liar, and dassent take it up. Then if he makes a motion swing the stocking and stave in the top of his head. We're with you in this thorn business, and we believe you are right.

WIT is a weapon which sometimes bursts in the hand. Sir Henry Wootton, a diplomatist of the reign of James the First, wrote in a friend's album, "Ambassador: an honest man appointed to live abroad for the benefit of his country," and he lost his place through it; the king being of opinion that the witicism was a reflection upon his own political morality—such as it was.

"Didn't you guarantee that that horse wouldn't shy before the discharge of a cannon?" "Yes, I did, and I'll stick to it. I never shies till after the cannon is fired."

THE FOOTLIGHT.
THURSDAY - - - JANUARY 24

MR. HENRY KIMBALL having disposed of his interest in THE FOOTLIGHT, Mr. Albert H. Kimball is no longer connected with this paper.

ROBERTSON & SHELLEY, Proprietors.

California Theatre.

The weather having kindly consented to "hold up" last evening, there was a marked increase in the proportion of ladies who attended the performance of "A Trip to the Moon;" and as the fair sex are always pleased with what is beautiful, there was even more enthusiasm apparent in the audience than on the first two nights of the production. It is almost impossible to speak too highly of Voegtlin's scenery. The view of the stately palaces and towers of the Lunatic Capital, half veiled in a soft haze, and gorgeous in coloring, produces a soft and languorous effect that is very delightful; and the scene of the ballet "Les Flocons de Neige" is also of marvelous beauty. Neither Beverley nor Telbin ever produced anything more effective. There is any amount of fun (a great deal of it impromptu) in the piece; and Keene, Bishop and Alice Harrison have a splendid opportunity for "spreading" themselves in the burlesque line, which they make the most of, and seem to enjoy thoroughly, too. The rotund Charley is considerably "pumped" after assisting in the response to the inevitable encore to the ad lib dance in the second act. "A Trip to the Moon" is giving immense satisfaction to the management and the public.

Grand Opera House.

Jules Claretie's grand historical military spectacle "The Regiment of Champagne" is continuing to draw goodly audiences every evening. The scenery is excellent, and the action and incidents of the drama decidedly interesting. Miss Pixley, as the vivandiere Madelon, obtains immense applause for her brilliant singing, and looks pretty enough to ensnare the "Old Guard," "Le Petit Caporal," and the consistory of Cardinals. The piece now goes with great smoothness, cavalry charges, mellays, and all. "The Regiment of Champagne" are to cease hostilities on Saturday next, and will be thereafter disbanded. Their present camp will be occupied shortly by Mrs. Harriet Beecher Stowe's sable hero "Uncle Tom" and his cabin.

Metropolitan Temple.

The first orchestral matinee of Herold's Second Concert Season took place yesterday at Metropolitan Temple, and was well attended. The selections were excellent, and were rendered in a delightfully artistic manner by a first-class orchestra. The most noteworthy feature of the performance was the production of the overture to Goldmark's work "Sakuntala," which is a skillfully arranged composition, and includes a variety of charming harmonies. The rest of the programme teemed with beauties, and the entire performance was highly appreciated by the audience. Mr. Herold was unfortunately so indisposed as to be compelled to retire at an early stage of the entertainment; but Mr. Widmer, to whom he resigned his baton, made a very efficient substitute. The next concert will take place on the 30th inst.

EASTERN THEATRICALS.

MR. GYE is negotiating for the production of "Paul et Virginie" at the Royal Italian Opera, London, this season, Mme. Patti and M. Caponi to sustain the principle roles.

EMERSON'S CALIFORNIA MINSTRELS are to commence a season in the Olympic Theatre Jan. 14. Billy Emerson is the proprietor and Gus Phillips manager. The prices will be 15, 25, 50 and 75 cents.

THE LINGARDS are now in the twenty-fourth week of their present season. Gordon's play of "Heart and Crown" is one of the strongest features of their repertory. They announce their dates as filled to March 2.

DURING McCullough's recent engagement at Washington, he was magnificently feted and entertained. He is given to after-dinner-story-telling, and some of his inimitable stage anecdotes were hugely entertaining.

THE last week of Mr. Boucicault's engagement at the Grand Opera House will be the present. "The Shaughraun" is to continue the attraction. Samuel Colville's Folly Company is to commence an engagement in "Babes in the Wood" Jan. 21.

A SUNDAY EVENING concert under Messrs. Abbey and De Vivo's management, was given at the Park Theatre on the 13th. The participants including Sig. Brignoli, Mlle. Galinberti, Mme. Teresa Carreno, Sig. Tagliapietra and Sig. Susini. The general admission was put at 50 cents.

AT FOX'S AMERICAN THEATRE, Philadelphia a notice was posted in the green-room to the effect that the season and all engagements terminated 12; re-opening under new management 14. W. J. Gilmore and Joseph M. Mortimer, it was rumored, would respectively act as lessee and manager; but our latest advices are that the rumored change of management is premature.

THE WILLIAMSONS closed at Bidwell's Academy of Music, New Orleans, La., with the performance of Jan. 6, and Alice Oates' Comic Opera Troupe opened 7 to a crowded house, the opera "Girofola" being given. The troupe were evidently suffering from the effects of climatic influences, but sang with great effect the greater portion of the opera, the remainder being spoken.

"LITTLE BILLY'S Last Request," so tenderly sung by little Billy Birch, of San Francisco Minstrels, has awakened the bards of St. Louis, Mo., one of whom has just ushered into existence a sweet and touchingly pathetic ballad, entitled "Trim the Lampwick Gently, Sister," while another has composed, "Put More Butter on the Codfish." It will be seen that both efforts run to grease!

ROBERT HELLER had a sudden and somewhat serious attack of illness on Thursday night last in his apartments in the Fifth-avenue Hotel. Stanley Dust, his business manager, called upon him a short time before the hour of commencing the evening performance, and found Mr. Heller upon the floor of his room in a comatose condition. The prompt application of friction and stimulants speedily revived him, and he was enabled to go through his entertainment.

AT the Academy of Music, Philadelphia, the production of "Uncle Tom's Cabin" has proved a most successful holiday attraction, being placed on the stage in a style seldom witnessed, with an excellent cast of characters. The plantation scene, with the jubilee singers in their wonderful songs, was a most realistic scene, while the tableaux of the "Rocky Pass," and the "Mississippi river by Moonlight," were indeed magnificent. "Uncle Tom's Cabin" will be continued through the week.

REV. HENRY WARD BEECHER is credited with having uttered: "I never saw a play in my life. I never played a game of cards. I do not know one card from another. I never went to a horse-race. There are many other things which other people do, but which I never did." On the night of Jan. 10, says a Baltimore paper, he visited the Holiday street Theatre, in that city, to witness "Uncle Tom's Cabin," but that is not a play. Like "George Barnwell," "Jack Sheppard," and "The Drunkard," it is "a great moral drama."

AT the Fifth Avenue on the 11th, and during the rest of the week, after the drama, Modjeska acted Juliet in the balcony scene of "Romeo and Juliet" to the Romeo of W. F. Burroughs. Divested of the wig which she had worn as Adrienne, she presented a much more youthful appearance than hitherto, and the audience were permitted for the first time to see her undisguised. As she stepped upon the balcony she created a marked impression. Her hair, which was plainly dressed, fell down her shoulders in two long rolls, and she was richly and becomingly costumed. She invested the character of Juliet with much passionate warmth and fervor of feeling, read the lines intelligently, and did the conventional business artistically. Her success was attested by liberal applause. There was an increase in the attendance during the week. Madame Modjeska also appeared as Juliet on the occasion of the benefit of John Brougham, at the Academy of Music, January 17th.

STANDING-ROOM only was nightly placarded at Gilmore's Holiday-street Theatre, Baltimore, Md., the past week. It was thought that "Uncle Tom's Cabin" had been rather overplayed here, but it proved otherwise, as persons who had not been inside of a theatre for years came to witness this revival. With its attractive scenery, the Jubilee Singers, and the realistic plantation scene, in which over one hundred negroes, Warren Griffin and his banjo in the centre, appear on the stage at one time, it made a night both novel and striking. As Topsy Mrs. G. C. Howard was, as usual, excellent. Her singing and "Hoe-down" provoked abundant applause. The other characters were well performed by Mr. George C. Howard and the Company. Owing to the unexpected success of this play, Manager Gilmore has bought off the company that was billed for Jan. 14th, and will continue it another week, giving it an extra matinee to meet the demand.

THE popular impresario, W. H. Gilmore, is rapidly accumulating the $10,000 necessary to enable him to take his band to Europe for the Exposition. Mr. Gilmore should be assisted in his enterprise, as his appearance abroad is certain to redound to the credit of the musical resources of this country.

MADAME ROZE (Perkins), the new prima donna, is said to be a charming and accomplished lady as well as an extraordinary singer. She remained in Paris during the Commune, at the risk of her life, singing in concert for the benefit of her suffering countrymen.

CHAS. FETTER is to act Obenreizer in "No Thoroughfare" at the Broadway Theatre the present week, save on Saturday night, when he will close his engagement with a performance of Edmond Dantes, in "Monte Christo."

GEORGE CLARK is to make his first appearance in America since his return from England, at the Fifth-avenue Theatre, Jan. 28th, and on that date James Lewis and Katherine Rogers are to be added to the company.

HENRY C. JARRETT sailed for England in the steamship Britannic, Jan. 12, to arrange for the production of "Uncle Tom's Cabin" in London.

F. C. BURNAND is to translate "Une Cause Celebre" for F. B. Chatterton.

THEATRICAL GOSSIP, &c.

A COMPLIMENTARY benefit has been tendered to Mr. George Bates, Principal of University School, Eddy street, by some three hundred of his former and present pupils of that institution. The performance will take place on the 2nd proximo, at Baldwin's Theatre.

THE second of the series of Sunday evening concerts under Mr. Widmer's direction will be given at the Grand Opera House on the 27th inst. A very carefully selected programme is announced, and judging from the excellence of the performance last Sunday, there should be a large attendance.

MR. EDWARD F. THORNE, leading man of the Grand Opera House Company, will have a benefit on Sunday evening, Feb. 3d. Shakespeare's play Richard III. will be presented, the crook-backed tyrant being personated successively by Mr. Chas. R. Thorne, Mr. Barton Hill, Mr. Metkiff, and, possibly, Mr. Aibischer.

A NUMBER of the friends of Miss Rose Moss, amongst whom are Mayor Bryant and other prominent citizens, have tendered to the lady a complimentary benefit, which is intended to take place at the Grand Opera House, on February 10th, Miss Moss' play, "Broken Chains," will be produced for the first time.

SEATS for the performance at Baldwin's Theatre, next Monday evening, for the benefit of the veteran manager, Mr. Thomas Maguire, are being rapidly disposed of. This will be positively the final appearance of the Union Square Company in this city. Mr. Maguire has the intention to take a short trip to the East in a few days with the object of securing fresh attractions.

MISS ADAH RICHMOND takes a benefit at Emerson's Opera House on Sunday evening. The musical extravaganza "Golden Butterfly" will be presented. A pretty woman in distress will always engage the sympathy and support of the public; and as this, we take it, is Miss Richmond's position, she should be able to count upon seeing the theatre packed on Sunday evening.

THE talented and favorite actor, Mr. John Jack, is to assume the management of Emerson's Opera House after the termination of the Adah Richmond Company's engagement. Under Mr. Jack's experienced direction it is to be hoped that the fortunes of this handsome little theatre will soon again be in the ascendant. Mr. Jack has secured the services of Miss Annie Firmin, Mr. Curtis, Mr. & Mrs. Edmonds, Mr. Collins, &c., and proposes to open his season about the 30th inst. with the great New York success, "Baby," followed by Robertson's comedy, "Ours."

Too late for insertion—notice of resumption of Fountain Concerts, on Monday evening, at 8 P. M., will appear in tomorrow's FOOTLIGHT.

ARGANDIANA.

WANTED.—For the sorting-room of a rag warehouse, an active man, with a thorough practical knowledge of cotton and woolen rags, and capable of managing about eighty women. To a suitable party a very liberal salary will be given.—E.

Such a man ought to get about eighty millions a year, and would probably never live to draw six months salary.

THE amiable, accomplished, and reminiscent old fogey, who does the dramatic business of the Mail, clings persistently to the notion that Mile Corsi appears in the Kiraly ballet at the California Theatre. The lady (who, by the way, is a very accomplished dancer) has unfortunately been prevented by indisposition from taking part in any of the performances of the Kiraly ballet since their appearance in Sacramento.

SINCE the addition of Dr. Carver, the "shootist," to the specialties introduced into the performance of "A Trip to the Moon," at the California Theatre, it is said that Messrs. Torrence, Voegtlin, Greenlock and the other gentlemen whose duties render it necessary for them to be in attendance in the mysterious regions above the stage, have been notified that the premium on their life insurance policies will be considerably increased during Dr. Carver's engagement. The doctor uses a Winchester rifle for the performance of his feats of marksmanship; and the property room and paint room during the exhibition are as warm as Hades during the late bombardment by the Russians.

840 Market Street,

SAN FRANCISCO.

THE ladies (bless 'em) who brighten the hearth and gladden the homes of the dwellers in the Queen City of the Pacific, justly enjoy the distinction of possessing excellent taste in matters of dress. A walk along Kearny street any afternoon will sufficiently demonstrate this fact to the most casual observer. Whether robed in the silks and other costly fabrics which are the privilege of affluence, or attired in the less pretensions productions of the loom, they are all alike remarkable for neatness and "good style." It is, perhaps in the matter of boots and gloves that they are specially enticing, and in these particulars—the latter for choice—several enterprising citizens take good care that they shall be well supplied. For excellence of make and fitting, promptitude in the execution of orders, and reasonableness of price, no establishment in the glove trade can surpass that of the "Danish Glove Manufacturing Co., at No. 114 1/2 Post street, two doors from the White House. This factory is as well equipped as the most renowned establishment of its kind in Paris, having very complete machinery, a large staff of cutters, sewers, etc. Any lady or gentleman can have their gloves with from 2 to 40 buttons, measured to the exact size of their hands, and delivered to them in two hours. In regard to appearance, durability, etc., these gloves will be found immeasurably superior to any imported goods.

THE aesthetic tastes of the San Francisco public are being cultivated and ministered to more and more daily. Not only in the palaces which rear their heads unto eternal sky on the shores of Nob Hill, are fine collections of books, flowers, pictures, marbles, mosaics and all the beautiful things that make the charm of life to be found. Art, aided by science, has placed many of these luxuries within the grasp of men who have not yet achieved the distinction of being millionaires; and even the most unpretentious and modest home need not be without its ornaments in the way of nice art. The Danish terra cotta work, a large variety of which can be found in the magazines of Messrs. O. LAWTON & Co., 609 & 611 Market street, is amongst the most quaint and admirable of ornaments for the drawing-room tables and etageres. It is very delicately manufactured, and the greatest perfection is arrived at in the modeling of the various figures of poets, peasants, warriors, anansons, (bullies, etc.), which are constructed from it. A special supply of this popular ware has been laid in to meet the want of purchasers.

There is no disguising the fact, for it is conceded by all, that DISE & CO., the grocers, are selling goods at prices that defy competition. You are waiting on in a most agreeable manner, and your goods are delivered at your home free of charge. Be sure and give them a call, at 534 Market street, near Montgomery

WISE AND OTHERWISE.

PROF. DARWIN'S son has married an American girl. The wedding was a quiet one, owing to the recent death of Pongo. Boston Post.

IN London, years ago, a prize of fifty dollars was offered for the best original joke, and Horne took it.—Norristown Herald. Now, be honest. Didn't Theodore Hook it?—Derrick.

It has been discovered that lager-beer is a certain remedy for corns. We believe the usual method of applying the remedy is to let it soak into the corn from the inside of the foot.—Burlington Hawk-Eye.

It is painful beyond description to see a Boston paper spelling Samson with a p. The hero of the Bible should never be mixed up with Thompson—at least, not without consulting Mr. Thompson.—C. J. Small Talk.

A Startling Idea.

A poorly-dressed, red-faced man, about forty years old, yesterday entered a store on Market street, and asked to be trusted for some tobacco. Being refused, he stretched out his arm, rolled up his eyes, and called out:

"I call upon Heaven to witness that I don't care to live an hour longer!"

"People are dying every day," quietly replied the merchant.

"I now solemnly declare that I will at once sell my body to the medical hospital for one dollar!" shouted the man.

"Let me give you a hint," remarked the merchant, "I know of a gardener who will give you twelve shillings for your carcass."

"What for?" was the hesitating query. "For guano, to help start his spring cucumbers!"

The stranger slammed the door with what some folks would call "an awful heartiness."—Detroit Free Press.

THE FOOTLIGHT.

FRIDAY - - - - JANUARY 25

Mr. HENRY KIMBALL having disposed of his interest in THE FOOTLIGHT, Mr. Albert H. Kimball is no longer connected with this paper.

ROBERTSON & SHELLEY, Proprietors.

Grand Opera House.

The last performances of "The Regiment of Champagne" will take place this evening and to-morrow (matinee and evening). There was a large audience last night, notwithstanding the unfavorable weather.

The second popular concert under the direction of the talented Chef d'orchestre, Mr. H. J. Widmer, will take place on Sunday evening. The programme contains eleven carefully selected numbers, and includes a pianoforte solo by the eminent pianist Mr. Hugo Mansfeldt, a grand cornet solo by Mr. John Savaniers, a professor who is entitled to a first place amongst American cornet players, and glees by the Madrigal Boys' Choir. With such a high class entertainment offered at so inconsiderable a charge for admission (50 and 25 cents, and no extra charge for reserved seats), there can be little doubt that the management will reap the reward due to their enterprise.

On Monday evening the drama "Poor and Proud of the Great City" will be produced. The "reconstructed" version of "Uncle Tom's Cabin" is in preparation and will be shortly presented in an unusually magnificent style, with over one hundred negro jubilee singers in old time plantation songs, &c.

California Theatre.

"Messieurs les voyageurs pour la lune, le train s'en va partir" every evening via the California Theatre at eight o'clock, military time. King Pin, Prince Caprice, and the saltatory sage Microscope, enter their patent Pullman Palace sleeping shell, and with a prodigious explosion, proceed on their journey to the upper air. "A Trip to the Moon" is beyond doubt the most attractive spectacular play that has ever been presented on the Pacific coast. Mr. Voegtlin is nightly called before the curtain to acknowledge the enthusiastic encomiums of the audience on his splendid scenery; and the ballet is simply superb. The Uln sisters, in their quaint costume, sing a very charming selection of Helvetian melodies in the third act, and the Vaidis twin gymnasts exhibit in their remarkable posturing acts. Dr. Carver's shooting performances are also a special attraction. First "Trip to the Moon" matinee to-morrow.

Baldwin's Theatre.

Mr. Charles Thorne and the Union Square Company will repeat their capital performance of "The Marble Heart," at Baldwin's Theatre this evening, and at the two performances to-morrow. Next to "The Danicheffs," this is decidedly the magnus opus of the company, and no lover of the legitimate drama should let pass this opportunity of seeing it satisfactorily illustrated. "The Two Orphans" is announced for a last representation on Sunday evening. The company will make their final appearance on Monday, on the occasion of the benefit tendered to Manager Maguire.

Bush Street Theatre.

Mr. Locke has had his popular theatre handsomely redecored, carpeted and painted during the late recess, and it will be reopened to-morrow evening with Madame Rentz' company of lady minstrels and Mabel Stanley's burlesque troupe. Both these organizations enjoy a high reputation. Their performances are said to be of a first-class order; and the management are careful to announce that there is not the most remote ground for any apprehension that ladies cannot with propriety attend.

The Fountain.

This place, dedicated to Comus, Bacchus, and Apollo, is from its central situation the excellence of its cuisine, the fame of its beer, and the comfort and luxury of its appointments, deservedly one of the best patronized resorts of its class in the city. It is daily thronged with business men, who take their modest luncheon towards noon, and later, with bon vivants desiring a good dinner well cooked and elegantly served. In the evening the Fountain is crowded with worshippers at the shrine of King Gambrinus, who whilst they drink the foaming, creamy productions of St. Louis, Milwaukee, and Budweiser breweries, are entertained with music provided by an excellent string band. The evening concerts have been discontinued for some little time, but will be resumed on Monday next, with an augmented orchestra. The Fountain may be regarded as one of "the institutions" of San Francisco.

THEATRICAL GOSSIP, Etc.

MISS BARNES, daughter of Rose Eytinge, made her professional debut in Chicago, a short time ago. She played Iris, in "Antony and Cleopatra," and is spoken of as a promising young actress.

A BOSTON exchange says: "The Danicheff" has become quite a standard, and an existing proof of the possibility of writing a play which shall be a success both from a moral and financial point of view.

FANNIE LOUISE BUCKINGHAM and "James Melville" have made an immense success in Portland, at least, so the Bee says. Portlanders are evidently people of great discernment. They were the first who discovered the genius of Aibischer.

"BABY" is announced for production at Emerson's Opera House by Mr. John Jack's Company next week. The management of the California Theatre, however, secured the Pacific coast right to this play some time ago, and it is probable will inhibit its representation.

MR. JAMES O. BARROWS, of the Grand Opera House Company, is announced to take a benefit at that theatre on Thursday evening next, the 3d inst. Mr. Barrows is a useful and intelligent "character" actor, and has acquired a good reputation in the assumption of such parts as those of Lawyer Gaddigotte in "Round the Clock," the Judge in "The Bottom of the Sea," and Mr. Stuffington Ballot, in "Freaks of Fortune."

Une Cause Celebre, about which there has been so much newspaper talk recently, was produced at New York on Thursday night. The criticisms are not very favorable. The Tribune says: "At its best it is no more than a singularity, while at its worst it is a common blood and thunder of the wild and whirling story papers, and the stage of our ancestors." The cast of "A Celebrated Case" was as follows:

Duke d'Anbelerre.....John Parrelle
Jean Renaud.....Charles Coghlan
Count de Morney.....Frank Hardenburgh
O'Rourke.....J. H. Stoddard
Sergeant.....H. W. Montgomery
John.....W. H. Wilder
Madeline.....Agnes Booth
Valentine.....Eleanor Cary
Adrienne.....Sara Jewett
Chauvinaud.....Mrs. G. H. Olbert
Duchess d'Anbelerre.....Mrs. C. A. Poole
Martha.....Lulu Jordan
Marie.....Roberta Norwood

The six principal parts are of almost equal strength. Mr. Coghlan has the central role. Excellent actor as this gentleman is, he falls short in the pathetic bits with which his part is larded. O'Rourke is a splendid Irish part, and so is that of the scoundrel Lazare alias Morney. Miss Jewett and Miss Carey have the two principal female parts, not unlike Henriette and Louisa of the Two Orphans in design.

BUSINESS continued very large at the Grand Opera House the past week, the only perceptible diminution in the attendance being that the lobbies were not so densely crowded with persons standing as during the previous week. "The Shanghai-runn" was the magnet.

An ungallant correspondent gives the following in regard to the ages of prominent actresses: Mary Wells, 47; Mrs. Barney Williams, 49; Rose Wood, 32; Sophie Worrell, 29; Eliza W. Weathersby, 30; Emma Waller, 48; Lydia Thompson, 47; Charlotte Thompson, 35; Mrs. Scott-Siddons, 33; Ristori, 51; Caroline Richings-Bernard, 47; Katie Putnam, 26; Lizzie Price (Mrs. Fechter), 36; Adeline Patti, 32; Josie Orton (Mrs. Ben Woolf), 34; Maggie Mitchell, 45; Emily Melville, 33; Lotta, 30; Celia Logan, 26; Dickey Lingard, 27; Mrs. Lander, 47; Clara Louise Kellogg, 36; Kate Fisher, 36; May Howard, 31; Mrs. John Hoey, 53; Alice Harrison, 27; Mary Gladstone, 48; Effie Gernon, 41; Rose Eytinge, 42; Mrs. John Drew, 54; Kate Denin 43; Fanny Davenport, 28; Mrs. Chanfran, 39; Mrs. D. P. Bowers, 47; Louise Pomeroy, 32; Ada Dyas, 35; Maud Harrison, 24; Maud Granger, 31; Kate Claxton, 33; Lillie Eldridge, 38; Bessie Darling, 22; Pauline Markham, 31.

ARGANDIANA.

It is doubtless an immense affliction to the majority of citizens that they should be "ground down" (whatever may be the exact signification of that phrase), beneath the iron heel of railroad monarchs, water monopolists, real estate cormorants, and the like. These bloated plutocrats should, of course, be detested on general principles; but, after all, their tyranny is mild compared to that which is daily exercised over the meek pedestrian by the imperious and haughty despots who drive hackney carriages, express wagons, milk carts, etc., in our streets. The utter recklessness and indifference to public safety that is habitually manifested by these sons of Nimshi, could not find a parallel anywhere in the civilized world. It is a common occurrence to see a "hack" drive at high speed across the intersection of crowded thoroughfares, to the imminent danger of foot passengers; and the youths who are frequently entrusted with the guidance of express wagons, seem positively to take especial delight in "charging" furiously at street crossings. That comparatively so few "accidents" occur from these causes, is miraculous; but hairbreadth escapes take place every day, and the immunity from punishment that is enjoyed by persons who, unfortunately, cause the death or serious injury of pedestrians, by careless driving, is an encouragement to the continuance of the evil. Only yesterday, a gentleman named McDonald was run over by a hack at the junction of Market and Third streets, and very seriously injured. The driver thought "the pace was too good" to even stop to ask whether the miserable pedestrian was killed or not; and he will probably never hear a word about it. Perhaps Sen. Bouss, Mr. Kearney and the other patriots who are so desirous to secure an amelioration of the condition of the oi polloi, will kindly take this subject into their august consideration.

Why They "Wilt."

A physician of Rochester says that the girls of that town are very pretty, and they grow in grace and loveliness until they are about eighteen or twenty, when they get pale, sickly-looking and faded, "going all to pieces" at twenty-six. Among the causes of their deterioration he enumerates a lack of exercise in the open air, the wearing of veils that interfere with breathing, tight-lacing, round dances and too much study. This condemnation of the waltz comes from an unexpected quarter, as that dance has hitherto been denounced by the people who were anxious about the souls rather than the bodies of the waltzers. It might be worth while to consider as a mere matter of curiosity whether the "unnatural excitement" of the round dance of which this physician speaks is as dangerous to health as he supposes; but the investigation will have little effect upon the popularity of the pastime, which has outlived everything, from the sarcasms of Byron to the platitudes of Mrs. Sherman, and will hardly be put down by more physiological facts.—Virginia Chronicle.

John McCullough Speaks.

A reporter of the New York Dramatic News, in a recent interview with Mr. John McCullough, obtained from that gentleman the following information respecting the California Theatre. Mr. McCullough said:

"I defy the production of any notes bearing my signature. If any man has them he can obtain from me their full face value."

"What are the facts as to your alleged failure with the California Theatre, and the disbandment of the company?"

"I have not ceased my connection with the California Theatre in any way, and am still its manager and intend continuing so. The reported disbandment of my company has been grossly exaggerated. There are several artists in the company who have no contracts, and have been engaged during the pleasure of the management. We are entirely at liberty to do away with these if we see fit, and as a matter of business policy, without there being raised a general outcry of failure. Eastern theatres disband their companies every eight months. The actors and actresses in my employ have been constantly occupied and constantly under salary for eight years. They have never known the want of a week's salary. I have not thrown them out for the four summer months, as do the Eastern theatres. Last summer, in consequence of my losses in the management of Baldwin's Theatre, I instituted a temporary reduction of salaries. But nobody grumbled about it but outsiders. There has been no parallel in the history of the American stage to the continuous engagement of the California company. It now so happens that we desire to put on a Christmas spectacle for a month or so. It is tacitly understood by both the management and the artists that yearly they may be out of employment for one month at this time of the year. This is all there is about it. I am as solvent as ever I was. It is utterly untrue that I have dissolved my connection with the California Theatre, or that I have wanted to. It is true that I have made some foolish engagements, but this is because California has also had her monetary reverses, and there is more opposition than there was."

"Will this opposition affect you?"

"Any man would be foolish who treated an intelligent opposition with contempt. I am convinced thoroughly that some one has to go. But the California possesses all its old-time prestige. Who will break, is a question for the future to decide. The California is financially solid, but, when I say this, I mean solid in the ordinary sense of the term. It has not at the back of it a capitalist, like Mr. Baldwin, who owns Baldwin's Theatre, and who is worth $10,000,000. If he is determined that Baldwin's Theatre shall be a permanency, he is the man that can make it so, because of those $10,000,000. There are too many theatres in San Francisco today. That any man can see. But I am not the man to retire from my ventures because of that. The California Theatre is just in the same position it always was, and I am identified with it, as I always was, all reports to the contrary notwithstanding."

The above is more than sufficient to refute the absurd reports of the moribund condition of the California Theatre, which have obtained currency in Eastern journals through the misrepresentations of interested and ill-informed persons. The California Theatre is to-day in a better position in every respect than almost any theatre in the United States; and under its present careful and instructed management has a bright and prosperous future before it.—Ed. Footlight.

840 Market Street,

SAN FRANCISCO.

THE ladies (bless 'em) who brighten the hearths and gladden the homes of the dwellers in the Queen City of the Pacific, justly enjoy the distinction of possessing excellent taste in matters of dress. A walk along Kearny street any afternoon will sufficiently demonstrate this fact to the most casual observer. Whether robed in the silk and other costly fabrics which are the privilege of affluence, or attired in the less pretentious productions of the loom, they are all alike remarkable for neatness and "good style." It is, perhaps in the matter of boots and gloves that they are specially enticing; and in these particulars—the latter for choice—several enterprising citizens take good care that they shall be well supplied. For excellence of make and fitting, promptitude in the execution of orders, and reasonableness of price, no establishment in the glove trade can surpass that of the "Danicheff" Glove Manufactory, at No. 114 1/2 Post street, two doors from the White House. This factory is as well equipped as the most renowned establishment of its kind in Paris, having very complete machinery, a large staff of cutters, sewers, etc. Any lady or gentleman can have their gloves with from 2 to 40 buttons, measured to the exact size of their hands, and delivered to them in two hours. In regard to appearance, durability, etc., these gloves will be found immeasurably superior to any imported goods.

THE Esthetic tastes of the San Francisco public are being cultivated and ministered to more and more daily. Not only in the palaces which rear their heads unto eternal sky on the shores of Nob Hill, are fine collections of books, flowers, pictures, marbles, mosaics and all the beautiful things that make the charm of life to be found. Art, aided by science, has placed many of these luxuries within the grasp of men who have not yet achieved the distinction of being millionaires; and even the most unpretentious and modest home need not be without its adornments in the way of BAUC A BRAC. The Danish terra cotta work, a large variety of which can be found in the magazines of Messrs. O. LAWTON & Co., 609 & 611 Market street, is amongst the most quaint and admirable of ornaments for the drawing-room tables and etageres. It is very delicately manufactured, and the greatest perfection is arrived at in the lining of the various figures of poets, peasants, warriors, amazons, Undines, etc., which are constructed from it. A special supply of this popular ware has been laid in to meet the want of purchasers.

There is no disguising the fact, for it is conceded by all, that DIBB & CO., the Grocers, are selling goods at prices that defy competition. You are waited on in a most agreeable manner, and your goods are delivered at your home free of charge. Be sure and give them a call, at 834 Market street, near Montgomery.

Kellogg's Delicate Health.

In Philadelphia a few days ago Mme. Marie Roze was chatting with some friends, when a messenger interrupted—it was then ten minutes past two o'clock: "Miss Kellogg has sent word that she cannot sing this afternoon, and Mr. Strakosch wants to know if you will sing 'La Favorita?'"

"What!" ejaculated the astonished prima donna with a start; "this afternoon? Why, I have been talking all the morning, and am in no condition to sing."

"You can't do it," interrupted Mr. Mapleson. "there is no use thinking of it."

"But I don't want to injure Mr. Strakosch," she replied. But Mr. Mapleson was already on his way to the Academy, and did not hear her as she continued: "I'd rather try it than have him dismiss the house, for there must be a large audience. I could dress in twenty minutes if the audience would wait." Her guests sat and talked for a quarter of an hour longer, until Mr. Mapleson returned and said that Miss Kellogg, having had to face the alternative of singing or dismissing the audience, had concluded to sing and save her salary; so the curtain rose at about three o'clock. She had seemed in perfect health the night before, having come to her box after the "Bohemian Girl" and witnessed the whole of the second act of "Mignon," in which Mme. Roze had appeared. Miss Kellogg did not notify Mr. Strakosch until five minutes past two, and he, in disgust, threatened to cancel her contract. He will probably have to come to it before the season ends.—Philadelphia Ex.

THE FOOTLIGHT.

SATURDAY - - - JANUARY 20

California Theatre.

The management of the California Theatre are to be congratulated on the success which has attended the production of "A Trip to the Moon." Both in scenery, incident, and "fun" generally, it is certainly superior to its highly popular predecessor "The Black Crook," and would, undoubtedly, draw crowded houses for the next two weeks. The original text has been almost entirely discarded; and in its place an amusing, and in many cases in prompt, dialogue has been substituted, full of local allusions and "smart" sayings, which are very acceptable to the audience. The aptness and ready wit of Alice Harrison, Keene, Bishop, and Mestayer is in this way made very apparent. Miss Gracie Plaisted is doing very well as Princess Fantasy; and the musical portion of the piece is altogether well sustained. The ballets are the best that have ever been seen here; and, indeed, could scarcely be surpassed even in Paris. In order to avoid a surfeit of enjoyment, and to secure the final fall of the curtain at a reasonable hour, some judicious excisions have been made in the various scenes; and the adventurous travelers now return from their "Trip to the Moon" very shortly after eleven o'clock.

Grand Opera House.

"The Regiment of Champagne" under the command of the Count de Pardailhan, will parade for the last time to-day at 2 o'clock, and again at 8. The gallant colonel will fall on the bloody battle field of Landrecies, gloriously covered with wounds, and the lilies of France, and the shattered remnant of his compagnie d'elite will be seen no more. The piece is full of exciting situations, and is acted with a great deal of spirit. The readers of the FOOTLIGHT are strongly recommended not to lose this final opportunity of seeing it.

Mr. Widmer's second popular concert takes place at 8 o'clock to-morrow (Sunday) evening, and promises to be one of the most successful musical entertainments of the season.

The Madrigal boys are announced to sing a selection of their admirable glees; and lovers of good instrumental music will be more than repaid by hearing the magnificent performance of Mr. John Savaniers on the cornet. This gentleman has scarcely an equal in this country.

The drama "Poor and Proud of the Great City" will be produced Monday evening.

Baldwin's Theatre.

The "Marble Heart" will be given at this theatre to-day, at both matinee and evening performances. Miss Ellie Wilton (by permission of Mr. Barton Hill), again assumes the character of Mademoiselle Mareo. To-morrow evening the last representation of "The Two Orphans" will be given. Seats for Mr. Maguire's benefit on Monday evening are selling rapidly. The old Nestor of California managers has a multitude of friends who will all be anxious to avail themselves of this opportunity to do him honor; and the handsome theatre will no doubt be crowded to its utmost capacity. The "Marble Heart" is underlined for the occasion.

Bush-street Theatre

This theatre opens to-night with Madame Rentz' Company of Female Minstrels and the Mabel Santley London Burlesque Company, in the burlesque "The Forty Thieves." Both companies are well known in the East, and during their progress to this coast have commanded the admiration of the press and public where ever they have appeared. The Denver Tribune of January 16th says: The troupe fully sustains the flattering encomiums bestowed by the press in the East, but so excellent a performance seems to deserve a more extended plaudit. To enter to a taste invariably found in larger cities, the company does not present any features likely to offend. Dash and devilry but no vulgarity, nothing the least offensive. The minstrelsy and burlesque acting is exceptionally good. Two features deserve special mention, the costumes and the orchestra. The dresses are really superb in style and fabric, and the music compares favorably with that of any Eastern orchestra of the same number of pieces. The end men are funny without over-doing it, and the interloer is a good actor. The closing burlesque, "The Forty Thieves," brought out the full strength of the company, and with witty sallies, happy local hits, apt puns, and bewitching music and songs, made a splendid ending for the entertainment.

The Bush-street Theatre has been entirely renovated, re-decorated, and newly-painted and carpeted. New scenery for the occasion has been prepared; and there is every indication that Mr. Locke will add another to his already respectable list of successes.

The Fountain.

This place, dedicated to Comus, Bacchus, and Apollo, is from its central situation, the excellence of its Cuisine, the fame of its beer, and the comfort and luxury of its appointments, deservedly one of the best patronized resorts of its class in the city. It is daily thronged with business men, who take their modest luncheon towards noon, and later, with bon vivants desiring a good dinner well cooked and elegantly served. In the evening the Fountain is crowded with worshippers at the shrine of King Gambirinus, who whilst they drink the foaming, creamy productions of St. Louis, Milwaukee, and Budweiser breweries, are entertained with music provided by an excellent string band. The evening concerts have been discontinued for some little time, but will be resumed on Monday next, with an augmented orchestra. The Fountain may be regarded as one of "the institutions" of San Francisco. Mr. Casimir has succeeded in engaging the eminent cornet soloist, Mr. John Savaniers, of the Conservatorium of Brussels, who will give one of his admirable performances every evening.

Adelphi Theatre.

An excellent variety entertainment is given at this theatre every evening. The management have secured a good minstrel company, and an immense number of specialty artists. Of these the most noteworthy are George F. Moore, C. W. Cogill, the Kinies, Miss Irene Summers and James Webster the great clog dancer. Butler and Russell's sketch of the "O'Briens at Home," is a fine piece of Irish characterization, and Lavarrie's afterpiece, "Strongheart, the Trapper," is a vivid picture of frontier life.

THEATRICAL GOSSIP, Etc.

John Brogan is at work on a new opera bouffe.

"The Lyons Mail" has been revived at the Chestnut Street Theatre, Philadelphia—"Lion's Tail" to follow.

"The Geneva Cross" has been revived with success at the Boston Museum, with Miss Annie Clarke as Gabrielle and Mr. Charles Barron as Niel.

The Lyster Opera Bouffe Company, with Miss Catherine Lewis as prima donna, commence a season of four weeks at Baldwin's Theatre, Feb. 4th.

Michel and Labiches' comedy Un Chapeau de paille d'Italie has furnished another American play. It is entitled "That Hat," and is the work of Madame R. Neville.

The second Herold Matinee Concert will take place next Wednesday, at the Metropolitan Temple, Fifth street.

A TELEGRAM from Philadelphia, dated January 24th, announces that Mr. John E. McDonough, the actor, accidentally shot himself yesterday. The wound is serious, but not fatal.

The Pittsburgh Academy is crowded every evening to witness the performances of the Red Stocking Troupe. The company is said to be above the average, but very "naughty."

The Campbell Comedy Company closed a two week stay at Library Hall, Pittsburgh, to light business. "Aladdin," with John A. Ellsler and Anna Ellsler, in the east, opened for two weeks 8th, to fair business.

The Majeronis commence their engagement at the California Theatre on Monday, the 4th of February. Opening play will be "The Old Corporal," in which the accomplished lady and gentleman have been so highly successful in Australia.

Miss ADAH RICHMOND's admirers are invited to rally round her (election phrase) to-morrow (Sunday) evening on the occasion of her benefit at Emerson's Opera House. This will be the lady's last appearance in San Francisco. The musical extravaganza "Golden Butterfly" will be presented.

The gallant Virginians, who adore beauty and talent, have determined to perpetuate the memory of the great actress of whom Poland and the "Golden West" are alike proud, by re-christening the original "Gold Hill" mine, which will henceforward be known as the "Modjeska."

The Rentz Female Minstrel Company and Mabel Santley Burlesque Troupe are due to arrive this evening by the overland train, and will appear at the Bush-street Theatre at 8 o'clock. The party consists of the following persons: M. B. Leavitt and lady; Wm. Lester and lady; Miss Mabel Santley, Miss Viola Clifton, Miss Gussie Crayton, Miss Louise Montagne, Miss Hattie Forrest, Miss Rosa Lee, Miss Lulu Mortimer, Miss Kate Love, Miss Ella Love, Miss Millie Rosita Leonie, Miss Emijy Hudspeth, Mr. A. E. Voos, D. Schiff, W. H. Mitchell, Geo. W. Dixon, Thomas Gilman, Ben Leavitt, A. S. Bailey.

WISE AND OTHERWISE.

If Cleopatra were nothing but a neck-lace for her ordinary costume, why did she need such a prodigious Needle?

We are not positively sure what Cleopatra's costume was. She was a person without Worth, and therefore could not have been properly dressed, and she was snaked to death; but we cannot argue positively from these premises.

Miss ROSE EYING calls her "Cleopatra" "her own creation." We may therefore look for quite a nu-drama; not a bit like Williams.—Philadelphia Bulletin.

EASTERN THEATRICALS.

The following items are from the N. Y. Dramatic News:

Mr. BOOTH's business at Booth's Theatre dropped off very considerably on Monday night. An evidence that the public want fresh material each week.

The receipts at the debut of T. H. Morgan in "Richard," at the Walnut-street Theatre, Philadelphia, Jan. 7th, were $128. He was to have shared after $500.

A NEW tenor, of whom a great deal is predicted, will appear with the Strakosch Company in Chicago. His name is Sarti. This was thought more euphonious than Astor.

COLVILLE'S Folly Troupe (late Lydia Thompson Company) have been playing "Babe in the Wood" at the Globe Theatre, Boston. The company are said to give a very fine entertainment. Mrs. Henri Laurent has proved very successful as Columbine. She is a good dancer, graceful and pretty.

PAPA PERRICHON, adapted from the French of MM. Labiche, and Martin's Le Voyage de Monsieur Perrichon, by a gentleman from Boston, who is too modest to allow the publication of his name, is to be produced this week at the Museum.

MISS ARCHIEA CHAMBERS, a charming young actress, who recently went out as leading lady of Mr. Daniels' Theatre in Deadwood (Black Hills), has had in the time she has been there, a little over two months, two hundred and seventy-six offers of marriage. In one day she received seventeen. Listening to them interferes with the time necessary to study her roles.

HENRY FRENCH, now in London, has sent to Henry Abbey, his partner in the Park Theatre, the manuscript of "The House of Danbury," which is to follow Raymond's engagement. This is the play which the late Bulwer Lytton left incomplete at his death, and Mr. Charles Coghlan finished. It is now being played in London with fair success.

MR. HESS, with his Melville Comic Opera Co., has struck a good line of business in the Northwest. In St. Paul he was booked for four nights, and business was so good that he remained seven. His average for these performances was $700 which, as he observes in a letter, "is better than $1,500 with the Kellogg Company." He is now working his way further South, and will go by way of Kansas City into Texas.

THE new Boucicault play was put into rehearsal at Wallack's Theatre on the 17th inst. The parts had been in the actor's hands two days previously. Mr. Wallack will himself play the principal part. In a few days we shall have a solution of this mystery. In the mean time little else is spoken of in theatrical circles. The story goes that the production is a version of D'Ennery and Cormon's Cause Celebre not obtained from the authors.

MADAME MODJESKA played on Monday evening in the role in which she should have made her first appearance here. Her Camille is so far superior to her Adriene that any comparison is impossible between the two. Adrienne was a disappointment, but Camille fulfills to a very great extent the lavish praise with which this lady was heralded by the trans-continental press. Madame Modjeska imbues the character of the fallen woman with a poetic glamour that takes it away from the atmosphere of vulgarity which even Dumas could not help throwing over the characters of the play. She altogether avoids the sensual and physical phases of Camille's character, and gives us a picture delicate and original.

Snook and Palmer will lose no time in making the Cause Celebre known in other cities, almost as soon as in New York. Within a fortnight of the time it is presented here it will be rehearsed in St. Louis and by the Union Square Company now in California. Mr. James O'Neill will there play the part here assumed by Mr. Coghlan, Maude Harrison will play that here taken by Sara Jewett, and Joe Polk will personate the Irishman, here performed by Stoddart. From St. Louis the company will go to Hooley's Theatre, Chicago, for three weeks with the play, and Cincinnati will also be visited besides several other of the larger cities, including Boston, thus carrying the troupe along until the close of the regular season.

CHIFFONS.

THE favorite dressy winter suits are made of velours frappe on a satin ground. Although these velvets do not make a youthful-looking dress, they are, notwithstanding, much in use, and no fashionable lady's wardrobe will be considered as complete without one of them. These dresses will be made, principally, in different shades of green. They are much trimmed up the front. The front of the dress does not consist of a band of this fancy velvet, extending down the whole front of the polonaise, thus forming the vest and apron, the dress is trimmed with "barrettes" of passementerie, rich embroidery, or galloon worked with all kinds of metal beads. Almost all the rich materials are combined with plain velvet, the latter being used for the reverse of the tunic, the large pelerine collars and the bias bands forming the borders. The velvet must always be in the darker shade of the figure in the velvet, while the faille trimming, bordering the squares, or the bias bands, are in the light shade of the ground. Satin is scarcely ever used alone at present, but is combined with velvet.

A BECOMING and very youthful style of walking dress, affected in rich materials, is a short princess dress of cloth or velvet, with a single flounce of silk in close plaits, without drapery or overskirt, trimmed down the front with many rows of silk braid or machine stitching, and transformed into a street dress by the addition of the Carrick with its many capes. Matching the snit, a toque of chenille or velvet of the same color completes the simplicity of the costume.

A NEW way of dressing the hair is to separate it in the back in two long braids, which are joined near the nape of the neck by means of a shell ring. Then the two ends of the braids are taken up, joined again in the middle of the head, and fastened by a shell comb matching the ring.

A BONNET of bronze-green velvet, trimmed with the style, cream-colored faille ribbon and a cluster of pink roses, with cream-colored quilling under the brim, is a very stylish affair.

A VERY rich and new material for afternoon dresses is a dark brown bonnette, interwoven with peacock green and red silk threads.

THE FOOTLIGHT.

MONDAY - - - - JANUARY 28

Bush-Street Theatre.

Mr. Locke has apparently struck another "big bonanza" in the Rentz Female Minstrels and Mabel Santley Burlesque Troupe, who gave their initial performance at his handsome theatre, on Saturday evening, to one of the largest audiences that has ever been seen in the house. The preponderance of the sterner sex was very noticeable; but then the weather was not such as to tempt ladies from their homes; and doubtless, also, the husbands thought it discreet to "prospect" before taking their wives to an entertainment the main attraction of which is admitted to be the exhibition of feminine loveliness. However, judged by the standards of the day, there is nothing in the performance to reprehend. Lydia Thompson, Miss Buckingham and other "artists" have taught us to consider that scantiness of costume is the proper thing in burlesque, and the party who at present occupy the boards at Mr. Locke's theatre, only follow the example; and being thus in the fashion, evidently suit the public taste "to a dot." The Rentz Minstrels are a comely and shapely dozen of girls, rather gorgeously attired, and possessing very fair voices. Their songs are well chosen and acceptably rendered. Miss Ella Love made a decided hit in the "Charmaine" ballad, which was loudly redemanded; and the "Cackle Cackle" song also received an encore. The "Aerial Queen," Miss Rosita Leonie, is a daring trapeze performer, and was much applauded. Unfortunately, however, the trapeze was fixed at such an altitude as to preclude the possibility of the performance being witnessed by those who occupied the seats at a distance from the stage. Lester and Allen are certainly the most amusing "song and dance" men that have been seen here for a long time, and they tumble about the stage in a manner which is astounding to witness. Miss Viola Clifton is an old California favorite and time seems only to have added to her charms, though it has not improved her voice. She appears in a "lightning change act" which she accomplishes in a very admirable manner. The performance concludes with the burlesque of "The Forty Thieves" in which the Mabel Santley Troupe appear in some astonishing "costumes," and which is a capital wind-up to the entertainment. The same bill will be repeated every evening until further notice.

Grand Opera House.

M. Widmer's concert was postponed on account of the very uninviting condition of the weather last night. Tickets already purchased will be good for next Sunday evening.

To-night Charles H. Morton's drama "Poor and Proud of the Great City" will be produced; in which Mr. Ed. F. Thorne will appear as the New York merchant, Allan Gregory. The play is of the "Under the Gaslight" type and illustrative of phases of life in the metropolis. It will be continued every evening except Saturday, which is reserved for the benefit of Mr. Ed. F. Thorne. Shakespeare's tragedy "Richard III." is underlined for that occasion; and Messrs. Barton Hill, Edwards, Keene and Metkiff will appear in the title role.

"Uncle Sam's Cabin" is in preparation and will be produced this day week.

California Theatre.

The aerial spectacle "A Trip to the Moon" commences its second week to-night. The audiences that attended the two performances on Saturday were very large, and the play has evidently great "drawing" power. With the kindly ballet and the fanciful conceits of Parisian idealists, Mr. Hill has struck a "paying lead," which, in conjunction with his astute associate, Mr. Locke, he is working with highly satisfactory results. "A Trip to the Moon" will occupy the boards during this week; and next Monday the California company will have to abandon the motley and once more put on serious faces whilst supporting Signor and Signora Majeroni, the Italian stars, who will commence an engagement in the romantic play "The Old Corporal," a drama written originally in the Italian language by Enrico Bellotti, and translated expressly for Signor Majeroni by Mr. Buchelle. The play is somewhat akin to Mr. Dampier's "Dagobert" in type and affords the opportunity for acting of a highly emotional character, in which the Italian actor is reputed to rival the great Salvini himself.

Baldwin's Theatre.

Mr. Tom Maguire's benefit takes place this evening. "The Marble Heart" will be given for the last time by the Union Square Company, assisted by Miss Mary L. Young. This will be the final appearance of the company. They leave to-morrow for Sacramento, Virginia City, Salt Lake, etc. The theatre will remain closed during the week; and will re-open on Monday next with Fred Lyster's Opera Bouffe Company in "La Fille de Madame Angot."

Emerson's Opera House.

Adah Richmond's benefit last night was but poorly attended, owing no doubt to the bad weather. To-night Mr. John Jack's new comedy company, consisting of himself, Annie Firmin, Mr. and Mrs. Edmonds, Mr. M. B. Curtis, etc., will appear in the popular play of "Baby."

THEATRICAL GOSSIP, ETC.

Miss ELLIE WILTON will open Piper's Opera House in Virginia with "Shadows." A PARTY by the name of Bonicault has died in Paris, but he was not a dramatist, and did not believe in Bonicaultations. He was a linen draper only, though an enormously rich one.

THE testimonial musical entertainment to Mr. Robert Bonner, the young California tenor, which was postponed from the 4th inst., is announced to take place at Pacific Hall on the 1st February.

THE Capital, Washington, D. C., is responsible for these companion notes Clara Louise Kellogg says: "Let who will make the laws of the nation, so that I sing to it." Annie Louise Cary says: "There's many worse women in the world than Clara Louise Kellogg; most of them, though, have no voices."

THE Strakosch English and Italian Opera Company, with Rize and Kellogg as principal stars, will be in Chicago from February 14th to 24th inclusive, long enough for several battles between the leading singers. Miss Kellogg is said to be improving as regards temper, though in the wrong direction. Chicago Evening Herald.

MUSICAL definitions from Pink.—Brass band—An association for the destruction of musical taste. Chief d'orchestra—A man who, though he is always beating time, never gets ahead of it. Cat—The originator of the Thomas' concert. Clarinet—An elongated owl. Concert—A musical circus the most extravagant feature often the most applauded. Deaf—Happy man! he cannot hear "Silver Threads Among the Gold." Duet—A double-barrelled song.

THERE has been war over the "Pink Dominos" in Dublin: the papers attack the play and the managers defend it. Then the "Pink Dominos" themselves publish in self-defense the praise the play has received from the provincial critics, and finally settle the question by an announcement in all the daily papers that his Royal Highness, the Prince of Wales, has been to see "Pink Dominos" no less than four times at the Criterion.

Majeroni.

The public are looking forward with considerable interest to the appearance on Monday next of the great Italian actor and actress, Signor and Signora Majeroni. The late triumphant success of Madame Modjeska has created an unusual interest in this event; and the audience which the lady and gentleman have already attained in their profession naturally adds to the desire to witness their performances. Signor Majeroni's career has been a brilliant one. He was born in Milan in the year 1810; and early evidenced great dramatic ability. It was originally intended that he should adopt the profession of a civil engineer; and he was educated with this view. On the breaking out of the war between Austria and Italy, in 1852, the young Majeroni, fired with patriotic ardor and the desire for distinction in the career of arms, abandoned his professional studies and took service as a volunteer in the artillery brigade commanded by Gen. Mezzacapo. He became a sergeant after two months' hard fighting, and was on several occasions complimented for his gallant behavior under fire. On the conclusion of the peace of Villa Franca, Majeroni retired into private life, and turned his attention to the stage, playing at first as a low comedian with a small dramatic company, and subsequently in the same capacity with the famous Madame Ristori. Finding after about two years that his forte lay rather in the direction of tragedy than that of comedy, Majeroni addressed himself to the study of "serious" parts, in which he made a decided success while under the auspices of the great Italian actress. He was for six years a leading member of the Dramatic Company at the Fondo Theatre in Naples, and became celebrated for his fine impersonations. In 1866 hostilities were again commenced between Italy and Austria; and Majeroni abandoned the sock and buskin, and a second time took up arms for the honor of his beloved country, this time donning the camice rosso and marching under the banner of the glorious old warrior "the Saviour of Italy," Giuseppe Garibaldi. Majeroni took an active part in the exciting scenes of that "short, sharp and decisive" war; being engaged in no less than twenty-three affairs in the space of two months, including the battles of Condino and Rocca d'Ampola, for which he obtained honorable mention for gallantry in action and was decorated with the military cross of honor. Soon after the conclusion of the war Majeroni joined Madame Ristori's company, and with them resumed his dramatic career, playing in every large city in Europe, the United States, and South America, and sharing everywhere the honors paid to his great relative, when Signor, Giulia Tassero, a beautiful and accomplished lady, he married in the latter part of the year 1866. It was during an engagement in London in 1871 that Mr. Mapleson, director of the Royal Italian Opera House, struck with Majeroni's aptitude for the acquirement of languages, strongly recommended him to study the English tongue, with the view of giving the plays of Shakespeare and other authors in their vernacular. This difficult task Majeroni undertook, and by his ability and great diligence succeeded in mastering all the obstacles in his way and making a triumphant debut before a very critical English audience. The triumph was rewarded by Signor Majeroni's excellent representation of Holofernes, Laertes, Duke Alfonso, Lafayette, &c., at the California Theatre in 1875, during Madame Ristori's brilliant engagement. Since that time his knowledge and pronunciation of our language have been carefully improved, and he is now at least rivalling amongst foreigners speaking the Anglo-Saxon tongue. His face is full of nobility and intelligence, and his eye gleams with the fire of genius and talent. His presence is courtly and commanding, and his gesture indicative of that true natural grace which like poetry, is the gift of birth, and is hardly to be acquired. His voice is soft, sonorous, flexible, and under the most perfect control. His softest whispers of invective are so distinct as to be clearly audible all over the theatre, and though forcible and capable of producing the most thrilling effect, never approaches rant. We anticipate an immense treat during Signor Majeroni's engagement. La Signora will appear in the great play of "Jealousy" during the week. She is a delightful actress, and adds in a high degree to the lustre of her husband's fame.

BUFFALO, JULY 19, 1878.

Kate Clifton has been the attraction at the theatre for the past week, in her justly famous part of the "Blind Orphan," and unquestionably in that particular character she is not surpassed, if at all equalled, in this country. For her benefit on Friday she played "Gilberte" in Fron Fron, very well, but not with the same ability she displays as "Louise." Her company is a passably good one, including Mr. C. A. Stevenson, Mr. E. V. Varrey, Miss Lilhan C. Clark, Miss Lotta Church, etc. The houses were good every night which speaks well for the play, as it has been performed here a great many times since it came out, and yet has lost none of its interest.

Gilmore Band discoursed some excellent music to an immense audience in St. James Hall on Monday, and on the following night a similarly large and well-pleased assemblage, witnessed the performance of Sir Michael Costa's Oratorio of "Eli" by the Buffalo Choral Union, under the leadership of W. Carl Adam. The soloists were Alex. Birchhoff, tenor, Adolph S. L. L. baritone, Miss Lotta M. Snow and Mrs. J. C. Hall, alto and soprano.

DRAMATIC ITEMS.

"UNE CAUSE CELEBRE" has been transferred to the Porte St. Martin, and its place at the Ambigu is filled by the "Case de l'Oncle Sam." Mlle. Talliendiera returned to the Paris boards in this touching drama.

THE man who wrote an additional act to "The Two Orphans," in which Louise recovers her sight, ought to be politely escorted to the frontiers of the country and be ordered to go and sin no more.—Philadelphia Mirror.

It is said that Jarrett & Palmer cleared $30,000 during the past three weeks from their "Uncle Tom's Cabin," venture. These figures, however, sound remarkably high when it is considered how completely threadbare Mrs. Stowe's played-out drama has now become. By the way, both Jarrett & Palmer have departed in search of health, Jarrett to Europe, and Palmer to the Arkansas Hot Springs. We should think that the mental stress upon a three weeks' effort to make the public believe "Uncle Tom's Cabin" a stupendous attraction, would be enough to destroy the health of a whole army of managers.—Philadelphia Mirror.

"PAPA PERRICHON," a one part play, has been produced at the Boston Museum. The part being that of M. Perrichon, a French saddler, who goes on a vacation to Geneva, accompanied by his wife and pretty daughter. The party is followed by two young men who are both in love with the daughter. The usual farcical complications ensue, but they are all unraveled when M. Perrichon decides upon a son-in-law, who happily proves to be the one loved by the daughter. Several choice bits of character acting are called for from the minor characters. Wm. Warren in make-up and acting was very amusing. The other characters are not strongly drawn, but J. Nolan, J. Burrows and J. H. Ring were acceptable in their small roles. "The Angel of Midnight" will be revived 19th, to run also next week. "My Son" and "Won at Last" will soon be produced. Modjeska opens February 25.

CLEANINGS.

The worst bank to be wrecked on—a savings bank.

A good way to cure a stammering tongue—hold it.

The study of a lass, alas! often occasions lassitude.

Why is an angry man like a camel? Because he has his back up.

However hard the times are, lazy people are always sure of their loaf.

Why is a spider a good correspondent? Because he is apt to drop a line by every post.

JACK FROST is a good carpenter; at least he knows how to make a good frieze.

As soon as a man gets perfectly familiar with his own name, he writes it so nobody can possibly read it.

"I THINK our church will last a good many years yet," said a waggish deacon to his minister. "I see the sleepers are very sound."

TORNET has dropped out of Mr. Beecher's theology. He says he hasn't any use for one himself. And yet he seems to be cheerful.

An exchange says: "Don't tell a married man any joke on the boys, for he'll tell his wife, his wife will tell her sister, and her sister will tell the rest of the girls."

A MISSIONARY among the Indians writes home that during the service the other Sunday he counted "five asleep and twelve dozen." That was one gross impropriety.

THE Chicago man who undertook to eat forty quails in forty days, has quailed, breaking down on the sixteenth day. He says he don't want to die in that way yet.

"THAT Husband of Mine" has made fifteen thousand dollars for Lee & Shepard, and a good many wives are wishing their husbands would go and do likewise for them.

ONE of the written questions at a recent school-examination was: "What is a relative pronoun?" One of the answers was: "It is a pronoun that tells you about your relatives."

A WELL-KNOWN professional, not renowned for politeness, saw an Irish artisan waiting in his hall. "Hello, you fellow, do you want me?" "No, yer honnor, I am waiting for a gentleman!"

"My experience at school," said an old judge, "was a good deal like a one horse railroad." "How's that?" asked a friend. "Why," responded the judge, "there were frequent switches and an occasional turn-out."

AN atheistical physician, wishing to annoy a bashful young clergyman, said, "How was it that the patriarchs lived to such an old age?" "I guess it was because they never took any doctors' stuff," was the reply.

HAWK BURLETTE, of the Bobington Birdseye, will lecture to-morrow night in Brooklyn on the Disclination of the Hirsute Ornaments of the Face. Go over the ferries and follow the crowd. You can't miss him.

A WITNESS, on entering the box, had a Testament presented to him, but he declined to be sworn. Being asked his reasons for refusing, he naively replied: "I'll tell a lie wif' any mon in England, but I'll not swear to it."

A REGULAR Hetches was brought before a justice of the peace for assault. "Have you any one to defend you?" asked the justice. "I can defend myself," cried the prisoner, and seizing a chair he cleared the court-room.

THE late Sir George Rose, the distinguished and witty English lawyer, was overtaken by a friend one day, who said to him: "I thought it was you walking so fast." "Ah! you know the rose by the stalk, do you?" responded Sir George.

"WHAT do you charge for a quart of your milk here?" asked a man, as he put his head in the door of a milk-shop. "Ten cents," was the reply. "Haven't you any for six cents?" "No, but we can make some in a few minutes," said the proprietor.

A PARISIAN fished a man out of the Seine, and soon afterwards found the same man hanging to a tree. He let him hang, and to an officer who asked him why he didn't interfere to prevent the suicide, he said: "Because I had just fished him out of the water, and supposed he had hung himself up to dry."

Eggs sell in Maine for a dollar and a half a dozen. In order to give them this value the shells are first perforated with two holes, the original contents blown out, and the vacant space filled with whisky. All on account of the Maine law. Another dodge is the patent faucet, which turned one way yields vinegar, and the other way ale.

THE FOOTLIGHT.

TUESDAY - - - JANUARY 29

Grand Opera House.

"The Poor and Proud of the Great City," was presented here last evening. Its features are entertaining, and replete with interesting phases of real life. It will be continued till further notice.

Bush Street Theatre.

This house was crowded in every part last evening, and the performance, which was reviewed at length in yesterday's FOOTLIGHT, seems to give immense satisfaction. Same bill to-night.

California Theatre.

The imposing spectacle of "Trips to the Moon" is nightly presented to large and well-pleased audiences. Owing to the great desire to witness it, and the brief time it will be allowed to remain upon the boards, the management have wisely concluded to give an extra matinee this week—Wednesday afternoon.

Emerson's Opera House.

Owing to an injunction placed upon the play of "Baby" at the instance of J. E. McDonough, of Philadelphia, this house was closed last evening. The hearing of the case will probably come up before Judge Sawyer, in the United States District Court, to-morrow, and Mrs. Emerson believes she will be able to produce the piece on Wednesday.

Adelphi Theatre.

The artistic variety entertainment presented nightly at this house draws large and well pleased audiences. Manager Buckley is indefatigable in his efforts to make his house one of the features of San Francisco. An attractive programme is presented to-night.

The Fountain.

The musical entertainments at this favorite resort have again been resumed. In addition to an excellent band, the services of the great cornet soloist, M. Saveniers, have been secured, and he will appear every evening.

THEATRICAL GOSSIP, ETC.

MODJESKA played in Philadelphia last night.

JOHN McCULLOUGH is going to play "Coriolanus" in Boston shortly.

CIPRICO and Aibischer still have murderous designs upon tragedy.

FRANK FRAYNE and troupe played at Salt Lake on the 18th and 19th, on their way East.

ST. LOUIS fairly raved over Mary Anderson, and she pocketed over $22,000 by the rave.

JOHN MAGUIRE, actor-manager, is spouting around Nevada, giving monologue entertainments.

COMMODORE NUTT and brother are announced in the passenger list to arrive from the East to-night.

JOHN HART, A. C. Moreland, Rickey and McCarthy, and others, opened in a variety entertainment at the Alhambra Theatre, Virginia City, last evening.

THE larger that moon gets at the California, the more intoxicated it seems.

AGUSTIN DALY has finally sunk into obscurity. It is to be hoped—but we're afraid.

STRIP the scales from the attire of those six coryphees in "Trips to the Moon," and—Je Whillikens!

WE are confident the public would prefer to see Kiralfy dance on his feet than on his thigh bones.

MISS GRACE THORNE, daughter of Charles R. Thorne, Jr., recently at Baldwin's, has made a successful debut in New England.

BOUCICAULT recently borrowed $10,000 from a Frenchman—nothing strange about it, however. He borrows everything from the French.

Mrs. BONNEA's Concert will take place at Pacific Hall on Friday evening next. An excellent musical programme is announced.

TOM KEENE, the great Shakespearean exponent, is now individually lost in the person of Tomaso Keeniski, the world-famous leg-maniac and burlesquer.

How many organ funds are there in this city anyhow? About every two days and a half a benefit is announced for one of them. Give us a flute fund for a change.

JOHN JACK, the successful Oregon manager, is now in charge of Emerson's stage—a fact which will ensure a series of interesting entertainments at that theatre.

MISS ANTOINETTE LINE, a singstress, will arrive from Australia on the next steamer, and link her destinies with Baldwin's. Charles Pope, the actor, also arrives. He brings nothing but disgust with him.

MODJESKA don't die convulsively, and that's what bothers the New York critics. They've been so used to shriek spasms over there, that they don't understand a quiet, gauzy death when they see one.

Foa the eccentric benefit of Edward Thorne next Sunday evening, four Richards will charge upon the gory battlefield. Strikes us if he would charge four bits admission, he would make by it—just a bit a Richard.

THE benefit of Mr. James O. Barrows will take place at the Grand Opera House on Thursday evening. Mr. Barrows undertakes the part of Justice Goodwin in the drama "Poor and Proud." The gentleman deserves to be well supported.

THERE's a sort of underplot running through "Trips to the Moon," which most of the audience—those at a distance particularly—have failed to discover. And don't Bishop, Keene and Alice Harrison have a good time, though—sotto voce?

THERE's going to be trouble about "Baby." Well, what of it? There's more or less trouble about all babies. Barton Hill, however, comes to the front in the case with the first spoonful of paragonic, but the youngster is still restless.

COMBINATIONS are organizing to prospect the interior soon as the weather moderates. The number of idle professionals at present in the city is unprecedentedly large, and half a dozen companies could be easily organized to travel, and scarcely missed.

Mr. Bolossy Kiralfy will take his excellent ballet to Sacramento and other interior towns next week. They will be absent during the Majeroni's two weeks' engagement at the California Theatre, and will next appear there in the grand spectacle of "The Deluge."

MISS AUGUSTA CHAMBERS a beautiful young actress, has been at the Black Hills two or three weeks, and reports say she has received in that time 276 offers of marriage, and still she prefers to frantically grab that unsympathetic pillow on cold mornings.

THE genial dramatic patriarch of the coast, J. H. McCabe, dependeth not upon ye impetuous professional for bodily pabulum, but has enlisted the services of ye celebrated heart-jabber, Cupid, toward ameliorating the diaphanous condition of his attenuated frame. In words otherly, he has established at his agency office a valentine depot, where every conceivable kind of tender memento, suitable for all ages, from one year up, can be had at any reasonable hour. Bewitching blondes and sighing brunettes will please take notice.

WHEN any member of Wallack's company gets into a scandal, he or she is dismissed. This prevents "mashing," and directs attention to business.

Dr. MURSKA and Caroline Richings are traveling together. They are on their way East. If the Hungarian uightingale ever gets into Pierre's clutches, she'd better throw up the sponge at once.

It is rumored that Clara Louise Kellogg is engaged to Tom Karl. We don't believe a word of it. The "old ooman" is perfectly competent to take care of Clara's ducats; and Clara has to mind her mamma, or she is spanked and sent to bed.

MISS ANNIE PILLEY has developed into one of the most interesting aubrettes on the stage, and her fame has already extended to the East. Numerous tenders of engagements, at large salaries, have been offered her by Eastern managers, but the lady prefers for the present the genial climate of California, and the warm hearts of her innumerable admirers here.

CHARLEY THORNE must have been a little surprised at the modest salary which the Call awarded him on Sunday. Imagine that faultless physique and ponderous dramatic intellect circumnavigating the refined limits of the Baldwin or Union Square stages for the thirteenth of $200 per week! Nay, nay, Count George—it requireth $500 in gold of this American realm to secure the services of the tantalizing Ossip for ye week.

PIPER'S OPERA HOUSE, Virginia, was to have opened last evening, with the play of "Shadows." The company, selected with care by Mr. Piper, embraces the following well-known names: Henry Edwards, Fred Meader, W. C. Crosby, J. H. Vinson, Frank Kilday, Murray Woods, King Headley, T. C. Howard and P. Sullivan. The ladies are Miss Ellie Wilton, Miss Mary L. Young, Miss Katie Mayhew, Mrs. Norton Bush, Miss Noko McCabe, Miss Georgie Woodthorpe, and Mrs. W. C. Crosby. The engagement of Mr. Edwards and Mr. Wilton is understood to be for one week only. The Union Square Company, late of Baldwin's, will play a brief engagement, commencing on Monday evening.

THE second of the series of the Herold concerts will take place at Metropolitan Temple on Fifth street, on Wednesday afternoon, the 30th instant, at 3 o'clock. We are glad to learn that Mr. Herold has so far recovered from his late indisposition as to be able to undertake the direction. The programme comprises the following charming selections: Symphonie, G major, Haydn; Concerto, E flat major, Mozart; Two pianos and Orchestra, Messrs. Oscar and Roderick Herold; Overture, Rosamunde, Schubert; Trauennell, Schumann; Love song (for strings only), Taubert; Selections from Ballo in Maschera, Verdi. "Tis pleasant to forgive," especially when the offender seems to be really contrite. A fortnight ago we took leave to express an opinion the reverse of complimentary to the charity of Dr. Jewell, who had stated at a meeting of the Gospel Temperance Reform, that he "hated" certain persons who don't happen to entertain precisely identical views with himself on the "liquor" question. But such a good work as is now being done in Dr. Jewell's church—that of feeding the starving poor—is so conclusive a proof of the charity that exists in the breast of Dr. Jewell and the ladies of his congregation, that we are fain to suppose that the reverend gentleman's words to which he took exception, were either misrepresented, or else intended to bear a different construction than that which appeared on their face. The doctor is a Jewell, truly, and his example a noble one.

"Have ye gat air clock to sell—something noice for a present to me sister?" "We have all kinds of clocks," replied the jeweler—"twenty-four-hour clocks, and eight-day clocks, from a dollar and a half up to three hundred dollars in price. Here's one that will just suit you—a fine French clock, worth $16." "Divil take yer Frinch clock! Give us wau that my sister kin understand when it strikes!"—Oil City Derrick.

WHAT's the matter with your eye, Tommy?" "Oh, its only been going through an operation at the hands of a knocknolist, that's all."—Yonker's Gazette.

SOME very beautiful new songs are being written now. The following will shortly be published from this office: "Come Back with the Ear-ring," by the author of "Come Back to Erin;" "Save the Largest Pie for Me," by the author of "Save the Sweetest Kiss for Me;" "Little Dogs are Loudly Whining," by the author of "Little Stars are Brightly Shining;" "Treat Me and I'll Drink a Beer," by the author "Kiss Me and I'll go to Sleep;" "Will you hug me when I'm Cold?" by the author of "Will you Love Me when I'm Old?" "Smile for Me your Strongest Smile," by the author of "Smile for Me your sweetest Smile;" "Fat as a Match," by the author of "Pretty as a Picture;" and "Speak out your Mind," by the author of "Speak to Me Kind."—Philadelphia Mirror.

THE Campbell Company had their baggage attached 7th for $3, the amount due the baggage express for transfer to the depot. Manager Ellsler has taken the initiatory step to reduce prices of admission. They will hereafter be 75, 50, 35 and 15 cents.

DRAMATIC ITEMS.

Mlle. ALBANI was to open at the Salle Ventadour, Paris, about 15th.

LYDIA THOMPSON is worth a quarter million dollars. So much for dressing economically.

A Boston correspondent says that Eme' Roseau, the prima donna of the Colville Folly Company, sings well but cannot act.

FANNY DAVENPORT wrote in a Hartford's man's album New Year's night: "I wish all creation were but a single mouth, so that I might kiss it." Fanny evidently reads her Byron attentively.

MARIE ROZE seems to have met with an undoubted success in Philadelphia, and the opera season has been inaugurated brilliantly. Max Strakosch has put in bank from the first week's venture something over $9,000.

THE Era chronicles that a Miss Maude Milton had a bouquet thrown her as she appeared in "Fatherland," a new play adopted from Sardou's "Pandore" and recently produced at the Royalty, London, and would not condescend to pick it up. It was gathered by a super at the close of the act. The Era argues that the young lady objected to bouquet throwing, and wished publicly to discountenance it. It is much more likely that she knew who the flowers were from, and showed her dislike to the man in neglecting them.

MRS. LILLIE A. THORNE, second daughter of the late E. Davenport, died of consumption at 1421 Chestnut street, Philadelphia, on the 14th. Her husband, Frost Thorne, was drowned by the capsizing of Mr. Garner's yacht Mohawk, off Staten Island, over a year ago. Being left a widow, with two young children, and without an income, she decided to return to the stage, and engaged herself last spring for the California Theatre, San Francisco. Her disease became very troublesome shortly after, and she was unable to go there. Quite recently she was announced as decidedly better, and intending to resume her profession. The news of her sudden death was therefore a painful surprise. Mrs. Thorne and her elder sister Fanny, were born in London, and came to this country with their parents in 1854. The maiden name of their mother was Miss Fanny Vining, and under that title she was well known in England as an able actress. The two younger daughters are the Misses Blanche and May Davenport, the former of whom has a fine operatic reputation in Europe as Bianca La Blache, and the latter is a member of the Chestnut-street Theatre Company, Philadelphia. The funeral on the 16th was largely attended by leading members of the profession, the press, and of private society. Flowers lay in neat profusion on the coffin and around the room. At the head of the coffin was a dove with spread wings, and with an olive branch in its mouth as a symbol of peace. The religious services were conducted by the Rev. Dr. Rudder, of the Episcopal Church. The pall-bearers were Col. Robert P. Dechert, W. H. Brown, Wm. Cochran and G. K. Goodwin. The body was deposited in a vault at Monumental Cemetery, from which it will be removed when her father, who is in a vault in this city, becomes permanently interred. She will sleep by his side.

GLEANINGS.

Did you ever hear of a barber having the lockjaw?

THERE is one business that could never succeed without a great many strikers, and that is the match-trade.

A LITTLE boy inquired concerning the stars: "Pa, what are those things up there—are they little drops of sun?"

A COCKNEY, in speaking of the de- cease of an octogenarian at Hayti, said: "He was born at 'ayti, and he died at boighty."

"Would you like to look through the big telescope?" asked one girl of another, to which the latter replied: "No; I'd a great deal rather look through a key- hole."

A HARVARD student, on reading that a noted mathematician had committed suicide by blowing out his brains, re- marked: "Stuck to triggerometry to the last."

AN Englishman being arrested for biting off a man's thumb, it was asked where he came from. "He must have come from Gnuw-thumb-erland," said a witty lady.

A CONGREGATIONAL brother was un- dergoing an examination for ordination. Being asked, "What is your weak point?" he answered, "Ask my wife." He has been ordained.

"THE most stylish Black Hills gentle- men wear red dannel collars, with a big white button for a necktie." They will, doubtless, add other things as the weath- er gets cooler.

MISSIONARY visitor (blandly)—"Well, dame, how do you find things now?" Grumpy old dame—"If I do I find things now? Why, by lookin' arter 'em, to be sure."

DEFINITION of the gout by Dumas: "Put your toe in a vise and squeeze it till you can no longer endure the torture. Then give the handle one more turn and that is the gout."

WILKIE COLLINS' last story is called, "My Lady's Money." In this country it would have been "Mother-in-Law has got the Stamps," or "The Old Woman is Well-heeled."—Breakfast Table.

"THEM lottery things are real nice," said Mrs. Veneering, at Brown's; "me and my daughter Maria has got the raze, you know, and buy all we kin get. But what on earth is they intended for?"

In Texas, recently, a judge broke down with emotion in sentencing a desperado to be hanged, and the desperado, sur- prised at the scene, said, as he went back to jail: "I feel sorry for the judge."

"I HAVE hoped my son would uphold the honor of my name," said a politician, "but when I die, I'm afraid he'll be the greatest rascal in the community." "Yes" was the response, "when you die, but not till then."

A FRENCHMAN thinks the English lan- guage is very tough. "Dare is look out," he says, "which is to put out your head and see; and look out, which is to baul in your head and not for to see—just contrarie."

SAYS the Detroit Free Press: "Statistics show that the number of idiots is in- creasing; and yet some newspapers con- tinue to make war on quack doctors. What is the quack doctor for but to kill off the fools?"

"RALPH, can you tell me why I'm like the moon when it is twenty-three days old?" Ralph couldn't tell, and the questioner explained: "Because I've passed my last quarter." A small loan was advanced immediately.

A LAWYER wrote to a client, saying: "Please send me twenty-five dollars for that legal opinion you had of me." The client replied: "I never had any opinion of you, either legal or illegal, that was worth twenty-five cents."

"You must cultivate decision of char- acter, and learn to say 'No,'" said a father to his son. Soon afterward, when the father said to his son, "Chop wood," the boy said "No" with an emphasis that showed remembrance of the lesson.

LONGFELLOW was presented to Mr. Longworth of Cincinnati. The latter remarked to the poet, "There is no great difference in our names." "Yes," re- plied Mr. Longfellow, "but worth makes the man, the want of it the fellow."

THE late Sir George Rose, the dis- tinguished and witty English lawyer, was overtaken by a friend one day, who said to him: "I thought it was you walk- ing so fast." "Ah! you know the rose by the stalk, do you?" responded Sir George.

A GENTLEMAN, having occasion to call on a solicitor, found him in his office, which was very hot. He remarked the great heat of the apartment, and said: "It was as hot as an oven." "So it ought to be," replied the lawyer, "for it is here I make my bread."

California Theatre.

And still the crowds wend their way to this popular establishment to witness the beauties of "Trips to the Moon," and to enjoy the delicious nothings that issue from the cerebra of Bishop, Keene, Messtayer, Alice Harrison, and the other aerial travelers. Miss Gracie Plaisted is making her mark rather early, and if she does not place an inordinate estimate upon her abilities (as is unfortunately the case with successful debutantes), we have every confidence a brilliant future awaits her. But a few more opportunities remain to witness this entertaining spectacle.

Bush Street Theatre.

The Female Minstrels and Burlesque Troupe are becoming the theatrical sensation, judging from the crowds nightly in attendance. That blood-curdling act in mid-air by the lady trapezist is terribly trying to the nerves, and should be expunged from the programme. The performance is a meritorious one, we admit, but we can't see much amusement in it.

Grand Opera House.

"The Poor and Proud of the Great City" will occupy the boards till the end of the week; after which the theatre will be temporarily closed, the company reorganized, and the interim devoted to the preparations necessary for the elaborate production of "Uncle Tom's Cabin."

Baldwin's Theatre.

The dramatic season having ended, this house will remain closed for the present. On Monday next the opera bouffe season will commence, with Miss Catherine Lewis, Miss Marian Singer, Henry Gates and W. H. Kinross as principals.

Adelphi Theatre.

Notwithstanding the attractions elsewhere, this well-known resort continues in the enjoyment of its share of public patronage. The acts, songs, sketches, etc., are diversified and interesting, and Manager Buckley exercises much care in the arrangement of his programme.

Bonner's Concert.

The postponed concert of this worthy young gentleman and phenomenal singer is announced in our columns to take place on Friday evening next. By a glance at the ad. it will be seen that a long list of professional talent has volunteered, and the beneficiary himself will give some of his choicest selections. We trust to see a crowded house.

The Fountain.

The evening concerts at this favorite resort are a decided feature, and patrons take much pleasure in listening to the delicious strains while quaffing the foaming liquid—enjoying the other luxuries which are dispensed at this establishment.

Widmer's Concerts.

The Sunday evening concert of Mr. Henry Widmer will take place as usual on next Sabbath evening, at which a variety of the best vocal and instrumental talent of the city will appear. The prices being low, doubtless the Grand Opera House will be well filled.

THEATRICAL GOSSIP, ETC.

MISS ANNIE PIXLEY will shortly take a benefit at the Grand Opera House.

THOMAS MAGUIRE has gone East to procure fresh talent for Baldwin's.

THE Georgia Minstrels, now in Australia, intend to circumnavigate the globe before returning to America.

WILL REVS. Thomas Guard, Hemphill, Noble, Ijams and Fiske frankly tell us what they think of Kiralfy's ballet?

WHEN we see those pulpy legs of Bishop's trying to undergo a double shuffle, we instinctively say, "Why do we laugh—oh, why?"

BOTTICAUT asserts that Shakespeare stole all of his good dramatic situations from the French. Boucy ought to know.

CAPTAIN JACK is working his way to San Francisco from Los Angeles. His success has been indifferent, owing to the rains in the country.

GEORGE REYNOLDS and C. W. Cogill have joined forces in the song and dance business. They are clever performers and should do well together.

THE Adah Richmond Troupe played to a thin house in Oakland on Monday night. Adah says California can't appreciate talent when they get it. P'raps.

MISS CARRO TRUE, the rising young California actress, has received flattering offers from several Eastern managers. Strange how the Atlantic people hanker after California talent.

THE dramatic season terminates at the Grand Opera House on Saturday evening next, and Manager Kennedy intends to thoroughly reorganize the company. The new season will commence on the 11th of February, with "Uncle Tom's Cabin."

THERE will not be four Richards in the field at Thorne's benefit on Sunday next, as announced. He has wisely concluded to dispense with the intended sensation, and substitute the "Ticket-of-Leave Man." An act of "Richard III" will also be given, with Barton Hill and Tom Keene in the cast.

MANAGER KENNEDY has made engagements with the following combinations, which will successively appear at the Grand Opera House: Evangeline Combination, consisting of forty performers; "Sardanapalus," with all the original scenery, costumes, armors and properties, and new dramatic talent, as it was originally presented at Booth's Theatre, New York; the Maffat and Bartholomew Pantomime Company, and other combinations which will be duly announced.

MISS NOCO McCABE, the soubrette of Piper's new company, at Virginia City, met with a severe accident at that place a few days since. It appears she was coasting, with a party of ladies and gentlemen, down the precipitous slopes of one of the adjacent mountains, when the sled struck against a rock and she was thrown with great violence against a wall. She sustained ugly contusions about the face, neck and limbs. It is feared she is injured internally. In his exertions to save her a young man sustained a dislocation of the ankle. Miss McCabe is a fine vocalist and musician, and is rapidly developing into a successful soubrette, and the untoward accident which deprives her (for the time being, we hope) of a good opportunity of displaying her abilities to the Virginia people, is sincerely to be regretted.

A GREAT "TOODLES" CAST.—At the benefit of John Brougham, at the Academy of Music, N. Y., on the 17th, "Toodles" was given with a cast it was never before played with. It was filled with stars, and our John played a very subordinate character. Here is the cast:

Toodles.....John T. Raymond
 George Acorn.....Frank Mayo
 Landford.....John McCullough
 Farmer Acorn.....C. W. Coulter
 Charles Fendou.....George Fawcett Rowe
 First Farmer.....D. K. Harkins
 Second Farmer.....J. W. Collier
 Third Farmer.....J. R. Bell
 Mary Acorn.....Lillie Florida
 Mrs. Toodles.....Miss Sidney Cowell

ITEMS FROM THE CAPITAL.

SACRAMENTO, January 28, 1878.

ED. FOOTLIGHT:—The annual Legislative "Bal Masque" under the auspices of the Enreka Social Club, given on Thursday evening last, at Turn Verein Hall in this city, was a complete success. There were present 254 spectators. These prizes were awarded as follows:

First prize—to H. Meir, as a winner of '49.

Second prize—to Miss Rachel Cohl, as the blind girl, "Louise," in the "Two Orphans."

Third prize—to Miss Rosa Ginzberg, as "Miss Quick," an elderly lady who sells flowers on the streets of Sacramento, knitting all the while.

Fourth prize—to Abraham Wilson, as "Dennis," the crippled fruit vender at the Central Pacific Railroad depot. The masks removed, the prizes awarded, and supper over, the dancing commenced and continued until four o'clock in the morning.

Hart and Moreland's Star Specialty Company opened at the Metropolitan Theatre Friday evening and close to-night, having played thus far to fair houses. Hart, Moreland, Dillon, Rickey and McCarthy are strong cards in their line.

To-morrow evening the Union Square Theatre Company open in "The Danichefs."

I am informed that applicants for reserved seats look a little sideways at the extra half dollar charged therefor, but they must remember that this is an extraordinary and very expensive company—one Sacramento is fortunate in having at any price. VIATOR.

A New Play.

It is whispered that a young gentleman in town is now hard at work upon a new drama, which, when completed, he hopes to see presented upon the boards of one of the theatres here. It is a purely American drama, and a very powerful one. In the seventh act of the play the curtain rises to show old Moneypouch, the insurance president, discovering his daughter going down a rope-ladder at moonlight, to land in the arms of an impecunious but loving young man in the yard. Old Moneypouch yells out:

"Hi! what's all this?"

The young man folds his arms sternly and rejoins:

"I wouldst flee with thy daughter."

"Curses on thee, villain!" roars the father.

"Here the daughter breaks in with:

"Oh, pa, wipe off your chin!"

"I will not wipe off my chin! No, never, false minx!" thunders out the stern parent.

"Then pull down your vest, pa, do," responds the loving daughter.

"Ungrateful hussy! How can I pull down my vest? Don't you see I am in my night-ulster?" shrieks the distracted parent.

"Ah! we have erred! Give us thy blessing, father-in-law-to-be," the young man now puts in; and he and the young woman flop down on their knees in the damp grass of the door-yard.

"Aha! Bless thee, my children, bless thee!" answers the old man benevolently. "I will boost thee in business, my son, and thou shalt become president of a savings-bank, and slope in better style than thou hadst planned."

The curtain falls, amid what the writer of that play expects will be the wildest applause of the enraptured audience.

GLEANINGS.

MR. SECRETARY EVARTS makes his jokes with a type-writing machine.

THE leg of an eighteen-button kid glove comes up over the vaccination place.

WHY isn't this good weather for holding a meeting to appoint Fourth of July committees?

"Gold or silver?" asks the Petersburg Telegraph. Oh, we're not particular, old boy, either or a little of each will do us.

"BABIES are babies," says the Atchison Patriot, "and nothing can take their place." Well, yes; other and newer babies can.

ONE paper in Dubuque contained four New Year poems, original. The editor has not yet been indicted, but the grand jury will look into the matter.

SENATOR DAVIS is still bent on reducing his size. The other day he had a corset built for himself and when it was completed it looked like a thing to mould hay stacks in.

A LITTLE while ago the free-thinkers of this great republic always mentioned Mr. Beecher rather disrespectfully, as "Old Beecher." Now, they tenderly and cordially call him "Hen."

QUITE a number of juvenile periodicals are publishing contributions and poems by children only ten years of age. These contributions are quite generally on a par with the juvenile literature of the day.

THE young man on West Hill neglected to turn over a new leaf on New Year's day, but he did a great deal better than that; he found a new way to get home without being waylaid by gentlemanly collectors.

DENVER, with a population of twenty-five thousand, has only three policemen. The city would not have even these three, but for the fact that they are good-hearted sensible fellows, who never disturb or interrupt anybody.

"Do seals lay eggs?" a high school pupil writes us. We don't know, most potent, grave and irreverent senior, but we believe they do; we know seals kin set anyhow. (At about $300 a set.) Lay that away in your index rerum.

THE largest cheese factory in the world is in Canada, and is known as the Ingersoll factory. Last year it turned out the biggest cheese ever seen, which weighed 7,000 pounds. Canada is the great hope of the free lunchers yet.

WITH the close of the holidays the casual Sunday school boy has severed his connection with the church, and resumed his occupation of breaking windows, stoning dogs, and yelling at strangers, until it is time to get in training for the picnics.

A CLEVELAND doctor presented each of the letter carriers and employes of the Cleveland post-office a bottle of his famous cough syrup for a New Year's gift. Then he sent us a marked copy of the local paper which announced the generous deed. Forty cents a line, doctor; you can give away cough syrup for love, but it takes money to buy whisky.

MR. EVARTS says the country needn't feel a particle uneasy about his divided duties; it isn't anything to be. Secretary of State, he can look after this country thoroughly and successfully in little odd moments between cares, without suffering his official duties to interfere in the least with his law business. This is the beauty of having a genius at the head of the department of state.

NO Christian household in this land is complete without Commodore Rilling-jin's almanac. It is published in St. Louis, where all the weather comes from, and it gently but firmly lays all the rest of the almanacs far into the dim, impenetrable, silent shade. It contains Professor Tice's weather casts, which never miss fire. It tells you when to get up in the morning, keeps breakfast waiting for you, makes up the bed and washes the children. It is illustrated by Rubens, Angelo, Rembrandt and other artists of merit, and is given away by all book and news dealers very cheap for cash.

SCENE IN COURT.—"How was it, Mc-Finnigan?"

"Sure, yer Honor, an' it was all the nagger's fault. I was a-comin' down the av'ue, quiet as a lamb, sor, sayin' nothin' to nobody, when that shpalueen came forinst me, sor, wud his elbow, an' I up an' hit 'im upon the spur o' the moment."

"On the spur, he hit me on the nose, sah!"

"No, sah, he o' the moment—"

"On de nose, sah."

"Never mind fine distinctions," said his Honor. "It costs a man ten dollars in this court to hit a man, whether it be on the spur of the moment or upon the nose. Geo. Washington, you are discharged."—New York World.

LAUGH AND GROW FAT.

To conclude with the immensely funny Chinese Impersonator (and only) JOHN C. LEACH

Mr. Leach, it will be remembered, made a most decided success in his Chinese characters at the Grand Opera House in the play of "Round the Clock, and should be seen for a good laugh.

The celebrated Decker Bros. Grand Piano will be used on this occasion, and is from the warehouses of Messrs. Kohler & Chase, No. 633 Clay Street.

ADVERTISERS

WILL FIND THE LIST OF 70 PAPERS, GENERALLY known as "Patent Outlets," one of the cheapest and best means of reaching the people in all parts of the Pacific Coast. On the aggregate these papers are read by a quarter of a million people, and our advertisements are placed near well selected reading matter. As one side of these papers is printed in San Francisco, only one cut is required in illustrated advertisements, when it would require 70 to send the order direct to the publisher of each paper. An advertisement occupying one square (10 lines agate) will be inserted one time in the entire list for $7—only 10 cents per paper.

Although the sky was a little portentous last evening, and several aqueous messengers did actually appear, this house was nevertheless well filled with a delighted audience. There is something irresistibly taking in the piece, and the latitude allowed the performers in the way of jokes, gags, etc. gives a zest to the performance quite acceptable. "A Trip to the Moon" again to-night.

Bush Street Theatre.

The weather has no effect upon the attendance at this place. The novelty of the Female Minstrels is more than our people can withstand; consequently Manager Locke is reaping a rich harvest. Go early to secure seats.

Grand Opera House.

"The Poor and Proud of the Great City," still retains the boards at this theatre. It will be withdrawn at the end of the week.

Adelphi Theatre.

Mirth, music and fun seem to be the ruling characteristics of this favorite variety house, and as a consequence it is most extensively patronized. A glance at the programme will convince the amusement-seeker of the superiority of the entertainments furnished by Manager Buckley.

The Fountain.

The musical programme for to-night at this popular symposium of pleasure cannot but meet the approval of all lovers of music in its purity. Mr. John Savinier, the eminent cornetist, is winning golden opinions every evening.

THEATRICAL GOSSIP, ETC.

Mr. J. O. BARROWS' benefit at the Grand has been postponed until the weather is of a less vacillating character.

ALICE HARRISON squeezes little Gracie Plaisted with an ardor that would do credit to her "big brother."

Don't forget Mr. R. Bonner's concert at Pacific Hall to-morrow evening. The programme will be found in another column.

THE eminent artists to appear at Widmer's concert next Sunday evening at the Grand, have been congregated at considerable expense, and we may anticipate a rare musical treat.

TOM KEENE should tumble off that barge just before the curtain descends. It would be a fitting culmination to "A Trip to the Moon," and stamp him as the coming burlesque genius of the American stage.

THE second orchestral matinee of Mr. Herold, at the Metropolitan Temple yesterday afternoon, was an artistic success, and the attendance was quite large. Our people are beginning to appreciate the exertions of this well-known local maestro, and we trust the season will be prolific of substantial results.

THERE is an honest usher at the California Theatre. A gentleman in our hearing at a recent matinee, offered one of them 25 cents for a seat. With a cerulean heave of the left chest and a Crockett glance of the starboard optic, he responded: "No, sir; nor for fifty dollars could I grant you the boon!" So rare are such exhibitions of honesty, that some appreciative merchant should take this young gent into partnership.

FOOTLIGHT PELLETS.

You can tell a theatrical manager by the company he keeps.

You can't use your thumb-nail for a screw-driver more than once.

It is called a drop curtain to allow the gents to go out and get a drop.

EXPERIENCE is about as dear as little Gracie Plaisted.

TAKE care of the pennies and the pounds will take care of the puppies.

THEY say alcohol will clean silver. Yes—it will clean out all the silver you've got.

THEY call a man "exaggerated" nowadays when he gets drunk.

ANOTHER gentleman floated ashore near the Cliff House yesterday.

WOULDN'T it be a good idea for all our theatres to remonetize their tickets of admission?

HAPPY JACK has responded to the invitation to "come up and take the pledge and beer man."

A VIOLENT railroad man says Kearney, the agitator, should be punished with death and twenty years imprisonment.

Now that the parsons have concluded there is no hell, the devil has sprung up, and wishes to know where he resides.

THE different sections of country in the United States are a unit in declaring that the bigger the poor house the more paupers it will have.

THE California street road intend to have beautiful blondes in seal-skin sacques for conductors. We're a passenger every time.

LET no American be discouraged. The "first grand prize" at the Paris Exposition, or any other, can be offset any day by $2 worth of advertising.

A PLUMBER went into a house on Bush street yesterday, and charged fifty cents for looking after a gas leakage, and one dollar for finding it.

THE name of a New Hampshire school teacher is May I. Cough. It is much more common to hear school teachers addressed as "May I. Gwont."

KEARNEY is losing ground among the workmen—which is right and proper. It takes a crowbar, sometimes, to open an Irishman's eyes.

DR. (?) SEE SEE O'DONNELL has been fired out of the Workmen's Party. They say he was after office. Mistake—he's no such man. Oh, no.

BLUE veils for ladies are going out of fashion. We judge so, from the number that are boiled up and passed off for spinach at the Clay street restaurants.

MRS. MODJESKA can summon a flush at pleasure. This would make her strong at poker if the American players were not certain to get full.

JAPAN has no patent laws. When a Jap invents a square cart-wheel or a shovel, shaped like a hat-box, he reaps no further reward than a brass medal, which entitles him to a free bath once a week.

A SAN QUENTIN prisoner has educated a rat to waltz and dance and perform gymnastics. Nothing like a sentence of fifteen years to help a man study into the ways of nature.

DID you ever watch the noiseless movement of a pretty girl's lips as her dress is trodden upon, and marvel at the self-command which enables her to do the situation justice in so quiet a manner?

"TEN dimes make one dollar," said the schoolmaster. "Ten dollars make one—what?" "They make one mighty glad these times," replied the boy, and the teacher, who had lost heavily on Ophir, concluded the boy was about right.

WHEN you meet a school-girl with a far-away look in her eyes and nervously-moving lips, she is not thinking of her bean, but wrestling with a conundrum in mental arithmetic.

It is fervently hoped by sufferers on the Sutter street road that the whole passenger traffic will be transferred from that to the new California street road. Casebolt ought to be taught a lesson or two.

A MAN who thought he would present his wife with material for a new dress was somewhat surprised to see the dealer slip the cloth in an envelope and say he would have the buttons sent right up in a dray.

THE journals announce that this season more than the ordinary number of brides is being "given away." We protest against this phrase. The give away in many marriages is on the man's part.

THERE is no punishment too great for Casebolt, the autocrat of the Sutter Street Railroad. The delays he subjects his patrons to on Sutter and Larkin streets would make one heartily wish he might be sentenced to room with Emperor Norton the balance of his days.

"PAY the bill?" said a gentleman who is well known to collectors as the prince of procrastinators. "I should be happy to do so; but the damp weather has caused my money drawer to swell, and I cannot get at my funds. Come the first dry day."

AN oyster supper for ten in Nevada costs only $80.—Free Press. Eighty dollars for ten! That's only eightpence, and we never saw a successful supper, unless every fellow eight a piece. Philadelphia Bulletin.—Thunder! how can you A-ten-you-ate such an atrocious pun?

BAD BOUCCICAULT.—The Chronicle of this morning has the following:

The New York Tribune, Times and Sun of Tuesday, January 22d, have long interviews with Palmer of the Union Square Theater regarding his difficulty with Bouccicault. All the letters and telegrams given in the Thorne interview are reprinted from the CHRONICLE with comments; of Miss Katherine Rogers, a friend of Mr. Bouccicault, Mr. Palmer speaks as follows:

Miss Rogers did not resign her engagement, she refused to play the part in which I cast her in this new play and I dismissed her from the company. Of course she immediately repaired to Bouccicault for consolation in her troubles. Bouccicault was, long ago, during the performances of "Led Astray," forbidden to enter the theater. I found him intriguing with my actors to get some of them away, including Stuart Robson and Mr. Thorne, and ordered the doorkeeper not to admit him behind the scenes again. He returned the next day and threatened to take his piece, which was running at the Union Square; I defied him, and he has never been back again. All this abuse and intrigue and misrepresentation are the result of his malice.

THE TROUBLE WITH THE TOOTH.—This story is from a Paris journal: Enter to dentist a sufferer with a gigantic cheek, who drops into the chair and yells: "Take it out! Out with it! This minute! Never mind if it hurts! Take a monkey-whisk, anything, only out with it, quick!"

Dentist politely—"Sir, in the course of my long and successful career I have made it an invariable rule never to pull a tooth until I had satisfied myself by careful examination that it was beyond the resources of my art to give the unfortunate sufferer relief by any other method of proceeding less extreme and painful. Permit me then, in conformity with my practice, the wisdom of which will commend itself to you at once, to proceed to examine the part affected."

Sufferer—"Here! Look! Be quick! None of your Everts' orations! Ouch! (Howls.)"

Dentist (apologetically)—"I am afraid, sir, that I shall have to ask your permission to remove it."

THE Washington critics affirm that the time is not far distant when Lawrence Barrett's "Hamlet" will take precedence over all other impersonations.

PORTER, the man who busied himself circulating the report that Manager Fox set fire to his theatre, is in jail in Baltimore, and Fox is happy.

THE clearing of the ballet from the bills of the variety theatres, has been productive of great suffering among the females who comprised the troupes.

JOHN McCULLOUGH is to revive "Coriolanus" at the Boston Theatre. It was last played there with Edwin Forrest, John McCullough and W. H. Whalley in 1861.

THE fact that Lydia Thompson has by her industry and agility laid up a quarter of a million dollars shows what drawing economically will do.

GLEANINGS.

Red-Hot.

DOWN IN A SILVER MINE, UNDERNEATH THE GROUND.

Those who have never personally inspected the lower levels of our mines may obtain some idea of the degree of heat to be found therein by visiting the Savage works at the change of shifts. The men packed together as close as they can stand on the cage—are popped up out of the shaft, all steaming hot, for all the world like a bunch of asparagus just lifted from the pot. They make their appearance in a cloud of steam that pours up continually from the "depths profound," and are dimly seen until they step forth upon the floor of the works. As the men laud and separate, each carries with him for half a minute his little private cloud of vapor. As this passes off the man is seen to be naked from the waist up, his skin as wet as though he had just been lifted out of a pool of water. The men bring up with them, besides the steam—an amount of heat that can be felt by the spectator as they pass. All this is at the top of the shaft, where it is considered quite cool—what, then, must it be hundreds of feet below, where the men started from—down where the water stands 157 degrees Fahrenheit? Down there no steam is seen—it is too hot for it. It is only when the hot, moist air, coming up from the lower regions, strikes the cool air at the top of the shaft that it takes the form of steam. Down there where the men came from you must keep your hands off the pump column and the pipes, and if you pick up any iron tool you will at once put it down without being told to do so. Down there they handle things with gloves on, or wrap rags around the drills they are guiding and iron apparatus they are moving, and down there, too, you will learn to keep your mouth shut after you have drawn a few mouthfuls of hot air into your lungs. Perspire? It is no name for it. You are like a sponge that is being squeezed.

You are ready to believe that you have ten million pores to every square inch of surface, or as many more as any authority may mention, and that these pores are as big as the cells of a honey comb. You go for ice water, and it almost seems to hiss down your throat—you keep going for it, and thus in a short time find out what becomes of the tons and tons of ice that are daily consumed in the mines. Remain below among the miners for an hour or two, and when you are finally popped out at the top of the shaft, all red-hot and steaming, among the other asparagus sprouts, you will appreciate the beauty, the light and the coolness of the upper world.

QUEEN Victoria, it is said, has taken no notice of the marriage of the Duke of Norfolk and Lady Flora Hastings, and the traditional present for the bride of an Indian shawl has not been forthcoming. The duke is at the head of the Roman Catholic peerage, and Lady Flora is a convert. Now, her Majesty has no actual dislike to Roman Catholics who have been brought up in that faith; but she dislikes converts exceedingly, and hence the real reason why she resolved to ignore the wedding of which every one has been talking for the last month.

NEW YORK CITY now contains nearly 1,000,000 people, besides the population of Brooklyn, which numbers 550,000. New Yorkers lay claim also to the inhabitants of Staten Island and Jersey City, which including Brooklyn would increase the census to about 2,000,000. The principal cities in the civilized world are estimated, in point of population, as follows: London, 3,489,428; New York, over 2,000,000; and Paris, 1,851,792.

A MAN in Nebraska has patented a new, powerful, double-acting salve, which shows power never before exhibited by salves of any kind. The inventor accidentally cut off the tail of a tame wolf, and immediately applying some of the salve to the stump a new tail grew out. Then, picking up the old tail, he applied some salve to the raw end of that, and a wolf grew out; but he was a wild wolf, and had to be shot.

THE JEWS.—With ten millions of Jews living in the world, with Jews at the helm of the state in England, France, Germany and Turkey, with Jews in positions of power and influence in Italy, Belgium, and even Russia, with Jewish bankers holding the purse-strings of the foremost nations, with Jewish artists, novelists, and journalists in the most prominent places in the Old and New World, there seems to be no reason to despair of the future of the race.

WANT of prudence is too frequently the want of virtue; nor is there on earth a more powerful advocate for vice than poverty.—Goldsmith.

ADVERTISERS

WILL FIND THE LIST OF 70 PAPERS, GENERALLY known as "Patent Outlets," one of the cheapest and best means of reaching the people in all parts of the Pacific Coast. On the aggregate these papers are read by a quarter of a million people, and our advertisements are placed near well selected reading matter. As one side of these papers is printed in San Francisco, only one cut is required in illustrated advertisements, when it would require 70 to send the order direct to the publisher of each paper. An advertisement occupying one square (10 lines a page) will be inserted one time in the entire list for $7—only 10 cents per paper.

An ordinary circular can be printed in this list, set in the space of one-fourth of a double column, and inserted once for One Dollar per paper. By this method circulars are more likely to be read and preserved, and the cost is not more than one-fourth of what it would be to print and distribute the same number through so many sections. FRIDAY, - - - - FEBRUARY 1

Grand Opera House.

Although the houses are not the most satisfactory at present, yet the performance is an interesting one, and gives much pleasure to those present. "The Poor and Proud of the Great City" will be given at the matinee to-morrow, as well as in the evening for the last time.

California Theatre.

"Trip to the Moon" as usual to-night.
 But few opportunities remain for witnessing this meritorious spectacle. On Monday evening Signor and Signori Majeroni commence an engagement.

Bush Street Theatre.

Crowded houses are the order of the night, and the performances of Madame Rentz's Female Minstrels and Mabel Santley's Burlesque Troupe (which appear to be one and the same thing) seem to give genuine satisfaction.

Adelphi Theatre.

Musical attractions are offered at this popular resort, and the result is a succesion of satisfactory houses. Such variety entertainments as are given here are "not to be sneezed at," and one visit will only prompt many more. A fine programme is announced for to-night.

The Fountain.

The programme of musical selections given at this popular subterranean resort affords infinite pleasure to the myriads who resort there to enjoy the delectable luxuries provided by that prince of caterers, John Cassimir.

Pacific Hall.

The complimentary benefit tendered to Mr. R. Bonner, the young phenomenal singer, will take place at Pacific Hall this evening. By a glance at the programme in another column, it will be seen that some fine talent have volunteered, and an enjoyable evening is in store for those who may attend.

Widmer's Concert.

The programme for the next Sunday evening concert, under the auspices of Mr. Henry Widmer, may be found in another column. It is full of choice musical gems, interspersed with variety of a taking nature. We trust to see a full house on this occasion.

Nobly did the actors and actresses respond to the appeal in behalf of the veteran of the stage, John Brougham; without their aid, both professionally and financially, the event so graciously tendered "by our first citizens" might have been a lamentable failure. The largehearted associates of the beneficiary came forward with their usual liberality and tender feeling, and supplied what the owners of the high-sounding names failed to contribute. The genial one can have no difficulty in discovering where his true friends are to be found. — N. J. Clipper

SIGNOR MAJERONI commences a two weeks' engagement at the California on Monday, February 4th.

ELLIE WILTON and Henry Edwards are starring at Virginia City in "London Assurance," "Camille," etc.

This evening, at Mercantile Library Hall, the first concert of the second series by the Schmidt Quintette, will be given.

"THE Alarmed Academy," by Toly
 Rosenthal, will be on exhibition to-morrow at the art gallery of Messrs. Snow & May.

HERE is the Salt Lake Times' criticism on the Rentz Female Troupe:

THEATRE LAST NIGHT.—Oh! oh! oh!

THE "Pink Dominoes" is to be presented at Bert's Theatre, Portland. How did he get hold of it? Shades of "Our Boarding House," "Tour of the World," etc. — ambrosial sweets!

THE Virginia City Footlight seems to have been supplanted at Piper's Opera House by a new programme called The Stage. Its wrath knows no bounds, and it handles its adversaries without gloves.

"UNCLE TOM'S CABIN" is to be produced next week at the Grand. The novelty of the production will be enhanced by the presence on the stage of genuine negroes. The piece will be cast to the full strength of all the barber shops in the city.

PROF. HEROLD's matinees at the Metropolitan Temple, Fifth street, nearly opposite the Mint, are quite successful, and patronized by the most cultivated class of our society. Students of music desirous of an acquaintance with classic composition, make a note that Wednesdays at 2 P. M., is the day and hour of meeting. Tickets for sale at Gray's.

SACRAMENTO LETTER.

SACRAMENTO, January 30, 1878.

ED. FOOTLIGHT.—Osip! Countess Danicheff! Thorn! Morant! It would be equivalent to "Sending coals to Newcastle" were I to attempt to write anything to your readers upon the merits or demerits of the play or the deserving artists of the Union Square Theatre Company which opened in the "Danicheffs" at the Metropolitan Theatre last evening, for such talent could not play to San Francisco audiences for eleven weeks without becoming familiar with both actors and play. Good and well-selected music, scenery at once elegant and refreshing to the Sacramento eye, and a play enacted with absolute perfection in every minute detail, was the intellectual feast which a large and brilliant audience were regaled with last evening. Each individual character was portrayed in such a conse-cious manner, that to select any one for special mention in so short a communication as mine must be, would work injustice to the balance; but the names of Osip,
 The Countess Danicheff, Thorn, Morant, and Miss Maude Harrison may be heard everywhere to-day. "Led Astray" is billed for to night.

Manager Thomas Maguire arrived at the Orleans Hotel (where the entire Union Square Company are quartered) last evening, and left for the East in the overland train to-day.

A. S. Penny, agent for the Adah
 Richmond Company, arrived yesterday, and is busy billing the town for their appearance here on Monday evening next.

I am in receipt of number one of a new theatrical paper called The Stage, published in Virginia City. It is printed on tinted paper, is the programme for Piper's new Opera House, and edited by R. S.
 Lawrence, formerly partner with W. P.
 Harrison, of your city, publisher of the Hotel Gazette. Your little namesake, the Footlight in its issue of the 28th inst., gives Mr. Lawrence a very complimentary (?) notice which may breed war on the Comstock.

EASTERN SQUIDS.

BILLY FLORENCE and wife are to produce a piece unlike the "Almighty Dollar" in that interest of the play will not hinge entirely upon their own parts.

MONJESKA, who sets people crazy, is to undertake as her next sensation "Jezebel." "Jezebel," you must know, was a bad, a very bad woman.

WIENIAWSKI, the violinist, who shared the laurels with Rubenstein, during the latter's visit to this country, is now con-certing in Denmark.

PARSELL, the actor, is playing in New York in a role where he "makes up" in a way which causes him to resemble Henry Ward Beecher in appearance to an extraordinary degree.

JOSEPH JEFFERSON is to make an overland trip to San Francisco, and thence to Australia, accompanied by three boon companions—"Rip Van Winkle," "Bob Acres" and Dr. Pangloss.

DE VIVO, the impressario, is to start on an opera tour very shortly with Di Murska, Brignoli, Susini and Signorina Gal-inheri as his principals.

THE Dramatic Mirror wants some one to give Atkins Lawrence a permanent engagement, say on the Texas frontier. If he met a ranchero, it would probably have the desired permanency.

BEN WOOLF has sold the "Mighty Dollar" outright to W. R. Deutsch. It cost him about $5,000 to get his New York success before he made a cent. Since then he has netted about $10,000 out of it.

CAROL, the charming tenor, lately shaved off his moustache while performing in Paris, and straightway all his scores of fair adorers deserted him, and ceased sending bouquets and billet-doux.
 What a warning to people hereabouts!

A PROMINENT manager of New York city expresses himself as follows: "Managers and stars see that their mutual interests lie in the failure of the combination system, and they will yet unite with such managers as have already set an example in breaking it up. The stars, too, will recognize before the present hard season is over the need of being less exacting in their own terms."

"A Celebrated Case" is to follow "The Man of Sorrow" at the Union Square. The time of the play is that of the battle of Fontenoy, 1757. Therefore it will have the benefit of rich and showy costumes; and as there are in it six tableaux—three interiors and as many exteriors—it will afford every possible opportunity to the management for the display of that completeness and artistic taste in scenery for which this theatre is celebrated. There are eighteen speaking characters in the play, seven of which are females. From the uniform of the convict and that of the private soldier up to the beautiful dresses of the duke and duchesses of that picturesque period, almost every costume of the time will, it is said, be brought into requisition.

They do say that Lydia Thompson left this country and is going to leave the stage, because—that is—the fact is, she looked as though—well she wasn't just growing lean exactly, but somehow the audience couldn't get rid of the impression that she was walking around on stilts.

To first young actress who is furnished with a heavy mother, enter vivacious second ditto, who is totally unnumbered. Second Actress—My dear, you must do me a service. Willingly, my love; what is it? Second Actress—I've got to call on a serious manager. Lend me your mother for two hours. I'll return her safe and sound.

Dr. MURKIN has almost as many pets as she has had husbands. One parrot swears like a larger and more profane army than the one in Flanders. She has a parrot that says "Yon lie" to every manager that visits her, and generally the parrot tells the truth.

VOX BULOW is again in hot water, having quarrelled with his orchestra at Glasgow. It requires about half a dozen quarrels to keep him up to regulation.

THE CELEBRATED Cucamonga Rancho, CONTAINING 13,000 ACRES.

Is now being surveyed and subdivided into ten, twenty and forty-acre tracts, and will be sold at $25 to $30 per acre.

WITH WATER FREE,

One-sixth Cash, balance in one, two, three, four and five years, with interest on deferred payments of eight percent per annum.

LOCATION.

Midway between Pomona and Colton, San Bernardino County, California. Soil unsurpassed in fertility. Climate best in the State—no injurious frosts ever known in the Valley. Water in abundance from San Antonio Creek and Cucamonga Creek, which runs through the land. Fifty families already located in the valley, and many orange orchards already set out. The Southern Pacific Railroad, from San Francisco to the Colorado River, runs for about three miles through the tract.

Artesian wells can be made upon any portion of the land. San Bernardino Valley is the best naturally watered of the State of California. It is worthy of mention, however, that artesian wells are numerous, as the valley is bounded on the northeast and south by high mountains, partly snow-capped the year round, which furnish a large area of water shed; superficial and subterranean water is therefore abundant. The surface streams we have already described, and it now remains to give particulars of the wells. Formerly the artesian wells were only of two-inch bore, and the water was always obtained at a depth of 45 to 150 feet. They are now of larger bore, and water in abundance is obtained at a depth of 100 to 150 feet. On the north side of the Santa Ana River the average depth of artesian wells is 100 feet, while on the south side the average depth is greater.

At an elevation of 100 feet above the level of the valley there is a well which, at a depth of 132 feet, produces sufficient water to drive a turbine wheel.

There are now over 200 flowing artesian wells in San Bernardino Valley, and we are convinced that their number can be increased at the option of the inhabitants not only for irrigation, but also for manufacturing purposes.

Oranges, Lemons, Limes, Figs, Olives, Almonds, Walnuts and all semi-tropical fruits grow abundantly. Arrangements can be made to plant any number of Orange Trees, three to four years old, four to five feet high, seventy trees to the acre, and guarantee them, for $100 per acre, also for planting other fruit or shade trees at a reasonable cost.

RICH'S FRENCH HOTEL, one of the best in the southern portion of the State, is located upon the tract and settlers will there find a pleasant economical home until they get their houses built.

For full particulars apply to E. P. NORWOOD, Agent on the land; to C. E. CHUBBICK, Agent at Colton, San Bernardino County; or to the known as "Patent Outside," one of the cheapest and best means of reaching the people in all parts of the Pacific Coast. On the aggregate these papers are read by a quarter of a million people, and our advertisements are placed near well selected reading matter. As one side of these papers is printed in San Francisco, only one cut is required in illustrated advertisements, when it would require 10 to send the order direct to the publisher of each paper. An advertisement occupying one square (10 lines space) will be inserted one time in the entire list for $1—only 10 cents per paper.

ADVERTISERS

WILL FIND THE LIST OF 70 PAPERS, GENERALLY

This evening the benefit performance by pupils of Mr. George Bates takes place. The programme consists of selections from "The Merchant of Venice," "The Wife," "Diamond Cut Diamond," "Richard III" and "Ici on parle Français." On Monday a season of opera bouffe will be inaugurated at this house, under the auspices of Fred Lyster, Miss Catherine Lewis, an artiste of considerable repute, being the attraction. Miss Mattie Moore, late of the Richings-Bernard Tronpe, Miss Marian Singer, Miss Dora Viscenia, Messrs. Harry Gates, W. H. Kinross, J. A. Dauphin, and others well known here, are also engaged. "Madame Angot's Daughter" will be produced Monday night.

Grand Opera House.

To-night is set apart for the benefit of the much-abused E. F. Thorne, a gentleman who has been unfortunate enough to displease the critics, although possessing considerable dramatic talent. The "Ticket-of-Leave Man" and the last act of "Richard III" will constitute the programme, Messrs. Barton Hill and T. W. Keene, volunteering. We trust to see a large audience present.

California Theatre.

The audience continues large, and the waning nights of "A Trip to the Moon" seem prolific of substantial financial results. It will be presented at the matinee this afternoon, and for the last time this evening. Farewell, Mike? Bye-bye King P! Adieu Prince Caprice and pretty Fantasy! On Monday the Majeroni's make their debut.

Bush Street Theatre.

The Female Minstrels are in the full tide of success—crowded houses being present every evening. Matinee this afternoon. On Monday there will be a change of programme.

Adelphi Theatre.

The programme at this house for the week has been an attractive one, and good audiences have been the rule. It is just the place to while away an evening, for the performance is a spirited and diverting one and calculated to drive away the blues from the veriest anchorite.

The Fountain.

Lovers of excellent music congregate in large numbers at this well-known symposium every evening, and the genial host, John Casimir, is always on hand to extend a hearty welcome. The Fountain concerts are delightfully refreshing, as well as being well dispensed there.

THE many friends of the late William Sauer, pianist, have tendered his widow benefit, to take place at Pacific Hall, Thursday Evening, February 7th. Many eminent artists have volunteered their services, and a rare musical treat may be expected.

THEATRICAL GOSSIP, ETC.

BONNER's concert at Pacific Hall was well attended last evening, and the various performers acquitted themselves to the entire satisfaction of all present. Mr. Bonner is a marvelous singer—possesses a voice of rare compass and flexibility, and withal of great purity of tone. He will some day occupy a prominent niche in the lyric temple. Mrs. Bonner made her debut and sang with a grace and abandon that would have done credit to many a professional. Our space forbids extended remarks. The concert was a decided success and highly creditable to the participants.

BANCROFT, Knight & Co., have just issued "Love's Entrancing Harmonies," by Von der Harde, dedicated to the Utile Dulci Society.

"The Alarmed Academy," by Toby Rosenthal, is on exhibition at the art gallery of Snow & May.

EMERSON'S Opera House is closed until further notice.

The Sunday evening concerts at Grand Opera House, have been postponed till further notice.

THE present season at Grand Opera House will terminate this evening. Theatre will re-open on Saturday with new version of "Uncle Tom's Cabin," with 100 genuine colored gentlemen in the cast.

FOOTLIGHT PELLETS.

THE Female Minstrels at the Bush Street Theatre are coining money, simply by their economy in dress.

AN exchange says an American has been admitted to the bar in London. Nothing in that. In San Francisco about 30,000 are admitted every day.

It is said that, to keep Rotten Row, in Hyde Park, London, in order, costs $10,000 a year.—Ex. It costs about $400,000 a year to keep our Rotten Row (of politicians) in order.

A SCHOOL-HOUSE lot is so situated that the teacher sits in Santa Clara county and the scholars in San Mateo. Queer, isn't it?

KEARNEY's absence from the city has done more for the unemployed workmen than all the speeches he ever made.

AN unmortgaged house has just been completed on California street, near Gough. This augurs prosperity.

LADIES' hats are growing pyramidal—sort of Bashu-Bazonka, as it were.

YOUNG ladies have their dancing dresses made with short, pointed trains. They are also having their bonnets and hats made with double brims. Others have split brims—with split brains underneath.

WHY is it that a pair of stairs will creak when you climb them noiselessly in your stocking feet?

TO A SUBSCRIBER: "Yes, sir; it is perfectly proper to say, 'Dell and Hamnashun' when a pair of car-horses splutter you with mud. It is a mild form of expressive opinion. 'Thunder and paragoric' might be more polite, yet it does not seem to take in the situation.

WE never before saw so many emaciated wallets as at the present time. No family is without one.

HOW consoling it must be for the modern husband to split the difference than split the wood.

WHEN is a mother a father? When she's a sisher.—Rehypothecated squib
When was your aunt an uncle? When she wor' a carb-uncle.—Danbury News.
When was that?

NEW song by a lady: "Be it ever so humble, there's no place like the neighbors."—Rochester Chronicle. New song by a barber: "Be it ever so humble, there's no place like comb."

FOR cold weather we consider it warm.

WHEN you see a Kearny street snob wearing a pair of boots with a supernatural polish, you may know they are old.

"UMBRELLA's six bits apiece!" shouts the vendor on Montgomery street. "Is that so?" said a clear-eyed chap, stepping up to him. "Yes, sir; fine whalebone umbrellas for only six bits; take one, sir?" "Well," said the other, "I wouldn't mind it if I had six bits, and it was raining!"

Rough on Booth.

The New York Dramatic News seems to be only happy when it is maligning some actor, actress or author. It began at Alpha and is well on its way to Omega. It swells with blatant pride at the thought that it is a critical journal, but it mistakes abuse for criticism. Just now it is black-guarding Boncieault and other prominent theatrical people, and its last issue contains the following puerile attempt at criticising Edwin Booth's "Hamlet." When it is known that the sterling actor and estimable gentleman passed the critical ordeal of competent writers years ago, and is the recognized Shakspearean exponent of the American stage, the following, although laughable, cannot but excite public compassion for the idiot who penned it:

"As the Dramatic News foresaw and foretold, the welcome over, and the steady work commencing, Mr. Booth's audiences fell off last week to a beggarly account of empty benches, and his present engagement promises to be ever a more pitiable failure than that which he played at the Lyceum. The attractiveness of Mr. Booth in New York is, to use the Chesterfieldian sentence of Mr. Jacob McCloskey, 'played out.' This week Mr. Booth has been giving his favorite and monotonous version of Hamlet. Mr. Booth's performance of this grand role is so well known that any criticism of it now were as stale as the tricks that once elevated it into popularity. We see no change in his performance, no deterioration and no improvement. There is in it the same vague absence of character and effect which has been praised as an artistic reflex of the indecision attributed by false criticism to one of the most active and decided characters that the pen of the great dramatist ever drew. There is the same monotonous delivery, the same lazy emphases given at precisely the same minute by the tower clock, and the same attempt to appear piously by not appearing manly. As we have already endeavored to show in these columns, this Hamlet of the Boarding School is about as like the Hamlet of Shakspeare as water is like full-bodied Burgundy. And we risk nothing in saying that it will prove as tedious as did the Richard III of last week; and ere it is withdrawn, Mr. Booth will again play it to those unnumbered chairs whose semidisturbed cushions have become familiar to his dark eyes."

EASTERN THEATRICALS.

FROM the Dramatic News, received this morning, we extract the following.

DION BONCEAULT was used last week in the Sixth District, for two months' service ($60) by his coachman.

MR. SOTHEBY and his company opened at the Philadelphia Walnut, last week, to $378. This is authentic. It really seems time for this gentleman to go back to England.

THE case of McWade against Boncieault comes up February 20th. W. H. Howe, is the counsel for McWade, and Judge Fullerton has been specially retained to cross-examine Boncieault. He says he will crush the great pirate.

THE "Exiles" (Boston version) will be done at the Fifth Avenue in this city, after "Jezebel," which is called the "Dead Secret." There are several other versions of this play floating around New York, one of which is by Mr. Pillet, an attache of Frank Leslie's.

AS an evidence of what business is in some places we may mention that Mrs. Bower played recently to a $16 house in Detroit, and that J. B. Atwater and Lettie Allen played to a two-dollar house in Pittsburgh. Their entire business for the week there was $54.

THERE is an approaching excitement between the managers of the Eagle and New Broadway. Both are going to do the "Lycous Mat" on Monday night. Mr. Duff claims he announced it first, while Mr. Hart claims he had it in preparation long before Duff thought of it. He intimates also that Dampier ought to be spelt with a Q in place of a P.

THE Arcadian has at last given up the ghost permanently. Mr. James W. Tooley, its late proprietor, after losing $1,000 in five weeks by the venture, got paralysis of the brain, and has gone to St. Augustine, Fla. to recuperate if possible. The Arcadian has been the graveyard of six moderate fortunes.

PRETTY ELEANOR CAREY, who has come almost unperceived among us, because she foolishly consented to appear with a star like Booth, who always wants the fat for himself, does not, to her great chagrin, appear at the Union Square, in one of the principal parts of the "Ounce of Gold." Here would have been a chance.

CHARLEY THORNE will play the leading part in the "Celebrated Case," with the Union Square Travelling Company, after all. He has been grumbling a good deal of late, though he got double his regular salary in San Francisco. When he found out it was the idea to give it all the part, however, he backed right down.

Grand Orchestral Matinee

OF THE SECOND SEASON.

Wednesday Afternoon, Feb. 8.

PART FIRST.

1 MARCH, En Avant GUNDEL
2 LES PRELUDES, Poeme Symphonique. LITZ
"What is our life but a series of preludes to that unknown song of which death intones the first unknown note. Love forms the lovely morn of every existence, but where in the destiny whose first voluptuous thrills of happiness, are never interrupted by some stern, the fatal blast of which dissipates its bright illusions, whose deathly lightning destroys its altar? What soul is there thus cruelly wounded which after one of these tempests does not seek to baffle its memories in the soft sweet calm of country life? But man scarcely resigns himself to taste of the benefits of that rest, the desire for which has lured him to the bosom of nature, when the trumpet sounds the signal of a war, he rushes to his post of peril whatever may be the war which summons him to the ran, only to find in the combat the full consciousness of self and the entire possession of his strength."

LOCATION.

Midway between Pomona and Colton, San Bernardino County, California. Soil unsurpassed in fertility. Climate best in the State—no injurious frosts ever known in the Valley. Water in abundance from San Antonio Creek and Cucamonga Creek, which runs through the land. Fifty families already located in the valley, and many orange orchards already set out. The Southern Pacific Railroad, from San Francisco to the Colorado River, runs for about three miles through the tract.

Artesian wells can be made upon any portion of the land. San Bernardino Valley is the best naturally watered of the State of California. It is worthy of mention, however, that artesian wells are numerous, as the valley is bounded on the northeast and south by high mountains, partly snow-capped the year round, which furnish a large area of water shed; superficial and subterranean water is therefore abundant. The surface streams we have already described, and it now remains to give particulars of the wells. Formerly the artesian wells were only of two-inch bore, and the water was always obtained at a depth of 45 to 150 feet. They are now of larger bore, and water in abundance is obtained at a depth of 100 to 150 feet. On the north side of the Santa Ana River the average depth of artesian wells is 100 feet, while on the south side the average depth is greater.

At an elevation of 100 feet above the level of the valley there is a well which, at a depth of 132 feet, produces sufficient water to drive a turbine wheel.

There are now over 200 flowing artesian wells in San Bernardino Valley, and we are convinced that their number can be increased at the option of the inhabitants, not only for irrigation, but also for manufacturing purposes.

Oranges, Lemons, Limes, Figs, Olives, Almonds, Walnuts and all semi-tropical fruits grow abundantly. Arrangements can be made to plant any number of Orange Trees, three to four years old, four to five feet high, seventy trees to the acre, and guarantee them, for $100 per acre; also for planting other fruit or shade trees at a reasonable cost.

RICHIE'S FRENCH HOTEL, one of the best in the southern portion of the State, is located upon the tract, and settlers will there find a pleasant economical home until they get their houses built.

For full particulars apply to E. P. NORWOOD, Agent on the land; to C. E. CHUBB, Agent at Colton, San Bernardino County; or to the

ADVERTISERS

WILL FIND THE LIST OF 70 PAPERS, GENERALLY known as "Patent Outlets," one of the cheapest and best means of reaching the people in all parts of the Pacific Coast. On the aggregate these papers are read by a quarter of a million people, and our advertisements are placed near well selected reading matter. As one side of these papers is printed in San Francisco, only one cut is required in illustrated advertisements, when it would require 70 to send the order direct to the publisher of each paper. An advertisement occupying one square (10 lines agate) will be inserted one time in the entire list for $7—only 10 cents per paper.

An ordinary circular can be printed in this list, set in the space of one-fourth of a double column, and inserted once for One Dollar per paper. By this method circulars are more likely to be read and preserved, and the cost is not more than one-fourth of what it would be to print and distribute the same number through so many sections. MONDAY - - - - FEBRUARY 4

California Theatre.

The engagement of the great Italian actor, Signor Edoardo Majeroni, and his talented wife, will be inaugurated at this theatre this evening the Signor appearing in the romantic play of the "Old Corporal," said to abound in exciting situations and pleasant episodes, and sparkling with romance and sentimentality. The Signor has acquired our language in a remarkably short time, and pronounces it with a correctness that would astonish the veriest native. On Thursday a new society play entitled "Jealousy, or Mistaken Education," will be produced.

Baldwin's Theatre.

This evening the opera bouffe season commences at this cosy theatre under the auspices of Fred Lyster. The talented artiste, Catherine Lewis heads the list of a competent company selected with much care by Mr. Lyster, and we have no doubt the season will be a prosperous one. "La Fille de Madame Angot" will be the introductory quip, introducing the full company as well as an introductory orchestra and chorus.

Bush Street Theatre.

An entire change of programme is announced for the week at this popular house. The first part will consist of new songs, jokes, etc., the interlude fresh and sparkling acts and scenes, and the entertainment to conclude with the burlesque of "Joaquin the Valiant."

Adelphi Theatre.

Notwithstanding the multiplicity of attractions elsewhere, the Adelphi holds its own. The company engaged here is versatile and talented, and their different songs, acts and sketches create an inordinate amount of mirth. A meritorious drama closes a highly interesting entertainment.

The Fountain.

Unusual musical attractions are offered at this subterranean retreat, while the edibles, liquids, etc., serve to make an hour or so pass quite satisfactorily. The Fountain is daily increasing in popularity.

MIRRORISMS.

From the Philadelphia Dramatic and Musical Mirror, one of the few theatrical papers we delight to read, we extract the following items of interest:

MARY ANDERSON's father was a general in the Confederate army.

LOTTA is said to be always ready to respond to the solicitations of the needy.

MARY ANDERSON has been very successful in the South, playing to an average of $850 in most towns.

ANNA DICKIN is re-writing "Hamlet," and transforming the First Grave-digger, according to Puck.

It doesn't pay to boncicault plays in this country—"P. by" for instance.

THEATRICAL GOSSIP, Etc.

JAMES A. HERNE is going to Australia. Just one more change, Miss Viola, and your fortune's made.

The Union Square Company open in Virginia to-night.

The natty Ernest Linden is still perambulating our fashionable thoroughfares.

The genial Harry Courtaine, we are glad to know, has been re-engaged at the Grand Opera House.

ELLIE WILTON has returned from Virginia, and will appear at the California to-night.

The talented Annie Pixley is still retained at the Grand—a fact which theatre-goers will be delighted to hear.

ED. THORNE says he left the Grand Opera House to "star" throughout the East. Merciful Heavens!

THE "Black Crook" party, under the management of Mr. Locke, play in Oakland to-night.

EMERSON'S OPERA HOUSE will re-open on the 24th instant, with a first-class Eastern Company.

MISS ADA WARD, an English actress of repute, will shortly arrive in this city from Australia.

THE Chronicle's two leading articles in Sunday's dramatic column were just to the point. Sutcliffe hits it sometimes.

MANAGER LOCKE is negotiating to take the "Trip to the Moon" people to Chicago.

THE Mail says, speaking of "A Trip to the Moon," "that its utter vacuity was its merit." We were about to say the same thing of the Mail's criticism.

We counted forty-three bald heads at the Bush Street Theatre Saturday night—and every one of them was down near the orchestra. Probably to hear well.

THEY say little Gracie Plaisted was not affected with stage fright on the occasion of her debut at the California. She possesses both nerve and ability.

"LEAR and Cordelia" by Hernan Stender, a rising young artist of this city, may be seen in the window of J. W. Tucker & Co., Kearny street.

THEATRICALS are overdone in Australia, and many of our old-time professionals are walking the streets of Sydney and Melbourne.

MISS ROSE MOSS will appear in her own piece of "Broken Chains," at the Grand next Sunday evening. The lady possesses considerable talent as a dramatist.

HERNE must have been talking sweet to the Call reporter. See yesterday's issue for a "sugared" vindication of the former's almost forgotten "unpleasantness" with Eleanor Carey.

E. F. THORNE, Miss Jennie Murdock, Mr. Egberts, Miss Annie Bleakley, and Mr. Stanley have been dismissed from the Grand Opera House Company, and are now fleeing hence.

CHARLES POPE did not arrive on the Australian steamer on Saturday, as was expected. He stopped over in Honolulu to give readings to the natives, they guaranteeing him $500.

MR. WM. WINTER has pruned from "Richard III" the additions of Colley Cibber, and placed in the hands of Edwin Booth, Shakespeare's work substantially as Shakespeare wrote it.

A GEM of musical composition will be given at the Herold matinee next Wednesday, namely, the trio for strings only performed by Messrs. Heyman, Widmer and Homier.

WHAT will Allie Harrison do for something to hug, now that Gracie Plaisted and a "Trip to the Moon" are off the boards? Oh, by-the-by, somebody remind her gently that our sanctum is not far away.

It is hard to tell whether the Post's dramatic critic is writing for the benefit of our French or American residents. Strange—writers cannot confine themselves to one tongue. How that French dictionary must suffer!

MA. GEO. B. RIEMAN the indefatigable manager of Bradley & Rulofson's photographic gallery, and a gentleman possessing much theatrical knowledge has been appointed San Francisco correspondent of the New York Mercury.

BARTON HILL will play in the "Deluge" at the conclusion of the Majeroni's engagement. So will Tom Keene. Give him the funny part, Mr. Eberle.

THE Kiralfy Troupe play in Oakland to-night; San Jose, Wednesday and Thursday; Marysville, Friday, and all next week in Sacramento—giving Stockton, a good show town, the go-by.

MRS. ELIZABETH J. FRENCH announces a lecture to ladies at the Union Square Baptist Church, to-morrow evening. Subject: "What shall we teach our girls?" Save your breath, Lizzie. Can't teach 'em anything.

THE Taylor Family will appear at Pacific Hall on Thursday evening, February 7th, in one of their characteristic entertainments for the benefit of the widow of the late William Sauer, who will be remembered as a pianist of some renown. Other attractions are offered, and as the object is a worthy one, we hope to see a large attendance.

A COMPLIMENTARY concert has been tendered to Mrs. L. A. K. Clappe, one of the oldest teachers in the Department, who is at present confined to her bed by sickness. The concert will be given by the pupils of the Denman Grammar School, at the Metropolitan Temple, on Thursday evening, 7th inst.

FOR amateurs the performance at Baldwin's on Saturday evening was quite creditable. The character of Anna Maria in "Leu ou parle Français" was perfect. In the trial scene of Shylock, Gratiano went through some gymnastics not usually found outside of a Christmas pantomime, and Shylock himself hopped around prettily lively for an old man. No time was lost between the acts—something unusual in amateur management. The house was crowded.

FANNY BUCKINGHAM seems to have met with great favor in Portland. The following, which is exceedingly complimentary, is from the Her:

Miss Buckingham's benefit last evening proved a perfect ovation, the auditorium being crowded. The presentation was unanimously voted the most successful of the season, and Miss Buckingham's rendition of the role of "Mazepa" was without an exception, the finest she has yet given. Great enthusiasm prevailed throughout the entertainment, and floral tributes were showered at the feet of the delighted star. So great is the demand for a continued run of the piece that Manager Bert has effected another engagement with Miss Buckingham, and "Mazepa" will be presented three more nights, together with a matinee on Saturday next. This will afford all an opportunity to attend. And none who have not witnessed it should fail to do so before the season closes.

THE advice that should be given to girls intending to marry, says the Lady's Journal, is: "Keep your head clear, and look out for the best commercial partnership that you can find. If you do not positively dislike your future partner, you will find that after you have married him and lived some time with him, you will like him, and in a reasonable, sensible way, love him. There is nothing selfish or mercenary in this view of marriage. Of course it is more agreeable to be endowed with much of this world's goods than with little of them. If Brown, Jones and Robinson all want to marry you, each one is personally, in all probability, neither better nor worse than the others. Therefore, if Brown is well-to-do, and Jones and Robinson are not in a position which would justify their marrying, then marry Brown, unless there is some very excellent reason to the contrary.

SAN FRANCISCO.

THE Paris correspondent of the Courier de San Francisco, writes thus of the debut of the American prima donna, Marie Louise Durand:

"Mme. Durand fulfilled to the utmost the hopes based upon the announcement of the appearance of a new American prima donna. Tall, well-shaped, endowed with exceedingly expressive and regular features, Madame Durand possesses an admirable soprano voice, which is full, clear, yet soft, perfectly balanced in the lower and equally well trained in the higher notes. Mme. Durand's success was very great. Aida is one of the most interesting, magnificent and complete works which have been produced upon the lyric stage during the past twenty years, and it is not without emotion, although with unmixed satisfaction, that the public welcomed this bold, virile and admirable conception of the last of the masters of the Italian school. The most enthusiastic applause greeted the artist who rendered the title role so grandly. Mme. Durand's success was great; it was immense."

COL. SINN complains that Samuel Piercy broke his engagement with him. He was to have been leading man at the Park, and Col. Sinn relied on him to support McCullough. At the last moment Mr. Piercy sent word that his doctor had forbidden him to play five Shakespearean roles in one week, saying "it might injure him for life." The excuse is rather thin, in view of the fact that Mr. Piercy can play "Lagardere" every night at Niblo's. We should like to know the name of the convenient doctor.

A PRIVATE letter informs us that Mr. Chizzola is doing finely with the Soldene Troupe, so finely that he has gone to England to engage more talent and return to Australia with it. He will not, however, return to the United States, where his debts are over $50,000. Now his creditors are gnashing their teeth for letting him go, especially the San Francisco gentleman who furnished the money to take the party to Australia.

No. 3 Kearny st., S. F. Entrance, on Geary st.

THE CELEBRATED Cucamonga Rancho, CONTAINING 13,000 ACRES.

Is now being surveyed and subdivided into ten, twenty and forty acre farms, and will be sold at $25 to $30 per acre.

WITH WATER FREE.

One-sixth Cash, balance in one, two, three, four and five years, with interest on deferred payments at eight percent per annum.

LOCATION.

Midway between Pomona and Colton, San Bernardino County, California. Soil unsurpassed in fertility. Climate best in the State—no injurious frosts ever known in the Valley. Water in abundance from San Antonio Creek and Cucamonga Creek, which run through the land. Fifty families already located in the valley, and many orange orchards already set out. The Southern Pacific Railroad, from San Francisco to the Colorado River, runs for about three miles through the tract.

Artesian wells can be had upon any portion of the land. San Bernardino Valley is the best naturally watered of the State of California. It is worthy of mention, however, that artesian wells are numerous, as the valley is bounded on the northeast and south by high mountains, partly snow-capped the year round, which furnish a large area of water shed, superficial and subterranean water is therefore abundant. The surface streams we have already described, and it now remains to give particulars of the wells. Formerly the artesian wells were only of two-inch bore, and the water was always obtained at a depth of 45 to 150 feet. They are now of larger bore, and water in abundance is obtained at a depth of 100 to 150 feet. On the north side of the Santa Ana River the average depth of artesian wells is 100 feet, while on the south side the average depth is greater.

At an elevation of 100 feet above the level of the valley there is a well which, at a depth of 132 feet, produces sufficient water to drive a turbine wheel.

There are now over 200 flowing artesian wells in San Bernardino Valley, and we are convinced that their number can be increased at the option of the inhabitants, not only for irrigation, but also for manufacturing purposes. Oranges, Lemons, Limes, Figs, Olives, Almonds, Walnuts and all semi-tropical fruits grow abundantly. Arrangements can be made to plant any number of Orange Trees, three to four years old, four to five feet high, seventy trees to the acre, and guarantee them, for $100 per acre; also for planting other fruit or shade trees at a reasonable cost.

LUCHE'S FRENCH HOTEL, one of the best in the southern portion of the State, is located upon the tract, and settlers will there find a pleasant economical home until they get their homes built.

For full particulars, maps, circulars etc. apply to E. F. NORWOOD, Agent on the land, to C. E. CHUBBUCK, Agent at Colton, San Bernardino County; or to the

ADVERTISERS

WILL FIND THE LIST OF 70 PAPERS, GENERALLY known as "Patent Outlines," one of the cheapest and best means of reaching the people in all parts of the Pacific Coast. On the aggregate these papers are read by a quarter of a million people, and our advertisements are placed near well selected reading matter. As one side of these papers is printed in San Francisco, only one cut is required in illustrated advertisements, when it would require 70 to send the order direct to the publisher of each paper. An advertisement occupying one square (10 lines agate) will be inserted one time in the entire list for $7—only 10 cents per paper.

An ordinary circular can be printed in this list, set in the space of one-fourth of a double column, and inserted once for One Dollar per paper. By this method circulars are more likely to be read and preserved, and the cost is not more than one-fourth of what it would be to print and distribute the same number through so many sections. TUESDAY - - - - FEBRUARY 5

California Theatre.

A select audience assembled to witness the first appearance in English on the American stage of Signor Edoardo Maje-roni, and his acting last evening at once stamped him as an actor of the highest grade. The piece is not particularly interesting in its construction, though it embodies points of entertainment somewhat different from any thing of the kind we have had heretofore. The pantomimic action and expressions of rage depicted by the Signor when he is struck dumb after being falsely accused of theft, exhibits that peculiar Italian power and dramatic intensity which can only be portrayed by one "to the manner born," and the audience were fairly electrified by his portrayal of the difficult requirements of the role. He has a wonderfully expressive face, and the various emotions depicted thereon is an absolute study. The Signor was repeatedly called before the curtain to receive the commendations of the audience. The support was fair, and Misses Ella Wilton, Alice Harrison and Belle Chapman, and Messrs. Keene, Long, Lemar, Mestayer and Wilson rendered effective aid. A petite phenomenon in the person of little Nellie Broderick appeared in the first act, and captivated the audience at once. "The Old Corporal" will be repeated this evening.

Baldwin's Theatre.

Notwithstanding the unpropitious state of the weather, a fair audience assembled at this theatre last evening, to witness the initial effort of the new opera bouffe company which has been organized from our local talent, and there is no disparagement in the fact that it is probably as strong a company of the kind that has been in the city for some time. Miss Catherine Lewis proves herself to be a captivating artiste, a little given to affectation, but possessing requisites that will some day place her on an enviable round in the ladder of fame. She sang the role of Clairette, in "Mme. Angot's Daughter," with a piquancy and vim that called forth merited praise. The pleasant voice of Harry Gates was heard to advantage, while Mr. Tilla surprised us by his excellent acting and singing. Mr. Kinross, Miss Hattie Moore, and Miss Marian Singer enacted their roles with much acceptance. When the strangeness of a hasty association wears away, the company will sing and act in more harmony, and we bespeak a successful season at Baldwin's. "Mme. Angot" will be repeated to-night.

Bush Street Theatre.

The streams of masculinity that pour into this theatre every evening are certainly cheering to the managerial heart, if they are productive of candle lectures later in the evening. The new programme is not much of an improvement upon last week, yet it is interesting, and pleased the audience.

The Fountain.

A visit to this well-known resort is certainly diverting, and prolific of much pleasure. The musical programme, as published in another column, is replete with gems from eminent composers, while Mr. John Savinier's cavorting with the cornet meets with responsive acclamations of delight each evening.

THEATRICAL GOSSIP, Etc.

MISLER's Swedish Lady Vocal Quartette are expected in this city in a month or so, on their way to Australia, China and Japan. Mrs. Bertha Berge, the eminent pianist, and Christian Krane, Danish violin virtuoso, are with the quartette.

NELSON DECKER, formerly of the Californian Theatre, is playing Viscount Raoul de Lmngy, in "A Celebrated Case," at the Union Square, New York. "Oh, Willie we have missed you!"

MISS NOKO McCABE has sufficiently recovered from her late coasting accident at Virginia city as to be able to resume her position in Piper's Company.

J. H. LEROY is about organizing a company to play in Santa Cruz. J. A. Herne, and Misses Ada and Killie Deaves are among those engaged.

MISS ALICE KINGSBURY has received so much encouragement from the sale of her book, that she contemplates issuing a third edition.

We hear that Happy Cal. Wagner's Minstrels contemplate a trip to this coast shortly.

JOE MURPHY has just closed a successful engagement in New Orleans. Joe belongs to us, and we presume that is the reason he is in such demand throughout the East.

ONE of the sweetest things in life is to sit in the family circle of the California Theatre, and have a Tar Flat representative behind you performing on the fragrant peanut. The harmony is varied by the music of the shells crunched under foot, or the percussion and heavy breathing accompanying the removal of the fragments from the interstices of his teeth.

HE was engaged to George, but was visiting a lady friend (an actress) at Baldwin's. "Oh, do, Phoebe, come and engage rooms here; it's so nice." "Well, wait a little till George realizes on his Bechtel!" and she left, singing "In this suite bye and bye!"

BILLY MESTAYER can stand in the middle of his chicken ranch, and supremely vociferate: "This is the handsomest fifty acres I ever put my foot down upon!" and thus he be envied.

It is now pretty definitely settled that Manager Locke will take the "Trip to the Moon" to Chicago, with Bishop, Mestayer, Alice Harrison and Gracie Plaisted as stars.

GEO. T. EVANS, the eminent pianist and composer, is lying dangerously ill at his residence.

We hear that Mr. M. B. Curtis will form one of the company at the Grand Opera House the coming season.

THE "Wilton Literary Society" has elected the following officers:

AN English dramatic critic thinks that Henry Irving is better in barlesque than in tragedy. He prefers to see him as an old woman with a gingham umbrella, than in the character of Macbeth.

MAODIE MITCHELL's grasshopper (La Cigale) has jumped into success at the Globe Theatre, London.

THE Virginia Chronicle tells the following story at the expense of Miss Ellie Wilton. It smacks of improbability, and we would want Miss W.'s endorsement. However, we give it as told:

Last evening Ellie Wilton's animated description of a fox chase in the play of "London Assurance" made the old Washoe sports wild with excitement. This morning the boys got together and decided that they would get up a fox chase, so that Miss Wilton might take a hand. Jim Orndorff, Jack Magee and Tom Bean called on the lady at her rooms and announced their mission.

"You see," said Jim, "we noticed last night that you were a hunter from the dead jump, and we concluded to get you up a little racket on the side, like."

"We can dish up a fox-chase here," chipped in Jack Magee, "that'll discomfit anything that ever tore up the sod in the old country."

"I'll lend you my bay Billy," said Bean; "he can distance any d-d horse that wears hair."

The trio were considerably astonished when Miss Wilton informed them that she had never been in a fox hunt in her life.

As Bean went down the elevator he said it was a d-d shame for a woman to fool an audience so.

ROUGH ON BOUCICAULT.—The Boston Globe comes down on the wheeny scone of the great pirate with a weighty club. The blow is doubtless deserved, for Boucy is just as renowned a "busy-body" as he is a pla-dramatist:

"Mr. Boucicault is not likely to raise himself in the esteem of his professional associates or the public by his last performance. Letters and dispatches are published showing that he did his best to induce Charles K. Thorne, Jr., to break his engagement with Shook & Palmer, of the Union Square Theatre, and join him at the Fifth Avenue. Thorne was in San Francisco with a Union Square piece, and under engagement for three years. Boucicault wanted to secure him, and carried on negotiations, representing to him that his contract had been violated by Shook & Palmer, by giving a leading position in their company to Coghlan. The 'eminent dramatist' clearly played the part of a meddler and mischief-maker, in the hope of forwarding his own designs, but Thorne concluded to stick to his engagement, and the game has been shown up. Some new explanation of the decline of the drama is needed."

A BRILLIANT IDEA.—The man who goes into good American society much must be impressed with the utter uselessness of the lives of most of the young women who move in it. The sentiment of the wealthy class in our simple republic is inflexibly against an unmarried woman doing anything to justify her existence. Of the ladies under twenty-five, whose fathers are rich, and who go into society:

Not more than one in 500 can make a dress for herself.

Not more than one in 300 can cook a decent meal.

Not more than one in 200 can keep household accounts.

Not more than one in 100 knows anything of the care of children.

But—

Of 500, 449 can play the piano after a fashion.

Of 300, 260 can do fancy-work with their needles.

Of 200, 150 can sing.

Of 100, 100 are willing to marry.

They have—

Intelligence.

Energy.

Unlimited leisure.

Money.

A desire to do something useful.

Therefore—

Let them adopt babies.

The foundling and orphan asylums are full of infants eligible for adoption, and willing to be adopted.

The advantages of this new departure would be—

Practice in the profession of wifehood.

Development of the maternal instinct.

A rational interest in life.

A soft thing for thousands of infants who would otherwise die or live, and, in either case, go to the devil.

An unfailing theme for conversation with gentlemen callers.

THE Illustrated and Dramatic Sporting News, very sensibly remarks, "That people and especially the younger portion thereof are much influenced by the tone of public amusements can not be doubted, neither can it be denied that many young men and women lost their natural modesty and self-respect in the presence of the long continued exhibitions of female shamelessness, in the so-called spectacular plays, and had their dormant passions aroused at an untimely period of their lives, their next mental delectation being a series of gracefully shaded versions of the depravity of both sexes as delineated by the French authors of the present, which even though it did no other harm, would gradually warp the mind of the young, and tend to shake the faith of both man and woman."

NEXT Saturday at Chicago, Strakosch commences a two weeks' season of opera, with Marie Roze, Kellogg and Cary as leading attractions.

WHAT is to be done with those Swedish Lady Quartettes? The country is flooded with them, and they all claim to be the original one. As if these peripatetic females were not enough, a Swedish Male Quartette is now prowling through the New England circuit. We are fully convinced that the majority of the members of the Swedish quartettes that have appeared in this city never saw Sweden. By the way, why doesn't some enterprising Philadelphian get up an Alnska Lady Quartette?

A PHILADELPHIA advertisement for sixty men not less than six feet high to appear in the play of "Antony and Cleopatra" drew a multitude to the theater. One of the successful ones wore a glossy black beard that stretched far down his bosom. Being asked how he fared, he replied: "I was selected, but I make a great sacrifice. I have been six years growing these whiskers, but I've got to cut 'em off. Them Egyptians wore no beards, and I'm cast for an Egyptian. I get twenty-five cents a night and have to pay the first night's money each week to the door-tender. It will cost me forty cents a week to get shaved, but then I'll earn ninety cents a week, and that'll pay in these hard times."

VON BLOU is not very complimentary to English orchestral directors; he writes that "like their omnibus conductors, they are always behind."

Mlle. MARIMON has won great success at Covent Garden Theatre, London, as "Maria" in "The Daughter of the Regiment," no prima donna since Jenny Lind doing so much justice to the character.

Isn't it about time that Clara Louise Kellogg had said something about that little "Conservatory of Music" scheme to which she was to devote the profits of her recent professional tour in California?

CHAS. F. COGHILAN suffered a severe loss, last week. Entrusting a considerable sum of money to his serving-man to deposit at his bankers, he gave the man his car fare and bade him hurry, an admonition the man was only too glad to accept, for he hurried so fast that nothing has been heard of him since.

MIRRORISMS.

The following items of interest we copy from the Philadelphia Musical and Dramatic Mirror:

MADAME MODJESKA's success in New York has been so great that she offered Mrs. John Drew $2,000 to postpone her engagement at the Arch until spring. The offer was refused.

BILLY EMERSON and his California Minstrels are making fun fast and furious, under the able management of Gus Phillips (Oofy Gooft), at the Olympic Theatre.

In an autograph book, over the signature of Fanny Davenport, appears this sentiment: "I wish all creation was but a single mouth, so that I might kiss it."

MR. EDGAR DAVENPORT, the eldest son of the late tragedian, is writing up the Philadelphia dramatic news for the Boston Society, formerly known as the Opera Glass.

MILTON NOBIE's present season on the road has been a remarkable success. Since leaving St. Louis, his average sale of reserved seats during the day has been from $150 to $225.

KELLOGG, Cary and Roze had quite a cosy time of it last week at the National, Washington, in fixing on dressing rooms. Three prime doune with accommodations for one star only; so after a lovely fight Kellogg secured the prize. Cary shut herself up in the green-room, and Roze shut the stage-manager out of his office!

It is predicted in well-informed circles that unless business picked up Mr. McVicker will close his theatre before the end of the season. In fact Mac has intimated as much in some of his announcements. His reduction of 30 per cent. in prices results in his having just so much less money in the house, for the attendance is no larger than before. The fact that Mr. Anderson, the new leading man, is engaged for only four weeks looks very much as though the climax was in the near future.

It is related that the original idea of the plot of "Une Cause Celebre" was suggested to its authors, D'Ennery and Cormon, by a celebrated trial, which took place in the south of France, when a man was condemned to death on the testimony of his three-year-old child. The horrible possibilities of such a case, where a man's life depended upon the word of an infant, at once struck the fertile imagination of D'Ennery, and, with Cormon, he worked out "Une Cause Celebre."

- "What is our life but a series of preludes to that unknown song of which death intones the first solemn note. Love forms the lovely morn of every existence, but where is the destiny whose first voluptuous thrills of happiness, are never interrupted by some storm, the fatal blast of which dissipates its bright illusions, whose deadly lightning destroys its altar? What soul is there thus cruelly wounded which after one of these tempests does not seek to hush its memories in the soft sweet calm of country life? But man scarcely resigns himself to taste of the benefits of that rest, the desire for which has lured him to the bosom of nature, when the trumpet sounds the signal of alarm, he rushes to his post of peril whatever may be the war which summons him to the ranks, only to find in the combat the full consciousness of self and the entire possession of his strength."

LOCATION.

Midway between Pomona and Colton, San Bernardino County, California. Soil unsurpassed in fertility. Climate best in the State—no injurious frosts ever known in the Valley. Water in abundance from San Antonio Creek and Cucamonga Creek, which run through the land. Fifty families already located in the valley, and many orange orchards already set out. The Southern Pacific Railroad, from San Francisco to the Colorado River, runs for about three miles through the tract.

Artesian wells can be had upon any portion of the land. San Bernardino Valley is the best naturally watered of the State of California. It is worthy of mention, however, that artesian wells are numerous, as the valley is bounded on the northeast and south by high mountains, partly snow-capped the year round, which furnish a large area of water shed; superficial and subterranean water is therefore abundant. The surface streams we have already described, and it now remains to give particulars of the wells. Formerly the artesian wells were only of two-inch bore, and the water was always obtained at a depth of 45 to 150 feet. They are now of larger bore, and water in abundance is obtained at a depth of 100 to 150 feet. On the north side of the Santa Ana River the average depth of artesian wells is 100 feet, while on the south side the average depth is greater.

At an elevation of 100 feet above the level of the valley there is a well which, at a depth of 132 feet, produces sufficient water to drive a turbine wheel.

There are now over 200 flowing artesian wells in San Bernardino Valley, and we are convinced that their number can be increased at the option of the inhabitants, not only for irrigation, but also for manufacturing purposes.

Oranges, Lemons, Limes, Figs, Olives, Almonds, Walnuts and all semi-tropical fruits grow abundantly. Arrangements can be made to plant any number of Orange Trees, three to four years old, four to five feet high, seventy trees to the acre, and guarantee them, for $100 per acre; also for planting other fruit or shade trees at a reasonable cost.

RICHIE'S FRENCH HOTEL, one of the best in the northern portion of the State, is located upon a tract, and settlers will there find a pleasant economical home until they get their houses built.

For full particulars, maps, circulars etc., apply to E. P. NORWOOD, Agent on the land; to C. E. CHUBBUCK, Agent at Colton, San Bernardino County; or to the

ADVERTISERS

WILL FIND THE LIST OF 70 PAPERS, GENERALLY known as "Patent Outlets," one of the cheapest and best means of reaching the people in all parts of the Pacific Coast. On the aggregate these papers are read by a quarter of a million people, and our advertisements are placed near well selected reading matter. As one side of these papers is printed in San Francisco, only one cent is required in illustrated advertisements, when it would require 70 to send the order direct to the publisher of each paper. An advertisement occupying one square (10 lines a page) will be inserted one time in the entire list for $7—only 10 cents per paper.

An ordinary circular can be printed in this list, set in the space of one-fourth of a double column, and inserted once for One Dollar per paper. By this method circulars are more likely to be read and preserved, and the cost is not more than one-fourth of what it would be to print and distribute the same number through so many sections. WEDNESDAY - - FEBRUARY 6

California Theatre.

Signor Majeroni appeared to a much larger audience last evening, and, if it were possible, improved upon the rendering of his great character. The audience were enthusiastic in their admiration of the performance, and the Signor may be congratulated upon the success he has thus early achieved. "The Old Corporal" again to-night.

Baldwin's Theatre.

A better audience was present last evening, and the performance passed off much smoother than on the previous night. The actors were more familiar with their parts, the orchestration more complete, the chorus better drilled, and the mounting of the piece improved upon. It looks as though the season would be a successful one.

Bush Street Theatre.

The stream of humanity that pours into this popular theatre every night must assist materially in decimating the domestic circle for the time being. Manager Locke has certainly struck a bonanza in this engagement.

The Fountain.

A glance at the programme in another column will convince lovers of genuine music of the excellence of the entertainments given nightly at this popular resort. A visit to the Fountain, and a moderate indulgence in the refreshments offered by mine host Casimir, is of infinite benefit to any one.

Herold Matinee.

At the Metropolitan Temple, Fifth street, near Market, the third grand orchestral matinee will be given this afternoon, for particulars of which see programme on third page. In the selection of his orchestra, Mr. Herold has shown his acquaintance with the individual capacity of each member, and it is seldom that lovers of music have an opportunity to enjoy so rich a musical treat. Doors open at 2. Concert begins at 3 o'clock sharp.

Pacific Hall.

The concert for the benefit of the widow of the late Mr. William Sauer will take place to-morrow evening. The programme will be found under amusements on third page. A host of talent has volunteered, and in so charitable a cause we trust that the benefit will exceed the most sanguine hopes of the widowed lady.

ONCE in a long while an editor finds a friend that helps him out of a difficulty. An Eastern slave of the lamp plodding his weary way homeward, was overhauled by a knight of the road who demanded his stamps, searching his pockets for personal assets, he discovered a pair of scissors and pulling them out suddenly, the robber took to his heels, calling out as he ran not to stop.

FOOTLIGHT PELLETS.

STRANGE, that in Kearney's speeches, he has not yet said: "In God we trust!"

LEE An Loy has been held in $2,000 bail for boucaulting a wash-house on Thirteenth street.

THIS is the theology of our ministers in Frisco: "We know there's a hell, and yet we don't believe it."

THE market reports say whisky is weak. Police court reports say it is staggeringly strong.

HELLER, the wizard, says he is not coming to Californiagain. The Clipper says he is. Witch is right?

GOTRELL is the name of a barber on Third street. He ought to be able to make it warm for delinquent shavers.

BLUE ribbons are getting so prevalent, that saloon-keepers are looking about for other kinds of business.

DON'T rock back on the rear end of an actresse's pet poodle unless you have an undue quantity of nerve force.

THE steamer George Harley, injured by the late gale, has had eight new iron knees put in her.—Evening Post. Isn't there a little irony in this?

OUR Alaska citizens want to know if the Government is going to sitkamplacently around while the Indians lift the hair of the voters, and burn all the Government buildings in that precinct.

THE report of an earthquake shock last night was founded upon the fact that Charley Bishop, the comedian, stepped upon a fresh hiscuit as he was coming down stairs.

THE difference between the Kearney labor controversy and a sleeping husband is, that one is war to the knife, and the other is snore to the wife. Somebody give us a hard one.

THE water continues to pour in upon Sacramento. Let us hope that the town will be completely submerged. That's where the Legislature is in session at present.

TITLES to land must be exceedingly many, judging from the number of suits continually in court to quiet them. We think titles, as a general thing, are an abused community.

THEATRICAL GOSSIP, Etc.

MISS KATIE LEWIS makes a natty sailor boy—in her pictures anyhow.

THE theatres are filled every evening—with dislocated sneezes.

Who gave "Baby" away? Certain parties propose to give him Fitz if he is caught.

COMMODORE NUTT may be seen upon our streets daily. What's the little fellow up to anyhow?

BILLINGS has at last got hold of something he prides himself upon—"Uncle Tom." Nous verrons.

INK will be used in "Uncle Tom's Cabin" at the Grand. Black Ink. Say, Cully, how's that?

WE were premature in announcing the departure of a portion of the Grand Opera House for the East. They are still here—ah!

A CERTAIN Oregonian's struggle for managerial eminence reminds us of a man feeling up his back for a broken suspender.

CAN'T some enterprising genius organize a good company from our idle talent, and open Emerson's Opera House? We can supply 'em with sensations, from a sublime spectacle to a comic song. To 't gentlemen, to 't.

Tax Captain Jack Combination has returned to the city from a venturesome tour through the rainy counties. None of the actors are sunburned.

"UNCLE JOHN WOODARD" is in town again. John can't play "Claude Melnotte" or "Hamlet" very well but he knows how to run a stage. The profession generally would like to see him installed in one of our leading theatres as stage manager.

THE versatile Annie Pixley will take a new departure in "Uncle Tom's Cabin," next week. She plays Topsy. Imagine that pretty complexion "all daubed over" with burnt cork. Ugh!

REHEARSALS of "Uncle Tom's Cabin" are quite satisfactory, and the colored element show an aptitude in music that would do credit to some Caucasian professionals. The piece is to be mounted in most elegant style.

WE understand Mr. M. B. Curtis has been engaged for low comedy business for the ensuing season at the Grand. Mr. Curtis is a comedian of considerable merit, has power of mimicry unequalled by any other actor in California, and is a painstaking artist. As yet he has not had the opportunity of displaying to any advantage the ability he possesses, but we trust he may have at the Grand. With Annie Pixley and Curtis in the comedy business, we can expect much amusement hereafter at this theatre. They will certainly make what is commonly called "a strong team."

IN spite of the inclement weather the Seventh Anniversary Party of the American Club held at Union Hall Monday evening, was one of the most enjoyable and successful events in the history of the society. The members of the club were unsparing in their efforts to minister to the comfort and happiness of their guests, and their success was apparent in the manner every one present seemed to enjoy themselves. A large delegation of our Sacramento legislators were present. The President of the club being an Hon. member of the present Legislature. A programme of twenty-two dances was presented to each participant. It was an elegant specimen of typographic art, the cover being embellished with title and monogram of American Club printed in gold and tint. A few verses of welcome preceded the order of dances, and a farewell effusion followed good night.

Our Bloomington Letter.

BLOOMINGTON, ILL., Jan. 29, 1878.

EDITOR FOOTLIGHT:—Pleasure seekers are being very highly entertained at present. Every hall is filled nightly which added to home entertainments, give society a new impetus.

On Thursday, 24th, J. K. Emmet, as "Fritz," performed to a very fine audience in Durley Hall. It is seldom that an actor is greeted here with as select a house as Mr. Emmet received. His route is as follows: Springfield 25; Decatur, 26; Lafayette, Ind., 28; Logansport, 29; Fort Wayne, 30; Detroit, Michigan, 31, February 1st and 2d.

At the same time in Shroder's Opera House, Lotta, as "Topsy," to a crowded house; route as follows: Pekin, Ill., 25; Peoria, 26; Galesburg, 28 and 29; Rock Island, 31; Davenport, February 1st and 2d; Clinton, Dubuque, La Crosse, Winona, Red Wing and St. Paul.

Josh Billings lectured last evening in Durley Hall, on "Beauty and the Beast." The audience was fair but noisy. Lecture simply a retort of almanac jokes and anecdotes worn out years ago.

Miss Frederika Perry, of Chicago, lectures on "Law and its Functions," this evening in Durley Hall.

Buffalo Bill Company, in Shroder's Opera House, 30th. The indications are that he will have an immense house; route—Terre Haute, Ind., February 2d; Evansville, 4th; Louisville, Ky., 8th and 9th.

Hon. George Windling, of Shelbyville, Ill., delivers an answer to Robert Ingersoll in Durley Hall, 31st. In April '76, he delivered the address on the anniversary of Odd Fellowship, before the State Convention assembled here. At that time he won the deserved reputation of having delivered the most eloquent address ever listened to by a Bloomington audience.

February 2d, Wendell Phillips delivers an oration on "The Life and Character of Charles Sumner." He comes under the auspices of the Munsellian Literary Society of the Illinois Wesleyan University.

The presents of Mrs. Mary Bell, married on the 24th in this city, aggregated many thousand dollars. Yours, NEMO, Jr.

THE Societe Culinaire held their first annual supper and ball at Union Hall last night. Any present who previously were in doubt about cooking being one of the fine arts, had their scepticism completely dispelled on beholding the entrees served up in endless variety and design, by the society's kitchen artist.

AS Mr. Charley Backus, of San Francisco burnt cork memory, was leaving a railroad station in Maine some time ago, en route to New York, he noticed standing on the platform and watching the train moving off, a tall, raw boned down-easter, with hands in his pockets and mouth open. Backus, ever on the alert for fun, shook his fist at the countryman and yelled to him that he had been hunting all over town to find him, and that he only wished the train would stop so that he could get off and lick him. The train moved on at an increased speed and left the surprised countryman staring after it; but imagine the horror of Backus when the cars came to a stop a few hundred yards from the depot, and were backed into it again, and he noticed the granger jump aboard, and heard him inquire where that fellow with the big mouth was that wanted to lick him. Charley, by a judicious method of dodging, managed to steer clear of his wrathful pursuer, and felt at a premium when he saw him jump off the train as it started a second time. He did not attempt a second edition of his joke on any idlers he met by the way.

ERRATUM.—In yesterday's FOOTLIGHT for Wilton read Milton Literary Society.

THOS. E. MORRIS, the man who benefits most by John Brougham's brain-work, has done the least toward helping the old man. Morris, who married Brougham's daughter, at her death acquired the right and title to all royalties that might accrue from the use of Brougham's plays, the old veteran in a desire to show his affection for his child thus bestowing on her and her heirs a means of livelihood forever. Old men's affections take a wrong path sometimes.

- "What is our life but a series of preludes to that unknown song of which death intones the first solemn note. Love forms the lovely morn of every existence, but where is the destiny whose first voluptuous thrills of happiness, are never interrupted by some storm, the fatal blast of which dissipates its bright illusions, whose deadly lightning destroys its altar? What soul is there thus cruelly wounded which after one of these tempests does not seek to bathe its memories in the soft sweet calm of country life? But man scarcely resigns himself to taste of the benefits of that rest, the desire for which has lured him to the bosom of nature, when the trumpet sounds the signal of alarm, he rushes to his post of peril whatever may be the war which summons him to the rank, only to find in the combat the full consciousness of self and the entire possession of his strength."

Is now being surveyed and subdivided into ten, twenty and forty-acre farms, and will be sold at $25 to $30 per acre.

WITH WATER FREE,

one-sixth Cash, balance in one, two, three, four and five years, with interest on deferred payments at eight percent per annum.

LOCATION.

Midway between Pomona and Colton, San Bernardino County, California. Soil unsurpassed in fertility. Climate best in the State—no injurious frosts ever known in the Valley. Water in abundance from San Antonio Creek and Cucamonga Creek, which run through the land. Fifty families already located in the valley, and many orange orchards already set out. The Southern Pacific Railroad, from San Francisco to the Colorado River, runs for about three miles through the rancho.

Artesian wells can be had upon any portion of the land. San Bernardino Valley is the best naturally watered of the State of California. It is worthy of mention, however, that artesian wells are numerous, as the valley is bounded on the northeast and south by high mountains, partly snow-capped the year round, which furnish a large area of water shed; superficial and subterranean water is therefore abundant. The surface streams we have already described, and it now remains to give particulars of the wells. Formerly the artesian wells were only of two-inch bore, and the water was always obtained at a depth of 45 to 150 feet. They are now of larger bore, and water in abundance is obtained at a depth of 100 to 150 feet. On the north side of the Santa Ana River the average depth of artesian wells is 100 feet, while on the south side the average depth is greater.

At an elevation of 100 feet above the level of the valley there is a well which, at a depth of 132 feet, produces sufficient water to drive a turbine wheel.

There are now over 200 flowing artesian wells in San Bernardino Valley, and we are convinced that their number can be increased at the option of the inhabitants not only for irrigation, but also for manufacturing purposes.

Oranges, Lemons, Limes, Peaches, Almonds, Walnuts and all semi-tropical fruits grow abundantly. Arrangements can be made to plant any number of Orange Trees, three to four years old, four to five feet high, seventy trees to the acre, and guarantee them, for $100 per acre; also for planting other fruit or shade trees at a reasonable cost.

Richie's Fresno Hotel, one of the best in the southern portion of the State, is located upon the tract, and settlers will there find a pleasant economical home until they get their houses built.

For full particulars, maps, circulars etc. apply to E. P. NICHOLSON, Agent on the land; to C. E. CHUBBUCK, Agent at Colton, San Bernardino County, or to the

WILL FIND THE LIST OF 70 PAPERS, GENERALLY known as "Patent Outlets," one of the cheapest and best means of reaching the people in all parts of the Pacific Coast. On the aggregate these papers are read by a quarter of a million people, and our advertisements are placed near well selected reading matter. As one side of these papers is printed in San Francisco, only one cut is required in illustrated advertisements, when it would require 70 to send the order direct to the publisher of each paper. An advertisement occupying one square (10 lines space) will be inserted one time in the entire list for $7—only 10 cents per paper.
An ordinary circular can be printed in this list, set in the space of one-fourth of a double column, and inserted once for One Dollar per paper. By this method circulars are more likely to be read and preserved, and the cost is not more than one-fourth of what it would be to print and distribute the same number through so many sections. California Theatre.

Beyond peradventure the Signor Majeroni has stamped himself as a dramatic genius. His faithful portrayal of the "Old Corporal" has met the acceptance of critical theatre-goers, as well as the press, and if he is as successful in his other pieces, his advent at the East will not be unlike Modjeska's. This evening Signora Majeroni will make her first appearance in a new translation entitled "Jealousy, or Mistaken Education."

Baldwin's Theatre.

Manager Lyster has "struck it" with his little opera bouffe company, for it seems to be winning golden opinions from the press and the public. Catherine Lewis has proved herself an artiste of decided merit, while Miss Hattie Moore, Miss Marian Singer, Miss Allie McCabe, and Messrs. Gates, Kinross and Tilla, form a company of much lyric excellence. The season looks as though it would prove a prosperous one.

Bush Street Theatre.

The Female Minstrels continue in the enjoyment of large audiences, and their performances seem to please all tastes. It is diversified and sparkling, and well worth a visit. The same programme this evening.

The Fountain.

The usual musical entertainment will be given at this favorite retreat. See the programme in another column.

Herold Matinee.

The managers of the Herold matinees have reason to be satisfied with the measure of success awarded the present season of concerts. With the exception of a few seats immediately in front of the orchestra, the Metropolitan Temple was comfortable filled yesterday afternoon, and the carriages with liveried servants in front of the entrance on Fifth street indicated the class of the audience. The present condition of the hall does not allow full justice to be done to the excellence of the performance, the lower part of the unfinished organ being covered with a cloth screen, detracting from the acoustic properties of the building. The selection of pieces was made with good judgment, and they were arranged in a manner to bring out to best advantage their relative merits. Wagner's introduction to third act of Lohengrin could not have had a better framework to show its power and force to better advantage, than where it was placed, between a caprice in D minor by Hermann, and a minuet by Bocherini. The opening phrase in Mendelssohn's overture, "Calm Sea and Happy Voyage" was rendered with precision and faultless execution—as a whole there were occasional passages where a want of exact harmony was noticeable. The trio performed by Messrs. Heyman, Widmer and Homcier met with a rapturous encore, the same deserved compliment being given to the minuet, played on strings only, with mutes, which was one of the best selections given. Next matinee on Wednesday, February 13th.

THEATRICAL GOSSIP, Etc.

PAT ROONEY, formerly of Emerson's, this city, is now at the Theatre Comique, New York.

W. O. DALE STEVENS and Linda Jeal, who were connected with Woodward's Gardens for so long a time, are playing with Tony Pastor in New York.

THE KIRALFY TROUPE played to poor houses at Oakland. The local papers say that "San Francisco managers should know it is useless to bring the fag ends of any show to Oakland."

CLARA MORRIS is going to play again at the Broadway, New York. We hope the gentle Clara will be able to stick to it this time. Poor girl—she has had a hard time of it.

CLAY GREENE has not met with much success in producing his plays in the East. Clay, in the matter of play-writing, has been either badly advised, or he has got lots of money—one or 't'other.

WANH NORTON, with his company of "Merry-makers," which left here a few months since, have arrived in China, and were meeting with moderate success. Among the members are Charles Steele, Kirk and Drew; Mrs. Norton, and—we guess that's about all.

THE benefit for the widow of the late William Saner will take place at Pacific Hall this evening. A most attractive programme has been prepared, and in addition to the most renowned Taylor family, a number of eminent professionals have volunteered. We fervently hope the benefit will be a substantial one.

THE profession should take measures toward beautifying the spot where poor Harry Perry lies at Lone Mountain. The tomb erected by his wife (Agnes Perry—now Mrs. J. B. Booth) is standing like a silent sentinel in the grim valley, but the inscription is being gradually obscured by the ravages of time. The grave of Johnny Mack, the minstrel, looks fresh and green, and is still kept in order by the large-hearted Tony Pastor.

WHEN certain young ladies step down from a street car, why do you think it necessary to wriggle and twist, and bob the head like an energetic robin pecking away at a worm in the ground, and give the neck a succession of swan-like crannings, and take little nervous clutches at the dress folds, and spasmodic feels at the hat and back hair as they step over the road with a jerky hop-skip and jumpy motion, for all the world like an intoxicated corkscrew.

It is needless to say this is only one man's opinion. We'll bet a swallow-tail coat that it will never reach her head, but that it will work its way out between the fourth and fifth ribs in the shape of a ten-penny nail. Generally the case.

DR. ELIZABETH J. FRENCH is giving a course of parlor lectures to ladies at Union Square Baptist Church. The next is advertised for Friday at 3 P. M. Subject: "The Respiratory System—How to Breathe, and How to Avoid Consumption."

Professional Photographs.

THE St. Louis Post says the demand for pictures of actors, actresses and celebrated characters of various kinds, has been frequently remarked, and it is well known that immense sums of money are made by photographers who are fortunate enough to secure the negatives of these men and women. Their pictures are sold by the thousand.

MARIE BRANSCOMBE holds her position at the head of the list, as she died in 1876. There are now over 250 different styles of her offered for sale, and the demand for her beautiful face is on the increase.

NEXT to Branscombe, Mary Anderson is most in demand. She has just been photographed by Mori in fifty different styles, among which may be mentioned "Parthenia," in "Ingomar," a beautiful picture and a favorite one with her admirers, as the character is with her. "Ophelia" is a fancy sketch, as she has never acted that part. "Juliet" may be had in every conceivable position and style. She has also been taken by Warren, of Boston, as "Lady Macbeth," in six or seven positions; and one or two in street dress. Her pictures sell by the thousands.

Among those of the leading actors most in demand, John McCullough may be first named. Mori has made three very good pictures of him lately in civilian dress, while Kocher, of Chicago, has taken some very fine ones in character—as "Virginius" and "Spartacus." The young ladies all rave over John and buy his pictures.

THE classic features of Edwin Booth are most faithfully taken by the San Francisco photographers, Messrs. Bradley & Rulofsou, who claim the air of their tute to be purer and clearer and better adapted for the photographic art than that of the Eastern States. The only pictures made by them of him are taken in street dress, while those made by Sarony and Rockwood, of New York, represent him in all his leading characters, as "Hamlet," "Iago," the "Apostate" and "Richard." The demand for them is on the increase.

MARIE GRANGER, who ranks as one of the most beautiful women on the New York stage, is a great favorite with collectors of celebrities. She has lately been photographed in many new styles—as the coy and bashful "Rosalind," the loving "Juliet" in the balcony scene, etc., the "Egyptian Maiden," and many other styles.

Kate Gerald ranks as one of the new beauties. She was one of the cast in the "Two Orphans" on the night of the Brooklyn Theatre disaster in 1876, since which time she has been married to George Fawcett Rowe, the English comedian, and has not been on the stage for some time. She is a beauty of the blonde type, with very regular features, which are considered as the acme of female beauty.

Minnie Palmer, of the New York stage, is very petite, and the reflection photos, which are of a unique style and made to represent water by means of looking glasses, are very much sought after, as are the window pictures portraying her looking out from a window embowered in roses and vines, which form a frame encircling her girlish face.

Among the new photos which are having a large sale in the Eastern cities are those of the second prima donna of the Kellogg troupe, Marie Raze, who has been but a short time in this country. She is taken in many positions and characters. Rose Eyttinge is considered one of the finest looking women on the stage, of massive proportions, and makes a creditable photo. Lotta makes a pretty picture, and has been taken in her own original character as "Musette" in ten or twelve positions, the most taking of which is one seated on the stump of a tree with a letter in her hand. The pictures of the "Murchioness" and other characters are also very saleable.

AMERICAN artists are gathering laurels from all the chief picture exhibitions of Europe, and are now well represented in the Royal Academy and Salon displays. Miss Rose F. Peckham, daughter of Dr. Peckham, of Providence, R. I., one of the rising members of that band which studied art for art's sake, is gradually building up a reputation. One of her paintings was recently selected as a prize by the commissioners of the Amiens Exhibition, and two of her works, now displayed at the Dudley Gallery, are receiving favorable notice from English critics. Quite a chef-d'œuvre in its way is her portrait of Mr. John H. Ingram, the English editor of Poe's works, and about to be exhibited in London.—St. Louis Herald.

THE CELEBRATED Cucamonga Rancho,

CONTAINING 13,000 ACRES.

Is now being surveyed and subdivided into ten, twenty and forty acre farms, and will be sold at $25 to $30 per acre.

WITH WATER FREE,

one-sixth Cash, balance in one, two, three, four and five years, with interest on deferred payments at eight per cent. per annum.

LOCATION.

Midway between Pomona and Colton, San Bernardino County, California. Soil unsurpassed in fertility. Climate best in the State—no injurious frosts ever known in the Valley. Water in abundance from San Antonio Creek and Cucamonga Creek, which run through the land. Fifty families already located in the valley, and many orange orchards already set out. The Southern Pacific Railroad, from San Francisco to the Colorado River, runs for about three miles through the tract.

Artesian wells can be had upon any portion of the land. San Bernardino Valley is the best naturally watered of the State of California. It is worthy of mention, however, that artesian wells are numerous, as the valley is bounded on the northeast and south by high mountains, partly snow-capped the year round, which furnish a large area of water shed; superficial and subterranean water is therefore abundant. The surface streams we have already described, and it now remains to give particulars of the wells. Formerly the artesian wells were only of two-inch bore, and the water was always obtained at a depth of 45 to 150 feet. They are now of larger bore, and water in abundance is obtained at a depth of 100 to 150 feet. On the north side of the Santa Ana River the average depth of artesian wells is 100 feet, while on the south side the average depth is greater.

At an elevation of 100 feet above the level of the valley there is a well which, at a depth of 133 feet, produces sufficient water to drive a turbine wheel.

There are now over 200 flowing artesian wells in San Bernardino Valley, and we are convinced that their number can be increased at the option of the inhabitants not only for irrigation, but also for manufacturing purposes.

Oranges, Lemons, Limes, Figs, Olives, Almonds, Walnuts and all semi-tropical fruits grow abundantly. Arrangements can be made to plant any number of Orange Trees, three to four years old, four to five feet high, seventy trees to the acre, and guarantee them, for $100 per acre; also for planting other fruit or shade trees at a reasonable cost.

RICKE'S FRENCH HOTEL, one of the best in the southern portion of the State, is located upon the tract, and settlers will there find a pleasant economical home until they get their houses built.

For full particulars, maps, circulars etc., apply to E. P. NORWOOD, Agent on the land; to C. E. CHUBBUCK, Agent at Colton, San Bernardino County; or to the

ADVERTISERS

WILL FIND THE LIST OF 70 PAPERS, GENERALLY known as "Patent Outlets," one of the cheapest and best means of reaching the people in all parts of the Pacific Coast. On the aggregate these papers are read by a quarter of a million people, and our advertisements are placed near well selected reading matter. As one able of these papers is printed in San Francisco, only one cent is required in illustrated advertisements, when it would require 70 to send the order direct to the publisher of each paper. An advertisement occupying one square (10 lines agate) will be inserted one time in the entire list for $7—only 10 cents per paper.

An ordinary circular can be printed in this list, set in the space of one-fourth of a double column, and inserted once for One Dollar per paper. By this method circulars are more likely to be read and preserved, and the cost is not more than one-fourth of what it would be to print and distribute the same number through so many sections. California Theater.

There was a decided improvement in the audience last evening, and the popularity of Signor Majeroni increases with each appearance. "Jealousy, or Mistaken Education," a play possessing strong points of interest, was produced last evening, introducing Madame Majeroni, whose perfect knowledge of the English language and thorough acquaintance with the stage, gave her a prestige which stamped her at once as an actress of much merit. The twin are well matched, and the evidences of approval last evening of their fine acting bespeaks a successful future. To-night "Jealousy," which is a most interesting play, will be repeated.

Baldwin's Theater.

A good audience was present last evening, and the fourth representation of "La Fille de Mme. Angot" went off with much eclat. It will be repeated to-night. "Girofle-Girofla" is in active rehearsal.

Bush Street Theater.

The audiences continue large at this popular place of amusement, and the programme is entertaining and diverting. On Monday evening next, the popular burlesque of "Ixion" will be produced.

The Fountain.

For an evening's recreation, no better or more respectable resort can be found in the city. The music, which is a decided feature, entertains large audiences each night.

THEATRICAL GOSSIP, ETC.

THE Mail is trying hard to get up a sensation. It now threatens to publish the names of all the married men who attend the Bush Street Theatre on Saturday evening. Don't be alarmed, gentlemen; it will never be known if it does.

Mrs. Drs. FRENCH lectures this afternoon at the Union Square Baptist church, on the heart, arteries, veins, digestive organs, etc., etc. In fact, she's going to take us all to pieces.

Is the "Deluge," shortly to be produced at the California, we hear that Mestayer and Bishop have a swimming match. They start from Long Bridge and swim to Mt. Ararat. Good!

FOOTLIGHT PELLETS.

Will that California street railroad ever get into operation?

MR. M. B. CURTIS is having a sensational drama written for him, in which his well-known specialties will be introduced.

JAKE CASEBOLT, the lovely scion of an autocratic house, has been appointed "chief spotter" on the Sutter street cars.

A GIRL was born at North Beach on Tuesday last with seven fingers on her right hand. Won't she knock smither-sens out of the piano when she gets a little music?

COLLECTORS nowadays will knock at your door a full hour to collect twenty-five cents. Times is hard.

WE would like to see that promised explanation from Chief Kirkpatrick about the escape of Duncan and Le Warne.

UP to last night we have had just 18.77 inches of rain. This is pretty good for 1877—although 1878 had a little hand in it.

A YOUNG playwright, of this city is writing a drama with the peculiar title of "The Locomotive." It ought to run well, anyhow.

YOU can't always tell a man's character by the way he bows. There are times when a tight shirt-collar will knock the politest bow all to thunder.

WHEN a girl gets mad, and leaves her fellow's knee, thinks better of it, and goes back again—is that what is called a relaps?

A FEW weeks ago they lingered for hours on the front stoop. Now—nights, he button up his coat collar, hoists his umbrella, smacks once or twice, and trots off to some billiard saloon.

THE company recently organized in this city for Piper's Opera House, Virginia, are circumnavigating the sage-brush region, while the Union Square Company give the Comstockers a taste of their quality at Piper's.

OUR little namesake in Virginia has lately been spluttering Piper's Opera House all over with gall-juice. The last number, however, is as sugary as a wedding-cake. Can it be that John has "scene" it? Oh, fie, Tady.

A WOMAN entered the real estate office of C. C. Campbell & Co., yesterday, and thus unbowed herself: "I say, Mister, I want to get a house with five rooms, all by itself, for eight dollars a month, with modern conveniences, between Market and Bush and Powell and Mintgimery—af ye please. Ye see—me husband is a poor man, and me son, he works for Mister McHennessy, and—"

"Here, Sam, show this lady that house of two rooms on Devisadero street for eighty-five dollars!" interrupts the bland clerk.

A few Hibernian anathemas, and all was quiet.

SOLILOQUY of Mr. Smitte who has been twenty-four hours in business, and during that time successively interviewed by agents of all the daily, weekly, semi-weekly, tri-weekly, monthly, bi-monthly, quarterly, semi-annual, and annual publications, directories, guide-books, advertising-vans, dead-walls, railroad-depots, street-cars, board-fences, patent-out-sides and other advertising mediums of San Francisco: "Mien Gott, I'll be in Stockton soon if those fellows don't let me alone; I wonder if I can move into a street where they can't find me. I'll get my friend Tom Keene to introduce a Bill compelling advertising solicitors to wear a badge, and making it lawful to kill them on sight."

THE court opened on the case of Olive Jane Davis, sometimes called "The Tender Violet of the West." The poor, pale flower came out with a limp, bowed as coldly as if she had never appeared in court before, and inquired:

"How long will it take me to reach Saginaw?"

"Sixty-one days," was the prompt reply of His Honor.

"How!" she inquired after awhile.

"Easiest thing in the world to figure on, Miss Davis. Let sixty days in the House of Correction stand for the dividend, and a ride up there in the canary-colored barouche for the divisor. Sixty plus one equals—"

"Oh, go long!" she interrupted. "I don't deny that I was a bit intoxicated last night, but I've got my trunk packed for Saginaw, have written that I will be there to-day, and friends will be at the depot to meet me."

"They will meet, but they will miss thee," was his soft answer. Some of your friends will unpack your trunk, tenderly shake out each garment, and they will sigh as they think of you up there weaving the cane. No talking back, now, Miss Davis, hnt walk in and take a seat." Free Press.

"THE Bible tells you not to call a man a fool. But then if he really is one what are you to do, since the Bible enjoins you to tell the truth?" Perhaps the inspired writer intended that the truth should be merely indicated in some parliamentary manner—as, for instance, saying that the unfortunate person is a sort of Stanley Matthews.—Worcester Press.

SACRAMENTO LETTER.

SACRAMENTO, February 5, 1878.

EDITOR FOOTLIGHT:—On Saturday evening last, the Union Square Theatre Company closed the most successful and satisfactory engagement ever played in Sacramento. The class and character of the plays presented, together with the superior excellence of the acting throughout, (the company being so evenly balanced), brought out the bon-ton of society, whose repeated attendance every evening testified to their appreciation, and proved the fact that a bona-fide first-class entertainment can and will fill our theatre repeatedly. The company left on Sunday, and opened last evening in Piper's Opera House at Virginia city, from whence they go to Salt Lake, thence to Omaha where they may possibly play a short engagement. They then open in St. Louis in the new play "The Celebrated Case." Beyond this their future movements so far as was then known were uncertain.

Upon the same train which took away this excellent company, the Adah Richmond Burlesque Company arrived, and were domiciled in the same quarters, at the Orleans Hotel, made vacant by the former. They appeared last evening in "Kenilworth's" to a fair audience. The rapid change from the high dramatic standard of "The Danicheffs" to the light, airy, nonsensical, yet pleasing "Kenilworth," was very marked. The Adah Richmond Company deserve well of whatever community they may visit. They are not as strong, nor do they reach the high musical and vocal standard of Opera Bouffe Companies I could mention, yet the character of their pieces being confined to ridiculous burlesque, aiming only to provoke mirth, and rendered as they are in a smooth, easy manner, with voices suiting the action and requirements of the scene, blending well in harmony, their entertainment is altogether praiseworthy and deserving of a liberal patronage. Adah Richmond and Miss Julia Sheldon on the female, and Gus Bruno, Mose W. Fisk and W. P. Sheldon on the male side of the company compose the life, action, and whole interest of the entertainment, except it be the vocalism of Miss Parker and duets of the Newman sisters. Miss Julia Sheldon evinces that peculiar talent for burlesque which, if properly cultivated and aided by perseverance, will result in her attaining to an enviable position in her line. Gus Bruno has taken the right step in giving up minstrelsy (the brightest days of which are passed and adopting burlesque, a line for which he is specially fitted. "Kenilworth" will be repeated to-night, and "Chow Chow" is announced for to-morrow.

Edwin F. Thorne and wife registered at the Orleans Hotel Monday evening, and left on the overland train for New York this afternoon.

A. F. Bailey, advance agent for the Black Crook Company, registered at the same time and place, and left to-day to join the company at Oakland.

Mark Thall, also agent for the same, passed here yesterday en route for Marysville, and will return to Sacramento on Thursday next to complete arrangements for the appearance of the Black Crook Company at the Metropolitan Theater on Monday next.

Mr. W. Penn Evans, the gentlemanly agent and business manager for Miss Kate Lawrence, the famous female pedestrian, is in town arranging for this deserving lady's appearance here in the near future.

A. S. Pennoyer, advance agent for the Adah Richmond Company left yesterday for Grass Valley, Nevada City, Reno, Carson, Virginia City, etc., where the company will next appear in due order.

VIATOR.

UPON the walls of a workshop in Philadelphia, Pa., hang a number of old theatre bills, framed, which the owner highly prizes as relics of the past. On the window-ledge near by stands a huge earthen pot filled with English ivy of the species known as the Kenilworth. Portions of the ivy have found their way back of one of the frames which contains a programme of the performance of the late Charlotte Cushman at the Academy of Music, Philadelphia, Pa., December 24, 1860, under the management of the late William Wheatley and John S. Clarke. The ivy has worked its way between the glass and the bill, through crevices at the back, and traverses the glass in a beautiful manner. It twines around the name of Chautott, Cushman, and spreads itself in a wild suggestive way among the names of the various characters in the play of Guy Maunier, crossing that of the wierd old hag Meg Merrilies. The whole forms a pretty tribute to the memory of the great artist.—N. Y. Clipper.

SEVERAL prominent physicians of New York declare that cigarette smoking is very injurious. Nothing could be better for the cigarette trade than this news. Once let it be thought that there is no harm in the cigarette, and its reign would be as ephemeral as that of the late lamented helmet hat.—Cour. Jour. We agree with the a. p. p. of n. y. A cigar smoked may be innocent; but a cigar-eat is fatal.—Phil. Bulletin.

Mrs. JENNY LEE, the clever young English impersonator of "Poor Jo," had a great deal of trouble in getting the broom she uses in the play. She went about London streets trying to bargain with the crossing-sweepers for a well-worn broom; but while she could get dozens of comparatively new brooms, not an old one would the sweepers part with. They knew the trade value of a worn broom. After many failures, she espied a wretched little Arab presiding over a dirty crossing with a very old broom near Westminster. She astonished the urchin by offering him five shillings for his stump of a broom. With an incredulous grin, the Arab said: "You don't mean it?" Said the lady: "Don't I, though; here's the money;" and, after some amusing parley, she got possession of the dramatic "property"—or, rather, the boy promised to bring it to her residence for the five shillings. Miss Lee got the broom, and prizes it greatly; she has used it on the stage countless times as "Poor Jo."

A TRAMP walked into a Third street bank yesterday, and stepping up to the counter, said, "May I ask you a question, sir?" "Yes, but be quick about it," replied the clerk. "I want to know if all the greenbacks have been retired from circulation?" said the tramp, with a very anxious air. "Oh, no," replied the clerk, "there are about 450 millions of them yet." "Thanks, thanks," said the man, with visible emotion. "You take a load off my mind. It is so long since I have seen one that I was afraid they had all been retired," and then he slowly retired himself.—Incinnati Saturday Night.

LOCATION.

Midway between Pomona and Colton, San Bernardino County, California. Soil unsurpassed in fertility. Climate best in the State—no injurious frosts ever known in the Valley. Water in abundance from San Antonio Creek and Cucamonga Creek, which run through the land. Fifty families already located in the valley, and many orange orchards already set out. The Southern Pacific Railroad, from San Francisco to the Colorado River, runs for about three miles through the tract.

Artesian wells can be had upon any portion of the land. San Bernardino Valley is the best naturally watered of the State of California. It is worthy of mention, however, that artesian wells are numerous, as the valley is bounded on the northeast and south by high mountains, partly snow-capped the year round, which furnish a large area of water shed; superficial and subterranean water is therefore abundant. The surface streams we have already described, and it now remains to give particulars of the wells. Formerly the artesian wells were only of two-inch bore, and the water was always obtained at a depth of 45 to 150 feet. They are now of larger bore, and water in abundance is obtained at a depth of 100 to 150 feet. On the north side of the Santa Ana River the average depth of artesian wells is 100 feet, while on the south side the average depth is greater.

At an elevation of 100 feet above the level of the valley there is a well which, at a depth of 132 feet, produces sufficient water to drive a turbine wheel.

There are now over 200 flowing artesian wells in San Bernardino Valley, and we are convinced that their number can be increased at the option of the inhabitants, not only for irrigation, but also for manufacturing purposes.

Oranges, Lemons, Limes, Figs, Olives, Almonds, Walnuts and all semi-tropical fruits grow abundantly. Arrangements can be made to plant any number of Orange Trees, three to four years old, four to five feet high, seventy trees to the acre, and guarantee them, for $100 per acre; also for planting other fruit or shade trees at a reasonable cost.

Stiche's French Hotel, one of the best in the southern portion of the State, is located upon the tract, and settlers will there find a pleasant economical home until they get their houses built.

ADVERTISERS

WILL FIND THE LIST OF 70 PAPERS, GENERALLY known as "Patent Outlets," one of the cheapest and best means of reaching the people in all parts of the Pacific Coast. On the aggregate these papers are read by a quarter of a million people, and our advertisements are placed near well selected reading matter. As one side of these papers is printed in San Francisco, only one cut is required in illustrated advertisements, when it would require 70 to send the order direct to the publisher of each paper. An advertisement occupying one square (10 lines agate) will be inserted one time in the entire list for $7—only 10 cents per paper.

An ordinary circular can be printed in this list, as in the space of one-fourth of a double column, and inserted once for One Dollar per paper. By this method circulars are more likely to be read and preserved, and the cost is not more than one-fourth of what it would be to print and distribute the same number through so many sections. California Theater.

We can only repeat the encomiums that are daily showered upon the brilliant performances of Signor Majeroni, and suggest to those who have not availed themselves of the opportunity of witnessing him and his talented wife in their new plays, that they have, in the strict sense of the word, lost a treat. The next is the last week of their engagement, and we trust to see their artistic efforts rewarded by full and appreciative audiences. This afternoon and evening "Jealousy" will be repeated.

Grand Opera House.

"UNCLE TOM'S CABIN" will be produced this afternoon and evening. For cast of characters see programme. We anticipate that this will be one of Mr. Kennedy's greatest successes—no expense or exertion having been spared to place this drama before the public on a scale of unparalleled splendor—nous verrons.

Baldwin's Theater.

Good audiences are the order here, and Catherine Lewis and her lyric conditors are winning favorable opinions from the press and the public. "Girofle-Girofla" on Monday next.

Bush Street Theater.

The Female Minstrels still hold the boards at this theater, and though many have decried the performance as not altogether within the bounds of decency, still the public continue to flock there. The usual matinee this afternoon.

The Fountain.

This place continues in the enjoyment of uninterrupted prosperity. Casimir, the genial host, is alive to the exigencies of increasing business, and makes his myriads of patrons at home.

THEATRICAL GOSSIP, ETC.

Miss ELLA STOCKTON, a California girl, has just achieved an artistic success in Washington in the play of "Madcap Violet," dramatized by herself. The papers there extol her highly, and call her an "actress of brilliant power and with a grand future." And thus do we continue to furnish the dramatic talent of the country.

Miss NELLIE HOLBROOK, who was cast for the part of Eliza, in "Uncle Tom's Cabin," at the Grand, has been compelled to relinquish the part on account of sickness. This is to be regretted, as Miss H. has many friends in this city who were pleased to hear of her present opportunity for dramatic advancement.

"UNCLE TOM'S CABIN" will doubtless be the rage for awhile.

As we go to press, the crowds are pouring in at the matinee of Uncle Tom's Cabin" at the Grand.

FOOTLIGHT PELLETS.

Show us the man who hasn't got a cold, and he'll do to exhibit.

It's hard to tell whether this winter is next spring or last fall.

What can be cleaner than the holes in an average restaurant napkin?

BEGGARS live well in this city—they get tongue at almost every house.

WHERE is the woman who never thought her gas-bill too high?

SUSAN B. ANTHONY will make a capital mother-in-law.

"THE Deluge" to be produced at the California, is not exactly in the Jules Verne-acular.

ONE umbrella to 400 people on Kearny street these damp days don't argue well for the prosperity of the city.

WEATHER like the present gives forehead curls clearly to understand that they were not created exclusively for ornament.

WE haven't heard of a deaf man walking on the Oakland railroad for some months. Where are they all?

AIMEE is going to Brazil, and Mrs. Pedro wants Dom to pack up and go traveling again.

THOSE of Brigham's widows who have not remarried, although old, are afraid they will die Young.

GEORGE ELLIOT's new novel is entitled "The Lifted Veil." It is probably a thin, transparent sort of story.

TIMES are pretty hard, we admit; but the sleeve-button still holds its own as to size.

NOTHING takes the sublimity from a kiss quicker than to have your girl cough just as you are about to get ahold of it.

WE now awake to a happy thought that in a short time sin will not be so prevalent—Lent commencing March 6th.

THE demand for furnished houses is unprecedentedly great at present. People seem too poor to own their furniture—yet their own grocers and butchers.

A SCHEME is on foot for improving the mouth of the Mississippi. Can't somebody get up a scheme for the improvement of Kearney's mouth?

CAN'T somebody establish a five-cent eating house in this city? We are tired of seeing perambulating skeletons on the streets.

EMPEROR NORTON is a great man! He has an invention to prevent a horse from switching his tail over the lines. That's genius, that is, and lets help feed the flame.

ONE can manifest delight in many ways. But nobody can sing the "Sweet Bye and Bye" after jumping out of bed ten or fifteen times in a night to give a coughing babe paretoric.

WHEN you see an actor running through one or two hundred dollars on a salary of $30 per week, it is safe to conclude that he gets his check at a brass foundry for about one cent a pound.

ANNIE LOUISE CARY sang ten years ago in a New York town for $25, while the other evening she received $350 in the same place. Still, very, very many of us could not get even the $25 for singing.

"How shall we utilize the Chinese?" solicitously inquires a contemporary. They might be sawed and split and saturated with oil, for kindlings, or could be peeled, and the covering made into earmuffs for indigent Esquimaux.

Clipperings.

From the latest N. Y. Clipper we extract the following items of interest:

Mme. Helena Modjeska returns to Poland in January, 1879.

John Brougham, as soon as rheumatism permits, will become a member of the company at Wallace's Theatre.

The illness that a few months ago was thought would prove fatal to Carlotta Patti has been baffled by a surgical operation.

Charles Mathews pooh-poohs the rumor that he is about to retire from the stage. As used to be said of Chief-justice Roger B. Taney, he may die, but he will never resign.

While ex-President Grant was in Malta recently, "The Star-Spangled Banner" was sung by the American prima-donna Mlle. Giulia Valda, at the close of the first act of "Lucia." The Duke and Duchess of Edinburgh occupied the Governor's box, while in that of the Chief Secretary, Sir Victor Houlton, sat Grant and his family.

We have cheering news for the profession, who travel by rail. M. Gantix has estimated that but one man is killed in railroad traveling to every 1,000,000 journeys that are made in that way; and consequently that it would take a man ten hours a day for 7,439 years to get killed even though the speed were forty miles an hour. This is certainly assuring to those actors who travel on the rail. But how about that vast number who oftentimes have to travel alongside of it?

Could anything be more natural than that Charley Thorne should wish his salary raised? And if he could get—but hold! We will verify our argument:

IN A FITTING

Of all redundant matter shorn.

The question is a nutshell case:

As every rope has got its thorn,

Why should a Thorne not have his thorn?

Piper's New Opera House, Virginia city, Nev., is being furnished with scenery from the brush of W. T. Porter. This veteran artist states that once, when he painted the Alpine glaciers in "No Thoroughfare," the temperature in the dress-circle fell ten degrees as soon as the curtain was raised. We remember the circumstance almost as clearly as many people recall things that never happened. The actor who, as "Master George," walked up the glacier has frost-bitten feet to-day, and the actor who played "Obenreizer" has never recovered from the effects of the brandy taken to warm the cockles of a heart frozen stiff when he rolled down Porter's glacier.

It is related that John McCullough, on a return to San Francisco from an extended starring tour, appeared at his own theatre to an immense audience. He was greeted with an enthusiastic reception, and bade welcome in the heartiest and most demonstrative manner, although his personal identity was almost lost in the "make-up" for the character he was about to interpret. In fact, there was a moment after his first entrance that the audience hesitated till the leader struck up the inspiring strains of "Johnny, I Scarcely Knew You!" Then, in the classic language of the gallery, "the house did come down."

Modjeska in Philadelphia.

The Philadelphia Bulletin gives a very critical analysis of Modjeska's "Canille," and pays this handsome tribute to the California actress—for such we feel proud to call her:

Madame Modjeska is fully equipped with the qualities necessary for reaching histrionic greatness. She has a pure, sweet voice, full of agreeable modulations and bearing the faint flavor of a foreign accent which gives peculiar piquancy to her speech. To speak a written text with perfect intonation is just about one of the most difficult things in the world to do; but this woman makes a singularly close approach to it. The exact shade of emphasis, the nicest graduation of inflection, the most exquisite delicacy of feeling, the precise expression of thought, are characteristics of her speech. Whether she was gaily bidding adieu to a visitor or giving voice to the wildest passion, she clothed her language with a sensibility of which the mere words convey no idea whatever to the ordinary mind. This seems to the uncritical observer perfect nature; but it is really perfect art. The actress is equally gifted in other directions. Her face is marvelously mobile and she uses it with such skill that every passing whim and gusty passion is depicted there with unmistakable clearness. And her postures are not less eloquent. She uses her body with so much grace and so much truth to the feeling that possesses her, that she might play in pantomime and yet interpret with clearness and accuracy the impulses of her mind. We do not recall a player who has greater elegance of manner or a more thorough comprehension of the fact that the scene upon the stage is a picture which may be marred by a single movement that is in any sense prosaic. It is so rare a thing that an opportunity is offered to indulge in unreserved praise of a dramatic performer, that the duty is peculiarly pleasant when the chance occurs. This woman may fairly be regarded as one of the few great actresses with whom the present generation is acquainted.

ANOTHER HOAX EXPLODED.—The petrified man which was claimed to have been discovered in Colorado and was subsequently brought to this city and placed upon exhibition, it appears, was manufactured to order by George Hull, who made the Cardiff giant. It was baked in a brick-kiln in Elkland, a small town among the hills of Northern Pennsylvania. It was composed of plaster of Paris, ground stone, ground bone and clay. Ox blood and eggs also entered into the composition, so that scientists might discover animal substance in the midst of the petrification, the part of a skull of a man was placed in its head, and other portions of the figure convenient to the saw of the scientist, were provided with appropriate bones. The "goose skin" appearance of the flesh was produced by going over the flesh before baking with steel needles fastened in lead, some 250 gross having been used. It is said that one year was occupied in perfecting and baking the figure. Hull wanted money to plant his giant, and applied to P. T. Barnum, who, it is alleged, sent out George Wells of Bridgeport, Ct., and the giant was shipped to that city as fine machinery in January 1877. A snapping-turtle and a salmon-trout were also baked in order that the giant might not be the only fossil found in the formation where it was to be discovered. In April following the three were shipped to Pueblo, planted, and discovered, according to programme.—Clipper.

The afternoon and evening benefit for John Brougham will net him about $9,000 free of all incumbrance. The total receipts of the two performances, including donations, were $10,300. The expenses are from $1,200 to 1,300, the exact figure is not yet known. The newspapers acted generously, many of them donating their advertising bills, some taking off 50 per cent; only the Herald, which makes $150,000 a year by the theatrical profession, demanding its price of 40 cents a line in full. I am glad in this connection to be able to publish the first complete list of donations made: Joe Jefferson, $100; Lawrence Barrett, $50; W. H. Vanderbilt, $100; John S. Clarke, $100; John E. Owens, $100; Lotta, $100; Mo. Mitchell, $25; a relation, of W. H. Vanderbilt, $25; and Mrs. John Buckland $25. Added to the $9,000 made by his benefit, there will be a further sum to come from a benefit to be given to Mr. John Brougham by Mr. Wallack and Boucicault, next Wednesday week, at Wallack's Theatre. Thus the total will be raised to about $12,000, a goodly sum and one which no one will begrudge this old veteran of the stage and pen.

$10 FOR A GOOD SET OF TEETH.
Such as you pay $15 for elsewhere; Gold Fillings, $2 and upward; Silver Fillings, $1 to $2; Extracting 50 cents; with Gas, $1. 205 Third Street. E. H. SCHULTZE, Successor to DR. O. S. WILSON.

LOCATION.

Midway between Pomona and Colton, San Bernardino County, California. Soil unsurpassed in fertility. Climate best in the State—no injurious frosts ever known in the Valley. Water in abundance from San Antonio Creek and Cucamonga Creek, which run through the land. Fifty families already located in the valley, and many oranges and orchards already set out. The Southern Pacific Railroad, from San Francisco to the Colorado River, runs for about three miles through the tract.

Artesian wells can be had upon any portion of the land. San Bernardino Valley is the best naturally watered of the State of California. It is worthy of mention, however, that artesian wells are numerous, as the valley is bounded on the northeast and south by high mountains, partly snow-capped the year round, which furnish a large area of water shed; superficial and subterranean water is therefore abundant. The surface streams we have already described, and it now remains to give particulars of the wells. Formerly the artesian wells were only of two-inch bore, and the water was always obtained at a depth of 45 to 150 feet. They are now of larger bore, and water in abundance is obtained at a depth of 100 to 150 feet. On the north side of the Santa Ana River the average depth of artesian wells is 100 feet, while on the south side the average depth is greater.

At an elevation of 100 feet above the level of the valley there is a well which, at a depth of 132 feet, produces sufficient water to drive a turbine wheel.

There are now over 200 flowing artesian wells in San Bernardino Valley, and we are convinced that their number can be increased at the option of the inhabitants, not only for irrigation, but also for manufacturing purposes.

Oranges, Lemons, Limes, Figs, Olives, Almonds, Walnuts and all semi-tropical fruits grow abundantly. Arrangements can be made to plant any number of Orange Trees, three to four years old, four to five feet high, seventy trees to the acre, and guarantee them, for $100 per acre; also for planting other fruit or shade trees at a reasonable cost.

Richie's French Hotel, one of the best in the southern portion of the State, is located upon the tract, and settlers will there find a pleasant economical home until they get their houses built.

For full particulars, maps, circulars etc. apply to E. P. NORWOOD, Agent on the land; to C. E. OHLBROCK, Agent at Colton, San Bernardino County; or to the

ADVERTISERS

WILL FIND THE LIST OF 70 PAPERS, GENERALLY known as "Patent Outlets," one of the cheapest and best means of reaching the people in all parts of the Pacific Coast. On the aggregate these papers are read by a quarter of a million people, and our advertisements are placed near well selected reading matter. As one side of these papers is printed in San Francisco, only one cut is required in illustrated advertisements, when it would require 70 to send the order direct to the publisher of each paper. An advertisement occupying one square (10 lines agate) will be inserted one time in the entire list for $7—only 10 cents per paper.

An ordinary circular can be printed in this list, set in the space of one-fourth of a double column, and inserted once for One Dollar per paper. By this method circulars are more likely to be read and preserved, and the cost is not more than one-fourth of what it would be to print and distribute the same number through so many sections. Grand Opera House

The initial representation of the reconstructed version of "Uncle Tom's Cabin" was given at this theater on Saturday afternoon and again in the evening, to what are commonly called "jammed houses." While we cannot commend this version—much of the original text having been expunged for the purpose of giving prestige to the negro novelty—still there is enough of it left to remind us of the painful incidents of the chivalrous times of post-whipping, slave-selling, bowie-knife arguments and negro persecution. The scenery is a credit to Messrs. Witham and Strouse, and vividly depicts the bayous, plantations and other geographical points of interest in the South before the war. The choruses of the colored jubilee singers were admirably arranged by Mr. Widmer, and with the exception of one or two voices, which persistently persisted in keeping ahead of the others, were quite artistically sung. The acting in the piece calls for no particular remark, excepting, perhaps, the Eva of little Zoe Tuttle, and the Topsy of Miss Annie Pixley, albeit with the latter the repeated yelling at inappropriate places somewhat militated against an otherwise truthful representation of the veritable plantation darkey. Miss Pixley's "make-up" was excellent, and she so disguised her voice and person that it is a compliment to say, had it not been by reference to the programme, many would have been unable to recognize her. For versatility, there are few actresses in the United States the equal of this California lady. Mr. M. B. Curtis made a hit as Marks, the lawyer. Mr. Whitecar, as St. Clair, was neither forcible nor elegant, and was inappropriately cast. Billings' Uncle Tom was a mild performance. Harry Courtaine, as Legree, depicted the cruel slave-driver to the life. Miss Nellie Holbrook did her small part of Eliza quite acceptably. Barrows' Phineas Fletcher was painfully overdone. The rest of the characters—notably, the George Harris of Mr. Grismer, Aunt Ophelia of Mrs. Mestayer, and the Marie of Miss Elsie Moore, were favorably rendered. "Uncle Tom's Cabin" (without the cabin) will doubtless run for several weeks.

Bush Street Theater

The Female Minstrels will appear this week in a new first part, and also in the burlesque of "Ixion." Miss Gussie Crayton will give some lightning cartoons of some of our principal citizens. This engagement seems to be a substantial one.

California Theater

To-night the Majeronis will appear in a military drama entitled "Faith and Friendship, or the Two Sergeants," which is strong in dramatic interest, and calculated to show the pre-eminent qualities of the Signor. It is cast to the full strength of the company, and with new and effective scenery and stage effects.

Baldwin's Theater

To-night "Girode-Giroda" will be produced, with Miss Catherine Lewis in the title role. These entertainments appear to be increasing in public interest.

The Fountain

The free concerts given at this elegant concert and refreshment hall, continue to attract large and respectable audiences nightly. Mr. Casimir, the proprietor, deserves the thanks of the music-loving portion of our society, for the liberal manner in which he has given them an opportunity of being acquainted with and enjoying the works of our most popular composers, rendered by a selected orchestra of first-class musicians. The cornet solos of Mr. John Savinier are received with a tempest of applause, and the general programme is selected with good judgment. The Thorlow block elevator, from entrance on Kearny street is in constant use every evening and always at the service of lady visitors with their escorts. The refreshments are served in a style that reminds us of Paris and Vienna. On Sunday the matinee concerts commence at 3 p. m.

THEATRICAL GOSSIP, ETC.

HART AND MORELAND benefit at Emerson's next Sunday evening.

ADAM RICHMOND has done well throughout the interior.

MISS MARY L. YOUNG, leading lady, has arrived in New York from California.

RAYMOND is about to visit Europe with "Col. Sellers."

LEOPOLD LICHTENBERG, a precocious California violinist, is capturing the Eastern people.

FANNY BECKINGHAM commences an engagement to-night at Piper's Opera House, Virginia. Her "boss" plays also.

CAPT. JACK CRAWFORD goes to Oregon to-morrow, under engagement at the Portland Theater. Miss Rena (Mrs. Fred Maeder) accompanies him.

REMOVED that Maguire has made an engagement with McKee Rankin and Kittie Blanchard to play the "Danites" at Baldwin's. We can trace the rumor to no authentic source, however.

A New York paper says that in "A Celebrated Case," Nelson Decker "was manly and soldierly, although he suffered somewhat from nervousness." We know Nelse was quite nervous the morning he left here, but sakes alive! he ought to be over it by this time.

A COMPANY, composed of J. Herne, J. A. H. Leroy, A. C. Sullivan, Mr. and Mrs. LeClair, J. W. Wilks, Misses Ada and Billie Deaves, Jennie Reifarth, Miss Cochran, Murphy and Mack, play at Smith's Opera House, Santa Cruz, to-night, in Herne's inevitable "Rip Van Winkle." We've been pretty well "saturated" with this piece.

"THE EXILES" is in preparation at the California. More than 40,000 persons attended its performance in Boston in one week, including two matinees, and many applicants for admission were turned away. Must be something in it.

THE genial Rieman is about to photograph in a collection the authors of the coast. George has an enterprising spirit, and his name is as indissolubly identified with the profession as is that of Booth, McCullough, or Jefferson.

FRED. G. MAEDER, now in this city, is writing a drama for Frank Frayne. Mr. M. is an author of some note, but of late has devoted his time to acting. He is the author of "Help," which has made a small fortune for Joe Murphy.

As usual, the New York Dramatic News comes to us again this week, its columns teeming with billingsgate and abuse of actors, authors, and everybody in general. About the only redeeming feature it possesses is its San Francisco correspondence, conducted by a gentleman who seems to be posted on matters theatrical on this coast, and possessing a keen, critical discrimination. He tells many plain truths, and does not hesitate to give some hard knocks where they are deserved. We fervently trust he will not be drawn into the vituperative pool in which the conductors of that journal seem to take such delight in wallowing.

THE Call suggests the propriety of the professionals of the city uniting for the purpose of giving a monster benefit to the Poor Fund. The idea is a good one, excepting the selection of the theater. The Grand Opera House would be decidedly preferable, on account of its capacity for accommodating a larger number of people. Or better still. Why could not a benefit be given at both the Grand and the California, each theater giving an attractive but dissimilar programme? Select some afternoon—say Wednesday—which would not interrupt the usual performances at either house. There are many professionals who would be glad to volunteer, and both houses could put forth a leviathan programme, which would no doubt draw crowded audiences. Let Managers Hill and Kennedy get together, superintend the affair, and our word for it, the suffering poor of the city will be vastly benefitted.

"All the Rage" is all the rage at McVicker's, Chicago.

Theatrical Telegram

The following telegram relating to theatrical matters in the East was wired to the city papers yesterday:

NEW YORK, February 9.—The week has been uneventful in theatrical matters. Mr. Schwab's adaptation of "Sidome" was produced at the Fifth Avenue Theater this evening after careful preparation. It met with a flattering reception.

Booth closes his engagement next week. His impersonation of "Richieu" during the week has created a marked impression among theater-goers, and in spite of rival attractions has made his old theater an object of unusual intellectual and artistic interest.

"School" is so successful at Wallack's that seats are sold two weeks in advance.

A "Celebrated Case" at the Union Square promises to rival the popularity of "The Two Orphans."

Clara Morris appears at the Broadway Theater on Monday in "The Governess," a new version of "Jane Eyre."

A new play, the title of which is not yet made known, will be produced at the Park Theater on Wednesday for the purpose of introducing the popular comedian, James Lewis. The subject of the play is kept secret. The author of the play is said to be an old actor.

Maggie Moore and Williamson play an engagement at the Grand Opera House next week. They will be succeeded by George Rignold.

Great preparations are being made at the Eagle Theatre for the production of "Chicago" on Monday. Many sensational elements are promised.

The performance of "Les Huguenots" at the Academy of Music on Monday will not only return to us Mme. Pappolunni, but introduce Charles Adams, the tenor, concerning whom much has been said. Maretzek directs the orchestra.

Rose Eytinge acts Rose Michel at the New Park Theater, Brooklyn, next week. Louise will be played by Carrie Wyatt, formerly an esteemed member of the stock company of the California Theater, San Francisco.

"Peep o' Day," which is put on the stage at Niblo's Garden with remarkable care and excellent taste, has met with marked success during the week.

Female Minstrels

THE CELEBRATED Cucamonga Rancho,

CONTAINING 13,000 ACRES.

Is now being surveyed and subdivided into ten, twenty and forty acre farms, and will be sold at $25 to $30 per acre.

WITH WATER FREE,

one-sixth Cash, balance in one, two, three, four and five years, with interest on deferred payments at eight percent per annum.

LOCATION.

Midway between Pomona and Colton, San Bernardino County, California. Soil unsurpassed in fertility. Climate best in the State—no injurious frosts ever known in the Valley. Water in abundance from San Antonio Creek and Cucamonga Creek, which run through the land. Fifty families already located in the valley, and many orange orchards already set out. The Southern Pacific Railroad, from San Francisco to the Colorado River, runs for about three miles through the tract.

Artesian wells can be had upon any portion of the land. San Bernardino Valley is the best naturally watered of the State of California. It is worthy of mention, however, that artesian wells are numerous, as the valley is bounded on the northeast and south by high mountains, partly snow-capped the year round, which furnish a large area of water shed; superficial and subterranean water is therefore abundant. The surface streams we have already described, and it now remains to give particulars of the wells. Formerly the artesian wells were only of two-inch bore, and the water was always obtained at a depth of 45 to 150 feet. They are now of larger bore, and water in abundance is obtained at a depth of 100 to 150 feet. On the north side of the Santa Ana River the average depth of artesian wells is 100 feet, while on the south side the average depth is greater.

At an elevation of 100 feet above the level of the valley there is a well which, at a depth of 132 feet, produces sufficient water to drive a turbine wheel.

There are now over 200 flowing artesian wells in San Bernardino Valley, and we are convinced that their number can be increased at the option of the inhabitants not only for irrigation, but also for manufacturing purposes.

Oranges, Lemons, Limes, Figs, Olives, Almonds, Walnuts and all semi-tropical fruits grow abundantly. Arrangements can be made to plant any number of Orange Trees, three to four years old, four to five feet high, seventy trees to the acre, and guarantee them, for $100 per acre, also for planting other fruit or shade trees at a reasonable cost.

Rice's French Hotel, one of the best in the southern portion of the State, is located upon the tract, and settlers will there find a pleasant economical home until they get their houses built.

For full particulars, maps, circulars etc. apply to E. P. NORWOOD, Agent on the land, to C. E. CHUBBUCK, Agent at Colton, San Bernardino County; or to the

ADVERTISERS

WILL FIND THE LIST OF 70 PAPERS, GENERALLY known as "Patent Outside," one of the cheapest and best means of reaching the people in all parts of the Pacific Coast. In the aggregate these papers are read by a quarter of a million people, and our advertisements are placed near well selected reading matter. As one side of these papers is printed in San Francisco, only one cent is required in illustrated advertisements, when it would require 50 cents to send the order direct to the publisher of each paper. An advertisement occupying one square (10 lines agate) will be inserted one time in the entire list for $7—only 10 cents per paper.

An ordinary circular can be printed in this list, set in the space of one-fourth of a double column, and inserted once for One Dollar per paper. By this method circulars are more likely to be read and preserved, and the cost is not more than one-fourth of what it would be to print and distribute the same number through so many sections. California Theater

Signor Majeroni appeared last evening in his new play, "Faith and Friendship." It is decidedly interesting and possesses strong Damou and Pythias characteristics. To see one is almost to see the other, though this is strongly tinged with military affairs. The characters are all well played, and the piece is one which should draw well. It will be repeated to-night.

Grand Opera House

In spite of the rain, this house was pretty well filled last evening to witness the ancient-modern sensation, "Uncle Tom's Cabin." Again to-night.

The Fountain

An evening can be most profitably spent at this well-known retreat. What with eloquent music, delicious beverages, and everything to tempt the most epicurean appetite, it is no wonder the place is crowded every evening.

Bush Street Theater

The new bill drew a good audience last evening in spite of the rain. Miss Gussie Crayton is exceedingly clever in limning the faces of familiar people, and she created considerable amusement. "Ixion" was tolerably well acted.

Baldwin's Theater

"Girofle-Girofla" was given to a moderate house last night, and with the exception of one or two characters, was well played. Miss Catherine Lewis made a capital Girofle, and fairly captivated her audience. The same bill this evening.

FOOTLIGHT PELLETS

You can get a night's agony out of one simple flea.

SEAL-SKINS are worn a great deal this winter—on the backs of the seals.

IN marriage man is always the loser—in his habits.

It's good fishing nowadays at some of our suburban dairies.

THE spring fly is about to pnt in an appearance.

Now is the time to cut out all recipes or sore nose s and rheumatiz.

MONEY isn't scarce. Sitting Bullion is in circulation.

WE'LL bet a shirt collar that the whole blue ribbon brigade would like to go on a glorious drunk.

AN exchange says that a counterfeit cent is in circulation. Gracious Heavens! What if it should get into the Mail office?

"WHAT can be more vast and fragrant than the Carson Valley?" says a Virginian paper. We know, Kearney's mouth.

"If you mean to be a man, have plenty of enemies," says Talleyrand. By Jove! it isn't in mathematics to count our'n.

TAIN'T what they thought it was. Kearney and Wellock are willing to finish the winter lecturing for coal and flour.

HALF an hour's practice on a piano every day will bring on fatal attacks of paralysis in six months—to the hearer.

Don't get married. Brimstone seems to be the principal ingredient in Frisco matches.

WELLOCK says he is thankful that his name is not going to be dragged into the Presidential snare of 1880.

LUNCH bums have placed all saloons on the black list that don't keep horse-radish on their tables.

"A FOOTLIGHT READER" sends a humorous poem on "Uncle Tom's Cabin." We fairly split our sides when we read it—in an Eastern paper two months ago.

WE have two vocal Tom cats in our back yard whose combined voices can make more noise than a labor mass meeting.

ALL the rain in the country fell in this city yesterday and last night. People ought to come to San Francisco if they want to see how our water works.

THE Record-Union says, "the House will scrutinize all bills very carefully." Our creditors will please make a note of this, and save us further annoyance by sending ours directly to the House at Sacramento.

A MAN on Post street went into his back yard and yelled "fire!" just to frighten his wife. Somebody ought to run a red hot poker through him to see him wriggle.

WE've been so busy lately that we haven't had any time to say anything more about the Post critic's French and Latin. Don't worry, pet; we'll think of something ugly bime-bi.

EASTERN THEATRICALS

Joe Murphy is about to bring out a new piece. It is called "Larry."

The widow of the late Ben DeBar is said to be living on $15 a week.

John S. Clarke will play Dr. Pangloss and Toodles in Easton, Pa., Feb. 11th.

Henry Crisp will leave the Southern party at the conclusion of the Baltimore engagement.

Wm. F. Owen has made a hit at Booth's Theater, New York, in comic Shakspearean roles.

John Brougham, as soon as his health permits, will become a member of Wal-lack's company.

E. T. Stetson will open Laird's New Opera House, Greenville, Pa., Feb. 11th, appearing in "Richelieu."

Old man Boucicault disagrees with Beecher as to eternal punishment—Boney believes in hell, but not damnation.

J. B. Roberts has become business and stage manager of the Adelphi Theater, and intends giving first-class attractions.

Modjeska commences an engagement at Baltimore to-day. She will be in Boston Feb. 25th.

In the suit of Mlle. Roseri, the danseuse, the Kirafls endeavored to gain the clemency of the court by pleading poverty.

The Chestnut management say they were enabled to reduce the admission rates because they were not burdened with stars. Another argument against the star system.

Robert Hill, the clever young character actor of the "Almighty Dollar" Combination, it is whispered at the wings, is engaged to be wedded to a favorite ex-star of New York celebrity.

Mary Anderson is about the best advertised actress in the profession, but the account in one of the Nashville newspapers about her being scared by a mouse, rather caps the climax.

Miss Laura Joyce, now with John T. Ford's company at the Arch, is a very handsome woman. We should have liked to have seen her in some more important part than Nichette.

Bartley Campbell announces in a New York paper that his forthcoming spectacle "Clio" is free from all filth. There are no Bartley Campbell jokes in it whatever, and positively no reproductions of London night experiences.

The Mackay banquet to Gen. Grant in Paris, is meant to be eclipsed by one to be given in Chicago in 1880 at the great convocation of Knight Templars. The cloth will be spread for 10,000 persons, and the expense will exceed $50,000.

SACRAMENTO THEATRICAL

SACRAMENTO, Feb'y 11, 1878.

ED. FOOTLIGHT:—The Ada Richmond Burlesque Company played to a large audience on Saturday afternoon, and to a very light one in the evening, and on Sunday evening presented "Kenilworth" to nearly empty benches. I regret to record such a meagre attendance, especially when such a deserving and pains-taking company bids for patronage. It is a fact, that Miss Ada Richmond herself, as a burlesque actress, sings sweetly, being at her best when, as second with Miss Parker, they render some of their light but charming duets. Her costuming is superb, and her acting easy and graceful, being careful in all she says and does not to offend the most fastidious. She left us to-day, and carries with her the best wishes of all who had the pleasure of witnessing her untiring efforts to afford us a few evenings amusement of a light but pleasing character.

Mr. W. A. Borst, the gentlemanly and courteous manager of the company, has won the respect of this community, who are indebted to him for managerial favors not often proffered with such good will as we have seen evinced in this instance. Mr. John Dillon joined the company and went eastward with them to-day.

Yesterday Miss Fanny Buckingham, accompanied by Miss Mary Fisk, passed through on the train to play "Mazepa" at Virginia City.

The "Black Crook" company are quartered at the Orleans Hotel. They played to good business at San Jose, and at Marysville drew the best houses seen in that city for four years. Everything seems to promise good business during the week.

Their Ages

There may be a little delicacy in divulging the ages of ladies, particularly those who are placed prominently before the public—as actresses, for instance—but, as some Eastern reporter, without the fear of feminine wrath or sharp finger-nails, has seen fit to make them public, we simply republish the list, bravely laying the responsibility on our Eastern brother:

A CRITICISM AS IS A CRITICISM.—The Chicago correspondent of a New York paper thus pictures the new play of "All the Rage," which recently held the boards at McVicker's for two weeks:

"All the Rage," though I don't know why it should be called by that name, has eked out the week, and has been considerably tossed about on the billows of dramatic criticism. It is a difficult matter to determine exactly what it is, and no doubt the author was in the same strait when he termed it a farce-comedy. The story is exceedingly mazed—a string upon which hangs a succession of ludicrous incidents, full of common-place talk, grossly ridiculous situations, and coarse, slung phrases, such as one would be likely to hear from a variety stage instead of the legitimate. The sensitive auditor is forced to listen to delectable dissertations on corns, bunions, hang-nails, etc.; to hear actors of no ordinary intelligence give utterance to the most absurd and sometimes vile expressions, putting themselves in ridiculous attitudes, capering and raving about the stage like a pack of escaped lunatics. There is not the shadow of a plot, and several of the characters could be dropped from the cast without interfering with the text in the least. The construction is so remarkable, that the second act can be played first, or it could be shaken up and divided in three acts of equal parts, and still be the same. There is no particular point to laugh at, but the laughter is not produced from the pure, genuine excitement of the fancy. On the whole it amuses, and that was evidently the sole aim of the author. There is not the slightest relief, therefore the third act grows monotonous, with the exception of the duel scene, and even that lost its novelty for those who witnessed the performance of "Our Boarding House." The boy who once said something funny, and then repeated it so often that you feel like knocking him down, is no exaggeration of what this piece suggests.

"ANTONY AND CLEOPATRA" is about to be produced at Rome, with the utmost splendor and magnificence—the costumes and stage properties are to correspond with the historical period, or as near as our present knowledge of that epoch will permit. Scifoni, the Roman painter of Pompeian subjects, is engaged to assist; he has already designed the toilet of Cleopatra. Yellow was the mourning color in Egypt during the time of Cesar, and it was the fashion of society belles to wear white woolen wigs. The Roman manager will have his "serpent of old Nile" fixed up somewhat different to the Cleopatra of Rose Eyttinge.

VEST-POCKET OPERA GLASSES, MULLER, No. 135 Montgomery Street.

JEWELRY is like everything else, it will by constant use get out of repair, and, unless placed in the hands of an artist, will meet with misfortune in the mending. A visit to the studio of Mr. F. A. ERBICO, at 250 KEARNEY STREET, up stairs, convinced us that, as a skilled artisan in his special line of repairing Coral Jewels, he could not be equalled by any in this city, and the samples of Filigree Work he had on exhibition and for sale were of the most elaborate character, in designs of endless variety and at prices to suit the capacity of every purchaser.

BEFORE MAKING THE PURCHASE OF A PIANO, visit the new warehouses opened at No. 31 Post Street, Mechanic's Building, and inspect those of Chickering & Sons on exhibition there. They will speak for themselves. For elegance in design, purity and power of tone they cannot be excelled.

WHEN YOU REQUIRE GLOVES FOR THE OPERA, visit the Danieffs' Manufactory at 114 1/2 Post Street, where you can have them made to order, and cut in the latest Parisian style.

JUDGING BY THE CROWD OF CUSTOMERS THAT are usually found in the saleroom of Nield, the tailor. He must have cut up a few acres of cloth since his arrival in San Francisco.

THE FOURTH STREET AUCTION HOUSE, 52 & 54 Fourth Street, is the only establishment in this City where genuine inducements in SILKS AND VELVETS are offered.

THE CELEBRATED
Cucamonga Rancho
 CONTAINING 13,000 ACRES
 a now being surveyed and subdivided into ten, twenty and forty acre farms, and will be sold at $25 to $30 per acre,
WITH WATER FREE
 one-sixth Cash, balance in one, two, three, four and five years, with interest on deferred payments at eight percent per annum.

LOCATION
 Midway between Pomona and Colton, San Bernardino County, California. Soil unsurpassed in fertility. Climate best in the State—no injurious frosts ever known in the Valley. Water in abundance from San Antonio Creek and Cucamonga Creek, which run through the land. Fifty families are ready located in the valley, and many orange orchards already set out. The Southern Pacific Railroad, from San Francisco to the Colorado River, runs for about three miles through the tract.

Artesian wells can be had upon any portion of the land. San Bernardino Valley is the best naturally watered of the State of California. It is worthy of mention, however, that artesian wells are numerous, as the valley is bounded on the north and south by high mountains, partly snow-capped the year round, which furnish a large area of water shed; superficial and subterranean water is therefore abundant. The surface streams we have already described, and it now remains to give particulars of the wells.
 Formerly the artesian wells were only of two inch bore, and the water was always obtained at a depth of 45 to 150 feet. They are now larger bore, and water in abundance is obtained at a depth of 100 to 150 feet. On the north side of the Santa Ana River the average depth of artesian wells is 100 feet, while on the south side the average depth is greater.

At an elevation of 150 feet above the level of the valley there is a well which, at a depth of 132 feet, produces sufficient water to drive a turbine wheel.

There are now over 200 flowing artesian wells in San Bernardino Valley, and we are convinced that their number can be increased at the option of the inhabitants, not only for irrigation,
 but also for manufacturing purposes.

Oranges, Lemons, Limes, Figs, Olives, Almond, Walnuts and all sub-tropical fruits grow abundantly. Arrangements can be made to plant any number of Orange Trees, three to four years old, four to five feet high, seventy trees to the acre, and guarantee them, for $1.00 per acre, also for planting other fruit or shade trees at a reasonable cost.

RICHIE'S FRENCH HOTEL, one of the best in the southern portion of the State, is located upon the tract, and settlers will there find a pleasant economical home until they get their houses built.

ADVERTISERS
 WILL FIND THE LIST OF 70 PAPERS, GENERALLY known as "Patent Outlets," one of the cheapest and best means of reaching the people in all parts of the Pacific Coast. On the aggregate these papers are read by a quarter of a million people, and our advertisements are placed near well selected reading matter. As one side of these papers is printed in San Francisco, only one cent is required in illustrated advertisements, when it would require 70 to send the order direct to the publisher of each paper. An advertisement occupying one square (10 lines agate) will be inserted one time in the entire list for $7—only 10 cents per paper.
 An ordinary circular can be printed in this list, set in the space of one-fourth of a double column, and inserted once for One Dollar per paper. By this method circulars are more likely to be read and preserved, and the cost is not more than one-fourth of what it would be to print and distribute the same number through so many sections. For

Herold Matinee.

This afternoon at 3 o'clock, at the Metropolitan Temple, Fifth street, opposite U. S. Mint, the Fourth Grand Matinee will be given by R. Herold's Orchestra. M. Savinier is undelined for a cornet solo, and the balance of the programme is up to the usual standard. Admission, 50 cents.

The Fountain

This spacious and elegant resort is becoming a popular institution—in fact, it is already one of the "seven wonders" of San Francisco. The elegant music, delightful liquors, and superb meals would almost tempt an anchorite from his cave. It is extensively patronized after the theaters by both ladies and gentlemen.

California Theater

This and to-morrow evenings, Signor Majeroni will appear in a new romantic play entitled "The Living Statue." On Friday evening the Signor will "benefit," when "Jealousy" will be repeated. Saturday matinee, "East Lynne," and in the evening the "Old Corporal" will be repeated by request. On Monday "The Deluge" will be presented on a scale of unprecedented splendor.

Baldwin's Theater

Miss Catherine Lewis and the Opera Bouffe Company are meeting with encouraging success at this bijou of a theatre, and the pieces presented have given much satisfaction. The company work together quite harmoniously. "Girofle-Girofla" will be given every evening this week.

Grand Opera House

The unpleasant weather does not seem to affect the attendance at the Grand in the least, and we are inclined to believe Manager Kennedy has at last struck a veritable bonanza. "Uncle Tom's Cabin" was probably never before so elaborately produced, and judging from the patronage extended, it will be some time before it is withdrawn from the boards.

Bush Street Theater

The lightning caricaturist, Miss Gussie Crayton, gives some superb limnings of prominent individuals every evening. Last night her portraits of President Hayes, Loring Pickering and Emperor Norton, were most accurate, and easily recognized by the audience. The entertainments of the Female Minstrels and Burlesque Troupe continue to draw good audiences.

THEATRICAL GOSSIP, Etc.

It is stated that Henry Mapleson, son of the London impresario, is the husband of Marie Roze. He accompanies her on her travels.

Forty-two pupils cognomened Cohen, have been admitted to the Vienna Conservatory. A wag suggests that it be called Victor Cohenservatory.

A VIOLIN, the box of which is of porcelain, and the strings of wire, and which are said to emit tones that are faultless as to harmony, power and richness, is the latest novelty upon which musical Venice, the prettiest city of all Italy, plumes herself.—Exchange.

SMITTEN.—The critic of the Portland Bee waxes eloquent over Miss Fanny Buckingham as "Mazepa." When she was playing here we didn't see any of the beauties he so vividly depicts. He must have a tender spot for the fair equestrienne:

"The gradually desperate scenes, where the beautiful young page is fast bound to the wild horse as he goes recklessly bounding over the mountain paths, through rich valleys, across arid plains, passing the swift flowing river, or lies exhausted upon the cold ground, are at once thrilling and intensely interesting."

NOTABLE DEATH.—George T. Evans, the eminent musician and composer, died yesterday at his residence in this city. Mr. Evans has been a resident of San Francisco for over twenty-five years, and has always been considered one of the foremost musicians of the coast, while as a composer he has ranked high. His little gem of "Minnie Adair" will live forever. Mr. Evans was only forty-one years of age at the time of his death. His early demise is not only sincerely regretted by his myriads of friends, but by the public generally, who have listened with delight to his beautiful compositions.

FOOTLIGHT PELLETS

Kearny street is full of Bashful Bazookas.

Oh, for a ray of sunshine. Can't some bald-headed man take off his hat?

WASHINGTON'S Birthday is approaching. Well, what are we going to do for the 22?

INFANTILE violet-sellers are getting thick on the streets. Poor infants! Poor violets!

A CHILD was born in Nevada recently with a double tongue. Of course it was a girl.

How thankful we would be if all acrobatic song and dance men would join a circus.

THE girls of our schools are compelled to practice calisthenics. Parents, look out for dumb-belles in the future.

MARK TWAIN has finally acknowledged that he is a fool; and Mark's head is eminently level.

AFTER much talk it has been really decided that Bonicault boucicaunted "London Assurance."

Now is the chance for the blue ribbon brigade. They are talking of reducing the whisky tax.

THERE is a man in this town so poor that the workmen won't speak to him. That's what they call "nobility of labor."

Now that our school directors have been hobnobbing with the lady teachers for some months, hadn't they better get down to biz?

THE Female Minstrels are very much encouraged by the full houses they have every night. In fact, they seem to have renude their youth.

"CONSCIENCE makes cowards of us all," wrote Shakespeare; but a boy with a stomach full of lollipop and paregoric has a different opinion about it.

THE young hoodlums of this city believe, with our ministers, that there is no hell. And as far as damnation is concerned, they loathe the argument.

ALFONSO and Mercedes are lovers now. A year or so hence he will be hunting around distractedly for his night key, and she won't know anything about it.

THE Philadelphia Bulletin says John Morrissey's recovery is an illustration of the survival of the fittest. Why not quote correctly and say survival of the "fit"-ist?

It is understood that Thomas Lord's failure to return is due to room-mate-ism, Graphic. Consequently he can't gout. Worcester Press.

Yes he can, too. Can't he ride on a by-sick-le-a-a-y?

RICHES are fatal even to goddesses. Iodide of gold.—Lowell Courier. Yes, but Nitrate of silver, you know, and it didn't hurt her.—Free Press.

Clor-ate of juniper, but you know she doubled up.

WHAT are we going to do when we want to tell a man to go to hell?—as it has been decided there is no such place. Heaven is too long. What we want now, is a short, jerky monosyllable, that has force to it, and will convey the idea that there is some snaky, slimy grotto just as terrible, that we can send him to. Somebody reach us a word. Or, by the way, wouldn't "Chicago" answer?

LETTER FROM BUFFALO

BUFFALO, Feb. 2, 1878.

ED. FOOTLIGHT:—At the Academy this week we have had the Lingards playing to fair houses, in "Hearts and Crowns," on Monday, "Uncle Josiah" on Tuesday, preceded by a sketch called "Sweethearts" and the "Vestul" and imitations by Mr. Lingard on Wednesday. The first is a new play written expressly for Mrs. Lingard, but is almost too pathetic for her to shine very brilliantly in; nevertheless, she appeared to very good advantage, considering that the most of her experience has been in light comedy and burlesque. "Uncle Josiah" turned out to be "Pink Dominoes," with a few imperceptible changes from the original. Why they should so deceive the public we do not understand. The three last evenings of the week were devoted to the "Mighty Dollar," in which the Florences were the chief and only attractions. The "Dantes" was announced for four nights, commencing Wednesday, at St. James Hall, by the Brent and Waite's Dramatic Company. They opened the first night under a cloud, as it was publicly intimated that an injunction would be served on them, on the grounds that the copyright of the "Dantes" belongs solely to McKee Rankin, who purchased it from Jaquin Miller, the author, for some $7,000. In a letter of explanation from H. H. Brent, billed as the California artist, he denies the allegation of McKee Rankin, that he stole a copy of the play while a member of his company, but asserts that he got it in answer to an advertisement which he saw in the Clipper, offering a copy of the "Dantes" for sale. He is not at all afraid of an injunction being served, feeling confident that he has as much right to play it as Rankin. The next two nights, however, the play was not performed, by reason of the severity of the weather, and not much loss either, for the company was an indifferent one, and the play of the sensational, hair-breath-escape kind, which is not appreciated in Buffalo—Albert Mr. Brent performed his part well. Rose Lytinge, as the beautiful Egyptian Queen, in Shakespeare's play of "Antony and Cleopatra," is billed for next week. Also, the dialect comedian, Emmet. W. H. W.

LETTER FROM ILLINOIS

BLOOMINGTON, Ill., Feb'y 4, 1878.

ED. FOOTLIGHT:—Everything is quiet here, and there is scarcely enough of amusements to break the monotony of events.

Josh Billings delivered his lecture on "What I Know of Beauty and the Beast," to a small house in Durley Hall Jan. 28th.

Hon. Geo. R. Wendling, of Shelbyville, Ill., delivered a lecture in Durley Hall Jan. 31, in reply to Robt. Ingersoll. He was greeted with a good house, and a more attentive and enthusiastic audience never was assembled in Bloomington. The lecture was one of the finest ever given here. Mr. Wendling is a new star just rising, and permit me to predict that soon he will rank among the greatest lecturers America has yet produced. By request he repeats the lecture on the 17th. He informed me that he intends visiting the Pacific coast soon.

Wendell Phillips delivered his lecture on Charles Sumner, in Durley Hall Feb. 2d. The house was filled, but all were greatly disappointed.

Robt. Ingersoll is expected here about the 15th.

Miss Mary Anderson will be here March 27th. Nemo, Jr.

MR. SAMUEL PIERCY explains the injunction of his doctor against his going to the Brooklyn Park for leading business. He states that it was not the supporting of Mr. McNeillough that he objected to, but the necessity of supporting star after star with sometimes four or five parts a week. The physical strain of such study would have placed Mr. Piercy hors du combat permanently, as he is now not in the best of health. Col. Sumner got out an injunction against Mr. Piercy playing at Niblo's, but subsequently asked leave through his counsel to withdraw it. Dramatic News.

We hope "our Sam's" not going to break down just as he is about to grasp the golden apple. He is earning an enviable reputation, and is considered one of the foremost leading men in the East. Another score for California.

Stray Bits from Mother Wits

The good are never successful in catching fish. We have tried it ourselves.—Rochester Union.

Where is the man who will now boast of being an old lyn' whig?—Danielsonville Sentinel.

A little miss of Syracuse, on a visit to the country, unively said that she liked cow milk better than city milk.

If a man reap whatsoever he soweth, what a harvest of coats and breeches the tailors will have one of these days.—Ravenna (O.) Democrat.

A Milwaukee editor says George Sand may have died from strong coffee, but there has been no mortality from that cause at his boarding house.

The evenings are growing so long that a man's opportunities for being necked by the clothes line are doubling up, as is also the man.—Danbury News.

Somebody says, "Every failure is a step to success." This will explain why the oftener some men fail the richer they become.—Norristown Herald.

VEST-POCKET OPERA GLASSES, MULLER, No. 135 Montgomery Street

JEWELRY is like everything else, it will by constant use get out of repair, and, unless placed in the hands of an artist, will meet with misfortune in the mending. A visit to the studio of Mr. F. A. ERRICO, at 230 KEARNEY STREET, up stairs, convinced us that, as a skilled artisan in his special line of repairing Coral Jewelry, he could not be equalled by any in this city, and the samples of Filigree Work he had on exhibition and for sale were of the most elaborate character, in designs of endless variety and at prices to suit the capacity of every purchaser.

BREMER MAKING THE PURCHASE OF A PIANO, visit the new warehouse opened at No. 31 Post Street, Mechanic's Building, and inspect those of Chickering & Sons on exhibition there. They will speak for themselves. For elegance in design, purity and power of tone they cannot be excelled.

WHEN YOU REQUIRE GLOVES FOR THE OPERA, visit the Daniloff Manufactory at 114 1/2 Post Street, where you can have them made to order, and out in the latest Parisian style.

JUDGING BY THE CROWD OF CLOTHESMENDERS THAT are usually found in the sale-room of NEILL, the dealer, he must have sold up a few yards of cloth since his arrival in San Francisco.

HOFFMANN'S AUCTION HOUSE, 300 Market Street, has a large and good stock of riding prices.

REMOVAL OF BAZAAR PATTERN AGENCY to 873 Market Street, in the Howe sewing Machine office. Fall and winter patterns received.

LOCATION

Midway between Pomona and Colton, San Bernardino County, California. Soil unsurpassed in fertility. Climate best in the State—no injurious frosts ever known in the Valley. Water in abundance from San Antonio Creek and Cucamonga Creek, which run through the land. Fifty families already located in the valley, and many orange orchards already set out. The Southern Pacific Railroad, from San Francisco to the Colorado River, runs for about three miles through the tract.

Artesian wells can be had upon any portion of the land. San Bernardino Valley is the best naturally watered of the State of California. It is worthy of mention, however, that artesian wells are numerous, as the valley is bounded on the northeast and south by high mountains, partly snow-capped the year round, which furnish a large area of water shed; superficial and subterranean water is therefore abundant. The surface streams we have already described, and it now remains to give particulars of the wells. Formerly the artesian wells were only of two-inch bore, and the water was always obtained at a depth of 45 to 150 feet. They are now of larger bore, and water in abundance is obtained at a depth of 100 to 150 feet. On the north side of the Santa Ana River the average depth of artesian wells is 100 feet, while on the south side the average depth is greater.

At an elevation of 100 feet above the level of the valley there is a well which, at a depth of 132 feet, produces sufficient water to drive a turbine wheel.

There are now over 200 flowing artesian wells in San Bernardino Valley, and we are convinced that their number can be increased at the option of the inhabitants, not only for irrigation, but also for manufacturing purposes.

Oranges, Lemons, Limes, Figs, Olives, Almonds, Walnuts and all semi-tropical fruits grow abundantly. Arrangements can be made to plant any number of Orange Trees, three to four years old, four to five feet high, seventy trees to the acre, and guarantee them, for $100 per acre; also for planting other fruit or shade trees at a reasonable cost.

RICHIE'S FRENCH HOTEL, one of the best in the southern portion of the State, is located upon the tract, and settlers will there find a pleasant economical home until they get their houses built.

For full particulars, maps, circulars etc., apply to E. P. NORWOOD, Agent on the land, to E. CHURCH, Agent at Colton, San Bernardino County; or to the

ADVERTISERS

WILL FIND THE LIST OF 70 PAPERS, GENERALLY known as "Patent Outside," one of the cheapest and best means of reaching the people in all parts of the Pacific Coast. On the aggregate these papers are read by a quarter of a million people, and our advertisements are placed near well selected reading matter. As one side of these papers is printed in San Francisco, only one cut is required in illustrated advertisements, when it would require 70 to send the order direct to the publisher of each paper. An advertisement occupying one square (10 lines a page) will be inserted one time in the entire list for $7—only 10 cents per paper.

An ordinary circular can be printed in this list, set in the space of one-fourth of a double column, and inserted once for One Dollar per paper. By this method circulars are more likely to be read and preserved, and the cost is not more than one-fourth of what it would be to print and distribute the same number through so many sections. THURSDAY - FEBRUARY 14

California Theater

A fair audience assembled last evening to witness the Majeronis in the new play, entitled "The Living Statue," a piece smacking of sentimentality, but with enough dash and power to preserve it from a tendency to ultra romance. The Signor invested the character of Octaviano Graut with a spirit and discrimination which hard study alone can accomplish, and which stamps him as an actor of uncommon merit. The Madame afforded intelligent support, and gave a delightful rendition of the sympathetic Noemi. The cast was a judicious one, and all seemed to be imbued with a favorable interest in the piece, which was well mounted and handsomely put upon the stage. "The Living Statue" will be repeated to-night. Tomorrow evening, for the Majeronis' benefit, "Jealousy" will be repeated.

Grand Opera House

"Uncle Tom's Cabin," with the attractive adjunct of the jubilee singers, and the superb scenery and elaborate accessories, is still drawing immense audiences. Repeated till further notice.

Baldwin's Theater

"Girofle-Girofla" continues the attraction at this theater, and is drawing good audiences. It will be repeated every evening this week, and also at the matinee.

The Fountain

Continues in the enjoyment of unexampled prosperity. It is just the place to while away an hour or two.

Herold Matinee

The threatening weather did not prevent the assembling of a large audience yesterday P. M. to enjoy the fourth orchestral matinee of Mr. R. Herold at the Metropolitan Temple. Of those present a large majority were ladies, certainly a great compliment to Mr. Herold and his staff of musicians, as without doubt, in taste and finished execution the fair sex are much in advance of our amateur masculine musical community. Mr. Herold, assisted by his energetic business manager, Mr. Schutz, has probably done more than any other individual in our city, for many years past, to advance the education of the public in classic musical composition, and it is a satisfaction to know that their combined labor is appreciated and reaping a reward. Since the last concert the organ pipes have been placed in position, adding to the appearance of the interior, and the unfinished framework of black walnut gives promise of a noble looking instrument when complete. Goldmark's Overture to Sakuntala is a perfect gem of concerted instrumentalism, and no better rendering of it could have been desired. It was one of the best numbers we have ever heard under the baton of Professor Herold. Its introduction to finale every measure got ample justice; the parts were well balanced and individually well executed. We hope to enjoy it again before the close of the present season. The cornet solo of Mr. Savinier was well received, and an encore met with an obliging response. The Lorely paraphrase was fine; but gentlemen, first violinists, when next you play it, oblige us with a little more uniformity in your bowing. While Mr. Heyman, fresh from the tutorship of David, plays a legato passage with an up bow, Monsieur De Folly, from the Paris Conservatory (some time ago) plays the same with a down bow. It will be all right in Wagner's future hidden orchestra (about which a sarcastic Frenchman remarked that it would be well to have it out of hearing as well as out of sight), but at present, while the eye as well as the ear has to be pleased, it would look and sound better to push and pull together. If the labor of making each copy be too much, then appoint Messrs. Harry Widmer and Fritz Peipers, who occupy chairs at the end of each row, strokesmen, and let the balance take their cue from them. Favor us this much in your future editions and at each of your benefits count us in.

THEATRICAL GOSSIP, Etc.

Last evening theater-goers took advantage of the "clear-up," and filled the theaters.

A little less affectation on your papa's knee, Eva, and we will pronounce you a wonderful child actress.

To-morrow (Friday) evening, at Mercantile Library Hall, the second musical recital by the Schmidt Quintette will be given.

"DRAMATICS" inquires if Keene is going to play a funny part in the "Deluge" next week. We do not know. Probably he would if "Bishy" would stand it.

MISS MINNIE WALTON goes to the California Theater, San Francisco, for one year.—Philadelphia World.

How thoroughly posted those Eastern papers are, to be sure.

Just published by the California Music Publishing Co., "What they do at the Springs." The art of decolomanie has been vividly depicted on a small scale on the title page.

We go by fits and starts. To-day the rush is at the California; to-morrow at the Grand; and the next day at the Bush Street or Baldwin's—which betrays the fact that our people seek novelty.

Mrs. ANNIE PIXLEY is winning golden opinions for her rendition of Toisy. When it is known that she never attempted anything of the kind before, the present effort proves her to be exceedingly versatile.

THE Salt Lake Times says it "will let two bits the Kentz Female Minstrels will get roasted in San Francisco." We don't exactly understand this; but we are inclined to believe the hoot is on the other leg. They appear to be making it warm here for dilatory husbands, whose clubs seem to keep in at night later than usual.

Thomas Moore has arrived in New York, where he will be busy for some time in making engagements for Baldwin's Theater. Report has it that Mr. Baldwin has telegraphed him $5,000 to secure the present Union Square Theater Company for another season here of society drama. We are inclined to think this unwisely. What the Baldwin wants is diversified entertainments. Let Mr. Moore follow the present season of opera bouffe with a first-class combination (and any number of them can be secured), and on the head of that a season of the legitimate; then a novel but dissimilar entertainment, and so on—and our word for it, he can keep his theater open the year round to good paying business; but to forfeit our theatergoers with long seasons of the legitimate, with nothing to relieve the tedious of sobs and tears, betrays an ignorance of the desires of this community. San Franciscans crave for novelty—and novelty they must have—and Mr. Moore's twenty-seven years of managerial experience on this coast should certainly have taught him the fact. By all means let us have an attractive combination next.

VIRGINIA THEATRICALS

VIRGINIA, NEV., Feb. 10, 1878.

EDITOR FOOTLIGHT:—I drop you a few lines to inform you on theatrical matters in this part of the world, knowing that you are always glad to receive such intelligence, for the benefit of your many readers. Piper's present dramatic company consists of the following ladies and gentlemen: J. H. Vinson, Stage Manager, Miss Mary L. Young, Miss Katie Mayhew, Mrs. Norton Bush, Miss George Woodthorpe, Mrs. George Osborne, Miss Cecil Gray, Fred G. Maeder, P. E. Sullivan, W. C. Crosbie, Manny Woods, T. C. Howard, Frank Kilday, and King Headley.

On Monday evening, February 4th, the Union Square Company opened here and played during the week, presenting on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday afternoons the "Danicheffs" Wednesday evening, "Lod Astray," Thursday, Friday and Saturday afternoons, "Pink Dominoes," and Saturday night, "Two Orphans." They did the largest week's business ever done in this city—the receipts being over $1,000 a night. The party leave this evening for Salt Lake, playing there three nights; then to St. Louis. In the meantime, Piper's dramatic company played during the week through the interior, opening on Monday evening, February 4th, in Carson City, when Mary L. Young made her first appearance in this part of the world, enacting the dual role of Lady Isabel and Madame Vine, in "East Lynne." On Tuesday evening "Marble Heart" was given; Wednesday, "Hunchback;" Thursday evening "Grimaldi" and the force of the "Wandering Minstrel." The business was very good, considering the weather. Then to Reno, playing there Friday, Saturday matinee and night, the bills being "East Lynne" and "Jenny Lind;" "Marble Heart" and the "Wandering Minstrel." The company open here again to-morrow evening (Monday 11th), in "East Lynne" and "Jenny Lind;" Tuesday, "Grimaldi" and the force of "Haton Bay;" Wednesday "Marble Heart," and on Thursday evening Miss Fanny Louise Buckingham and her "fiery, untamed steel," James Melville, make their first appearance here, playing Thursday, Friday, Saturday matinee, Saturday night and Sunday evening. Then I understand that the "Allah Richmond" party play here for one week.

BANANA.

THE sale of seats for the grand English and Italian opera, at Hooky's, next week, has already been very large, and the prospect now is that the season of two weeks will be remarkably successful. The company is strong in stellar attractions, and beyond doubt the season will equal that of any other company which has visited this city for several years. In addition to Misses Kellogg and Cary, who can sing even with more ease and finish than they quirel. The novelty of the season, however, will be Marie Raze, who has conquered admiration wherever she has appeared, both in Europe and in this country. She is said to be very amiable, which is a peculiarity in a singer worthy of special mention, and as an actress, if we may believe report, she is equal to any performer on the operatic stage. Among the other lights in this operatic firmament are: Miss Montague, Miss L. L. L., Messrs. Graff, Verdi, Conly, Karl, Wilkin, Smith, Grimsdick and others. The opening Monday night will be "It Trevasors," with Miss Kellogg as Leonora, Mrs. Cary as Azema, Mr. Graff as M. de L., Mr. Verdi as Comte de L., and Mr. Conly as Fernando. Tuesday evening "La Favorite," with Miss Marie Raze as Leonora. Wednesday night "Faust." Thursday night "Aida." With a competent chorus and orchestra there seems every reason to believe that Mr. Strakosch will coin barrel or two of dollars in this city during the next fortnight. The corps de ballet accompanying the company will be under the direction of Signor Novisano, and Signora Padilla is presumed to be the prima ballerina.

An addition has been made to the manufacturing industries of our city by the house of LEVY & CO., who have commenced the manufacture of GENTS' SUITS at 124 Kearny street. Their principal office has been located in the knowledge of the business in the city of Paris, and with the experience thus acquired, he guarantees to give entire satisfaction to his patrons. Claims to make to order and to wear the wearer better than those purchased ready made. Gents are no exception to the rule, and as the cost is no more than the imported article, and manufacture is lower and better than the imported, intending buyers will do well to get acquainted at the establishment.

JEWELRY is like everything else, it will by constant use get out of repair, and, unless placed in the hands of an artist, will meet with misfortune in the mending. A visit to the studio of Mr. F. A. ERICCO, at 200 Kearsney Street, up stairs, convinced us that, as a skilled artisan in his special line of repairing GEM JEWELRY, he could not be equaled by any in this city; and the samples of Filigree Work he had on exhibition and for sale were of the most elaborate character in designed endless variety and at prices to suit the capacity of every purchaser.

THE COUNTERS.—[An Eastern critic thus enlogizes the fair Modjeskas:

"For three hours I studied Modjeska through the loquacity; with heightening interest watched her marvelous development of the character of 'Camille,' forgetting at length, indeed, that the Countess Bozenta was on the stage, so completely did she sink her own individuality in that of the Parisian lorette; and when the curtain rolled between us, I hurried bewildered from the place over which she had cast a spell. A disappointment! No, no; for once even the literary talent of New York had failed in justice to one of the greatest actresses that has adorned the stage. At this very moment—when time has allowed a temperate judgment of this woman—the nerves will thrill, and the blood tingle to the very finger-tips at the thought of her! The cause? Why, she brought something that was quite new to the stage—Genius!"

ROUCH ON CLARA. The opera manager, C. D. Hess, who has not a very exalted opinion of the prima donna, writes: "I played the Kellogg Company three times during the last season (1877) in Philadelphia, the first time to immense business; the second time Miss Kellogg disappointed every night that she was announced, pleading illness, and the third time the public remained away, through sheer disgust." Then he declares that no manager could go through a successful season with her as "the sole star attraction."

LOCATION

Midway between Pomona and Colton, San Bernardino County, California. Soil unsurpassed in fertility. Climate best in the State—no injurious frosts ever known in the Valley. Water in abundance from San Antonio Creek and Cucamonga Creek, which run through the land. Fifty families already located in the valley, and many orange orchards already set out. The Southern Pacific Railroad, from San Francisco to the Colorado River, runs for about three miles through the tract.

Artesian wells can be had upon any portion of the land. San Bernardino Valley is the best naturally watered of the State of California. It is worthy of mention, however, that artesian wells are numerous, as the valley is bounded on the northeast and south by high mountains, partly snow-capped the year round, which furnish a large area of water shed; superficial and subterranean water is therefore abundant. The surface streams we have already described, and it
 now remains to give particulars of the wells.
 Formerly the artesian wells were only of two-inch bore, and the water was always obtained at a depth of 45 to 150 feet. They are now of larger bore, and water in abundance is obtained at a depth of 100 to 150 feet. On the north side of the Santa Ana River the average depth of artesian wells is 100 feet, while on the south side the average depth is greater.

At an elevation of 100 feet above the level of the valley there is a well which, at a depth of 132 feet, produces sufficient water to drive a turbine wheel.

There are now over 200 flowing artesian wells
 in San Bernardino Valley, and we are convinced that their number can be increased at the option of the inhabitants, not only for irrigation,
 but also for manufacturing purposes.

Oranges, Lemons, Limes, Figs, Olives, Almonds, Walnuts and all semi-tropical fruits grow abundantly. Arrangements can be made to plant any number of Orange Trees, three to four years old, four to five feet high, seventy trees to the acre, and guarantee them, for $100 per acre; also for planting other fruit or shade trees at a reasonable cost.

RICHIE'S FRERNON HOTEL, one of the best in the southern portion of the State, is located upon the tract, and settlers will there find a pleasant economical home until they get their houses built.

ADVERTISERS

WILL FIND THE LIST OF 70 PAPERS, GENERALLY known as "Patent Outlets," one of the cheapest and best means of reaching the people in all parts of the Pacific Coast. On the aggregate these papers are read by a quarter of a million people, and our advertisements are placed near well selected reading matter. As one side of these papers is printed in San Francisco, only one cut is required in illustrated advertisements, when it would require 75 to send the order direct to the publisher of each paper. An advertisement occupying one square (10 lines again) will be inserted one time in the entire list for $7—only 10 cents per paper.

An ordinary circular can be printed in this list, set in the space of one-fourth of a double column, and inserted once for the Dollar per paper. By this method circulars are more likely to be read and preserved, and the cost is not more than one-fourth of what it would be to print and distribute the same number through as many sections. For

FRIDAY - - - FEBRUARY 15

California Theater

To-night is set apart for the benefit of the Majoronis, when the excellent play of "Jealousy" will be produced, the beneficiaries appearing in the leading roles. San Franciscans should turn out en masse, and give these deserving artists a substantial vaudeictory. We trust the house will be crowded in every part.

Grand Opera House

"Uncle Tom's Cabin" has metamorphosed itself into a paying sensation, judging from the large audiences in attendance every evening. We trust Manager Kennedy will profit by the present success, and follow it up with something equally enticing.

Baldwin's Theater

Catherine Lewis has proven a veritable card, and Fred did a wise thing to en-Lyster among his forces. (A club is in order here.) The pretty little Briton not only sings divinely and acts archly, but there is a magnetism about her that makes a man feel like a dish of marmalade. The little lady is at present "Girofle-Girofling" it to good audiences.

Bush Street Theater

The Female Minstrels continue to draw large and sensual audiences—and they can't help it either. People will go where the beauties of the female form are magnificently exhibited. It's a fault of nature, we presume—and nature is weak—poor thing! Aside from this—the principal feature—the performance is a good one, and doubtless, were there not such a poverty of skirts on the stage, there would be many more in the dress circle.

FOOTLIGHT PELLETS

WE believe the rain let up last night just to tantalize us. We know it of old.

Don't be humbugged by the moon. True, it appeared last night in all its insane splendor. And for what?

BEECHER is lecturing, and Tilton is lecturing, and Ingersoll is lecturing, and Kearney is lecturing.

SINCE it has been proven that there is no hell, the actors of the California Theater now exclaim: "Go to Hell!"

THERE'S no real dependence to be placed upon the ring around the moon, than there is upon the ring around the finger of a San Francisco bride.

STANLEY didn't do much after all. He only went through ignorant Africa. Look at Duncan. He went through civilized San Francisco.

But they poison when they spit, ain't it?

Yes, right in the midst of the operations. What a pity.

BROCK, IVES & Co., of Hartford, advertise with their firm names printed upon the wood cut of a beehive. Would it not pay to change it to B. Ives & Co.?—Union Argus.

That was precisely what we would have suggested, honey.

THE Philadelphia Bulletin has a meteorological item headed, "State of the weather this day in the Bulletin office." If it would day in to give the state of the weather out of the Bulletin office, probably it would be more interesting to its readers. Can't fool the people on the temperature inside of printing offices.

It may be that diphtheria, scarlet fever, croup and sore throats come from our sewer gas, but chicken thieves who stumple over old straw beds, ash-barrels, bedsteads, old clothes and heaps of potato parings in back yards have their own theory.

In London, years ago, a prize of $50 was offered for the best original joke, and Horne Tooke it.—Norristown Herald. Now, be honest. Didn't Theodore look it?—Exchange. We don't know about that, but we believe a London publisher hid it.—Free Press.

No, sir; it was A. Roman San Francisco publisher that did it.

THE LAST DAYS AND OBSEQUES OF A GREAT ACTOR.—Hannah More says of David Garrick: "I pity those who have not seen him. Posterity will never be able to form the slightest idea of his perfection. The more I see of him the more I admire. I have seen him within these three weeks take leave of Benedict, Sir John Brute, Kately, Abel Dragger, Archer and Leon. It seems to me as if I was assisting at the obsequies of the different poets. I feel almost as much pain as pleasure." It was on the 10th of June, 1776, that he made his last appearance as Don Felix, in "The Wonder," and never, it was said, did he play with more fire and energy, more lightness and animation. Then in a short speech broken by tears he wished the audience farewell, and with a long and lingering gaze upon the vast concourse before him, scarcely a face of which but was bedewed with sympathetic tears, slowly retired. "Farewell—farewell!" echoed a hundred voices choked with emotion as he passed behind the curtain which was never again to rise upon him. Not long did he enjoy his retirement. Within three years afterwards there was a magnificent funeral procession to Westminster Abbey; the line of carriages reached from the Strand to the sacred building; the streets were crowded with spectators; the Bishop of Rochester received the coffin, the Duke of Devonshire, the Earls Camden, Ossory, Spencer and Lord Palmerston were pall-bearers; Burke, Fox and other celebrities stood beside the grave that was ready to receive the mortal remains of the great actor. His brother George survived him but a few days. He had always been David's factotum, and his first inquiry on entering the theatre at night was, "Has David wanted me?" Some one was remarking upon the singularity of his dying so soon after his brother. "O," answered Bannister, who was by, "David wanted him." Of the respect in which Garrick was held a proof was given not long before his death. One night he was the sole occupant of the gallery of the House of Commons during a fierce discussion between two members; one of whom moved that he should be ordered to withdraw. Burke sprang up indignantly and opposed the motion to expel the man who, he said, had taught them all they knew; Fox and Townsend followed in the same strain, calling him their preceptor.—Temple Bar.

The Worcester Press says that the new Senator from Kentucky is six feet four inches tall, and can move to adjourn in four languages.

"THE DELUGE"

Elaborate preparations are being made for the production of this grand spectacle next week at the California. Voegtlin is busy with his brush, and the carpenters, machinists and property men are constantly employed. The actors have their parts, and everything is in a state of activity. The Kiralfy ballet troupe have been re-engaged, and doubtless the spectacle will be the grandest—certainly the most novel—we have had for some time. To give our readers an intelligent conception of the piece, we give a succinct synopsis of it:

The first act represents the fall of the angels, wherein Satan is represented chained to a rock, with legions of his rebellious colleagues falling, in numbers, on the borders of a bituminous lake, representing that place of punishment, in the discussion of the existence of which the pulpit is at present so busily employed. It is the poetic hell, if you like, of Milton and Dante. The Angel of Pardon entreats Satan to repent, and is met by curses and defiance. Gabriel pronounces upon Satan and his fallen cohorts the doom of eternal punishment; but the Prince of Darkness creates for them the Temple of Pandemonium, illustrating the celebrated scene of "Satan in Council." In this occurs the grand demon ballet, the appearance of the angels of Sin and Death, and Satan's terrible menace to mankind.

The second act brings to view Adam and Eve with the temptation of the latter by Satan, in the form of a serpent, the banishment from Eden by Gabriel, and the fiendish joy of the tempter over the fall of man. The third act embraces the death of Abel at the hands of his brother Cain, who has been tempted by Satan to commit the deed. The crime is accomplished in a consecrated wood where altars have been erected, and on the rejection of his sacrifice Cain is driven forth by the Spirits of Justice. In this scene Satan becomes enamored of Eve, and determines to possess Woman; but he is met by the prophecy: "Her seed shall bruise thy head and thou shalt bruise his heel." In the fourth act the curtain rises (supposed to be some centuries later) upon the Temple of Enoch, where Satan and his legions are in possession of the city, teaching vice and debauchery to the children of Cain, its inhabitants. In this scene occurs the second grand ballet. Noema and Japhet, the descendants of Eve, are betrothed; but the woman is tempted by Satan, whom she has seen weeping by the tomb of Eve. Her pity yields, through his diabolical power, to a sentiment of love. She abandons Japhet and falls into the tempter's embrace. The scene ends with the destruction of the temple, and the terror of the people at the approaching deluge. This act is a series of beautiful transformations, illustrating the effects of the deluge in all its fury. The people fall from ruined walls, rocks and trees, and are swept away by the waters. Satan appears upon a prominence pointing to Noema, who is clinging to him, the destruction of life, and declares himself to her as "The enemy of mankind." Noema implores the protection of heaven and precipitates herself into the torrent. Satan rejoices that her soul is his by suicide, but is confronted by Gabriel, who declares that her self-immolation has preserved her. Satan then rejoices that the earth is destroyed; but Gabriel points to the appearance of the ark, rainbow, and to the concluding tableau of the play representing and illustrating the prophecy. The woman is surrounded by angels, and is in the act of placing her heel on the serpent's head. Gabriel pronounces the final decree. "To woman, eternal bliss. To Satan, eternal torture!" Gustave Dore has been drawn on for the designs, and Voegtlin's scenery will be startling in its magnificent breadth and beauty.

An addition has been made to the manufacturing industries of our city by the house of B. LEVY & CO., who have commenced the manufacture of GLOVES at 102 Kearny St., entrance on Post. Their principal cutter has gained his knowledge of the business in the manufactures of Paris; and with the experience thus acquired, he guarantees to give entire satisfaction to his patrons. Garments made to order fit and become the wearer better than those purchased ready made; gloves are no exception to this rule, and as the coat is no more than the imported article, and manufactured from newer and better material, intending buyers would do well to get acquainted at the establishment.

ILLUSTRATED ADVERTISING CARDS, all styles. Over 500 pictorial designs. All the latest sensations in business cards, to be had of L. Delteneray & Co., 35 Post St., San Francisco. Send for Catalogue.

JEWELRY is like everything else, it will by constant use get out of repair, and, unless placed in the hands of an artist, will meet with misfortune in the mending. A visit to the studio of Mr. F. A. ERRICO, at 230 KEARNEY STREET, up stairs, convinced us that, as a skilled artisan in his special line of repairing Coral Jewelry, he could not be equalled by any in this city; and the samples of Fine Jew Work he had on exhibition and for sale were of the most elaborate character, in design of endless variety and at prices to suit the capacity of every purchaser.

THE Acme Minstrels of this city gave a performance at Salinas City on the 8th inst., to a crowded house. The Democrat bubbles over in admiration of the entertainment, and devotes a whole column to the performance.

DURING the past three weeks the circulation of the Dramatic News has increased 1,500 copies. This is not an idle boast, and we can prove it to anybody who feels interested.—D. N.

How? On your word, or with "affidavits?" Affidavits don't go down with us out here, remember. And your word—oh, g'long!

When the president of a philanthropic society handles the money collected to compensate a free lecturer, and the same evening returns home with a new neerschbaum pipe, these circumstances constitute, to say the least, a train of evidence. Worcester Press.

Bob Burdette, of the Hawkeye, insinuates that Josh Billings can't walk a crack more than once or twice a month on an average. We are glad to perceive that the brilliant Hawkeye man is opposed to Billings' gait.—Stamford Advocate.

The Philadelphia Bulletin says it will write to Billy, of Germany, and respectfully suggest to his Majesty that telephone is a much nicer name than fernsprecher.

SATURDAY - - - FEBRUARY 16

California Theater

The engagement of the Majeronis will terminate with this evening's performance, when the Signor will give his superb rendition of "The Old Corporal." These gifted artists have met with an artistic success, if not a financial one, and the latter is attributed more to the antagonism of the elements than to any other cause. Our people do not like to turn out in the rain; in fact, they won't do it, no matter what the attraction may be. The Majeronis will fly eastward, and we can heartily recommend them as deserving of substantial recognition at the hands of our Atlantic friends. On Monday evening, after weeks of preparation, the grand spectacle of "The Deluge" will be presented, with new scenery by Voegtlin and his assistants. The costumes and armors were made in Paris, from designs by Gustave Dore. The complicated mechanical effects are by the veteran Torrence; cartonnages and paraphernalia by Gus Grenlock, and the entire spectacle will be generated by Belossy Kiralfy. We look for a succession of brilliant audiences next week.

Grand Opera House

Manager Kennedy is certainly reaping a harvest with "Uncle Tom's Cabin." The house is crowded nightly, and is likely to continue so for an indefinite time. The usual matinee this afternoon.

Baldwin's Theater

"Girofle-Girofla" is meeting with much encouragement at this favorite resort, and Miss Catherine Lewis, in the title role, gives supreme satisfaction. She is destined to become a bright star in opera bouffe. Matinee this afternoon.

Bush Street Theater

The address drama is still running here to a good business. We opine that there will be hundreds of bald-headed old cronies who will not know what to do with themselves in the evening when this troupe leaves.

Emerson's Opera House

Will be re-opened on Monday, with new combination and popular programme.

The Fountain

Savinier continues to entrance patrons of this pleasant resort by his delicious strains upon the cornet. An evening here is profitable and entertaining. The orchestra is under able management, and the popular compositions are given nightly with good execution and in much better style than usual at free concerts. Mr. Casimir is at present rusticated at Los Angeles, and during his absence our genial friend, Mr. Louis Alime, attends to the comfort of patrons and general management. Considering the most execrable sort of weather we have had during the past few weeks, the attendance is surprising.

Herold Matinee

On the third page, under Amusements, will be found the selections made for the Fifth Herold Matinee, on Wednesday next. Choice of seats at Gray's on Tuesday, or day of Concert till 1 P. M. The popular price and class of music will no doubt attract, as usual, a crowded house.

THEATRICAL GOSSIP, Etc.

ELLA WILTON appears as Eve next week. Oh—oh!

KEENE will play the devil in the "Deluge"—see if he don't.

MARY YOUNG has been playing Marco, in the "Marble Heart," at Piper's, Virginia City.

THERE is a "Danicheff" glove factory on Geary street. Soon we expect to hear of an "Uncle Tom" beer saloon or a "Deluge" candy store.

Isn't Billy Mestayer a little too bulky for Cain? Yet, come to think, that won't make much difference, as he is a first-class "clubber."

In the "Deluge" next week, we are to have a novelty—Miss Shattuck appears as "A Maiden." The sight will be doubtless very dazzling.

"SARDANAPALUS" will be gorgeously mounted at the Grand. The New York scenery and properties are on the way, having been purchased by Manager Kennedy.

FOREPAUGH will open his circus season in this city on March 11th. His performers embrace the names of David Hawley, now at the Bella Union, Frank Melville, Wm. Dutton, Mrs. Burdeau, Maj. Sam Cox, and John Barry. Filkins, Toole and Dingess will be his agents. G. B. Bowman will be the advertising agent. The menagerie is still wintering at Haywards.

MR. CHARLES H. GOODWIN, the efficient Business Manager at Baldwin's, has been tendered a complimentary benefit for Sunday, Feb. 24th. A host of our first-class talent have volunteered for the occasion, including Misses Catherine Lewis, Ellie Wilton, and Alice Harrison, Messrs. Keene, Bishop, Mestayer, and others. We understand the "Octoroon" has been chosen for the occasion.

FOOTLIGHT PELLETS

A NOVELTY in advertising is in prospect. An enterprising solicitor, after having successfully filled up all the dead walls, board fences, etc., in and around San Francisco, and desirous of utilizing all vacant places for the benefit of his patrons, has conceived the idea, which he expects to secure by letters patent, of hiring the vacant spaces seen every night in the front row of the Bush Street Theater, for the purpose of having painted thereon business advertisements. Just imagine the effect of seeing painted on top of every bald head in front of you "Buy your Shirts at Beamish's."

A GENTLE perfumer lately in business on Kearny street is expected to be able to pay his creditors one hundred cents on the dollar.

EASTERN THEATRICALS

THE P. I. man of the Herold says: "At Paris theaters professional laughers are employed. Not long ago, the programme of a theater being changed, one of these professional laughers made an uproar at a very serious place."

MISS C. V. WILLIAMS, a colored lady of Washington, will soon make her debut in that city as Parthenia, in "Hugomar," after which she will play Evadne, Juliet, and other roles of Miss Anderson's repertory. Miss Williams is said to be young and promising. She has secured the favor of the Washington press, and is compared favorably to the great Anna Boyle, "the fourteen-year-old Juliet." If there is to be any more light thrown upon the character of Juliet, let us have it, by all means.

ONE by one all the comforts of this life are taken away from the toiling millions. It used to be a great consolation for us to think in our poverty, that none of our rich neighbors could ever get to heaven. Now, alas; we are assured there is no place else for them to go. Oh, woe! Oh, wretched, harsh and inconsiderate world! Oh, dog gone it all.—Hawkeye.

DRAMATIC PIRATES

The Dramatic News refers to the prevailing habit of impecunious managers and wandering dramatic bohemians stenographically pilfering new plays of merit, and performing them throughout certain circuits as the originals—to the financial detriment of the owners and discouragement of the authors—and points particularly to certain persons on this coast who are guilty of the practice. The News has good grounds for its accusations. To our own knowledge, plays which we could name have been stenographically stolen from the private boxes of our leading theaters by reporters hired by dishonest persons, who fly to the interior towns and produce them—thus reaping the reward of others' brains and labor, in defiance of the copyright law and every other law. Another ingenious method of obtaining copies of manuscript plays—known only to the wily, unscrupulous manager—is to bribe the prompter or some stage underling, who has become familiar with the business and lines of a play, to jot it down from memory. In most cases this succeeds, for there are few behind the scenes who do not become thoroughly familiarized with a piece that has any kind of a run; and it is a very easy matter for a party to confine himself to his room and place the same on paper. For a few paltry dollars there are many persons who, we regret to say, willingly undertake these jobs. Such unconscionable rogues should be rooted out, and forever debarred from appearing at a legitimate theater. Yet they are not so much to blame as the rascals who hire them; and it is these latter who enjoy the fruits of the thefts.

Authors and owners of meritorious plays are thus illegitimately deprived of the beneficiary results of their brains, labor and money. They have no recourse. True, they can enjoin; yet it would take the Bank of California to defend suits in every town and hamlet where such representations occur, and even if they did this, the unscrupulous manager would probably be hundreds of miles away, repeating his nefarious business in other places. There is only one remedy that we know of, and that is a complete expose of the business, with the names of the unscrupulous parties engaged in it. We trust the News will proceed in the work, and we will guarantee to help it out. The same paper concludes a well-written article upon the subject as follows:

"For our own part, we can see no difference between stealing a bale of dry goods and stealing a play. In both cases the pecuniary injury is the same, and Congress should pass some enactment making it a criminal and indictable offense to purloin dramatic productions properly protected. The penalty attached to the unauthorized production of a play, i. e., $100 for the first offense, and $50 for every repetition of it, is practically a dead letter. Such men as steal plays have nothing to sneer at and can afford to laugh—and they do laugh at any sort of civil process. Several eminent lawyers whom we have addressed on this subject give it as their opinion that literary theft is indictable like any other theft. We should like to have a test case made of it with one of these Western pests, and see them all brought up with a round turn. It is absolutely necessary that something definite be done regarding such a crying evil."

An addition has been made to the manufacturing industries of our city by the house of B. LEVY & CO., who have commenced the manufacture of GLOVES at 102 Kearny St., entrance on Post. Their principal cutter has gained his knowledge of the business in the manufactures of Paris, and with the experience thus acquired, he guarantees to give entire satisfaction to his patrons. Garments made to order fit and become the wearer better than those purchased ready made; gloves are no exception in this rule, and as the cost is no more than the imported article, and manufactured from newer and better material, intending buyers would do well to get acquainted at the establishment.

JEWELRY is like everything else, it will by constant use get out of repair, and, unless placed in the hands of an artist, will meet with misfortune in the mending. A visit to the studio of Mr. F. A. EHRLICH, at 300 KEARNEY STREET, up stairs, convinced us that, as a skilled artisan in his special line of repairing Coral Jewelry, he could not be equaled by any in this city; and the samples of Filigree Work he had on exhibition and for sale were of the most elaborate character, in designs of endless variety and at prices to suit the capacity of every purchaser.

Church Rules for Ladies

Dress hard all morning, such is fate,
Then enter church some minutes late.
All eyes will then be turned on you,
And will observe your bonnet new.
Let humble modesty wreath your face,
And take your seat with faultless grace.
Let all your thoughts be fixed on high,
And rearrange your cardinal tie.
Think how religion's prone to bless,
And criticise your neighbor's dress.
Let your heart be filled with praise,
And notice Mrs. Miggie's lace.
Put from your mind all thoughts of sin,
And readjust your diamond pin.
Think of how religion proves,
And then smooth out your buttoned gloves.
Catch well the precepts as they fall,
And smooth the wrinkles in your shawl.
Think of the sinner's fearful fate,
And notice if your bonnet's straight.
Pray for influence divine—
That lady's basque, mark the design.
Let tender peace possess your mind,
And criticise that hat behind.
Reflect on certain graces dear,
And fix your curls behind your ear.
Let your heart warm with silent prayer,
And view that horrid green silk there.
Reflect upon the wicked's ways,
See if your gold chain's out of place.
Think of the peace the good will find,
And wonder who are sitting behind.
Think of the burdens Christians bear,
And notice those strange Indies there.
The last words bear with contrite heart,
And fix your pull-back 'ere you start.

WANTED - Twenty Young Ladies for the Ballet.

THE CELEBRATED Cucamonga Rancho

CONTAINING 13,000 ACRES

is now being surveyed and subdivided into ten, twenty and forty acre farms, and will be sold at $25 to $30 per acre.

WITH WATER FREE

one-sixth Cash, balance in one, two, three, four and five years, with interest on deferred payments at eight per cent per annum.

LOCATION

Midway between Pomona and Colton, San Bernardino County, California. Soil unsurpassed in fertility. Climate best in the State—no injurious frosts ever known in the Valley. Water in abundance from San Antonio Creek and Cucamonga Creek, which run through the land. Fifty families already located in the valley, and many orange orchards already set out. The Southern Pacific Railroad, from San Francisco to the Colorado River, runs for about three miles through the tract.

Artesian wells can be had upon any portion of the land. San Bernardino Valley is the best naturally watered of the State of California. It is worthy of mention, however, that artesian wells are numerous, as the valley is bounded on the northeast and south by high mountains, partly snow-capped the year round, which furnish a large area of water shed; superficial and subterranean water is therefore abundant. The surface streams we have already described, and it now remains to give particulars of the wells. Formerly the artesian wells were only of two-inch bore, and the water was always obtained at a depth of 45 to 150 feet. They are now of larger bore, and water in abundance is obtained at a depth of 100 to 150 feet. On the north side of the Santa Ana River the average depth of artesian wells is 100 feet, while on the south side the average depth is greater.

At an elevation of 133 feet above the level of the valley there is a well which, at a depth of 132 feet, produces sufficient water to drive a turbine wheel.

There are now over 200 flowing artesian wells in San Bernardino Valley, and we are convinced that their number can be increased at the option of the inhabitants, not only for irrigation, but also for manufacturing purposes.

Oranges, Lemons, Limes, Figs, Olives, Almonds, Walnuts and all semi-tropical fruits grow abundantly. Arrangements can be made to plant any number of Orange Trees, three to four years old, four to five feet high, seventy trees to the acre, and guarantee them, for $100 per acre, also for planting other fruit or shade trees at a reasonable cost.

RICHIE'S FRENCH HOTEL, one of the best in the southern portion of the State, is located upon the tract, and settlers will there find a pleasant economical home until they get their houses built.

For full particulars, maps, etc., apply to E. P. NORWOOD, Agent on the land, to C. F. CHUBBICK, Agent at Colton, San Bernardino County, or to the

ADVERTISERS

WILL FIND THE LIST OF 70 PAPERS, GENERALLY known as "Patent Outlets," one of the cheapest and best means of reaching the people in all parts of the Pacific Coast. On the aggregate these papers are read by a quarter of a million people, and our advertisements are placed in our well selected reading matter. As one side of these papers is printed in San Francisco, only one cent is required in illustrated advertisements, when it would require 50 to send the order direct to the publisher of each paper. An advertisement occupying one square (10 lines space) will be inserted one time in the entire list for $7—only 10 cents per paper.

An ordinary circular can be printed in this list, set in the space of one-fourth of a double column, and inserted once for One Dollar per paper. By this method circulars are more likely to be read and preserved, and the cost is not more than one-fourth of what it would be to print and distribute the same number through so many sections. California Theater

While we have been having sort of a deluge on the outside, to-night on the inside, we are to have another, only with more elaborate effect, and with the satisfaction of knowing, that while everything is wet all around, we will be dry as a chip. We have descended upon the beauties to be seen in the "Deluge," as it will be produced at the California to-night, so further remark would be superfluous. Doubtless a crammed audience will be present.

Grand Opera House

The rush to see Uncle Tom continues, and the tide has not yet reached its flood, for many are holding back until the present rain storm is over, before going. To every one who wishes to forget all about the weather, and get in good humor with themselves and the rest of the world, we say go to the Grand and spend an evening watching the darkeys in their plantation performances.

Bush Street Theater

To-night the spectacle of the "Forty Thieves" will be repeated, introducing the famous Parisian can-can, with Mlle. Corsi as the saltatorial attraction. The dance will be given in all its pristine magnificence.

Emerson's Opera House

This popular theater will be re-opened to night with an attractive programme, which will be found on third page under Amusements. We wish the energetic managers success.

The Fountain

To get shelter from a shower, we dropped into this popular resort on Saturday evening, and spent a very pleasant half hour there. Manager Sufferhill recommended Boca, which, upon trial, proved to be one of the best malt liquors we have ever seen in either glass or bulk; it turned out clear as amber, cool as the mountain snow where it was brewed, and crowned with just the right amount of foam. Prof. Stohr wielded the baton, and his orchestra discoursed a select potpourri. Savinier is one of our solid men, and held up his end of the music in good style. Seen through the smoke of a fragrant Havana, we came near mistaking Monsieur Violino-primo Cellarini for the Right Honorable Lord Dundreary, but our reverie was dispelled upon discussion of about 14 inches of Frankforter, served with cold potato salad and coffee; and for a nice tasty lunch—with all the luxuries of the market to choose from—we can recommend our hungry friends to try The Fountain.

Herold Matinee

The success that has attended the present season has induced the managers to announce a second series of six concerts, commencing Wednesday, March 6th. Seats can be secured from Mr. Schutz, at Gray's music store. On Wednesday next the fifth of the present season will be given.

THEATRICAL GOSSIP, Etc.

JOE JEFFERSON commences an engagement at the California Theater in April.

"SOLOM STINGLE" OWENS is under engagement at the California.

MODJESKA rejoices in the possession of a daughter sixteen years old.

The Richings-Bernard troupe are stuck in Denver. Freak of creditors. Pierre!—oh, Pierre! Appear!

MR. AND MRS. JOHN JACK will leave for Honolulu and Australia on to-day's steamer.

NEW YORK is tiring of Edwin Booth. If she will wait a few weeks, we'll send her John Hart.

THE Patmans, for a long time at the California Theater, are at present playing in Dublin.

WE miss the name of little Gracie Plained in the "Deluge" east. Why, oh why, are we treated thusly, Barton?

WILLIE SEYMOUR left the Union Square Company at Ogden, and arrived in this city last night.

ELLIE WILTON contemplates a trip to Paris and London for the purpose of devoting a year to dramatic study.

THE matinee at the Grand on Saturday was one of the largest ever assembled within its walls. Reminded us of the "Snowflake" times.

THE Majeronis will probably play an engagement at Piper's Opera House. J. H. St. Maur, formerly of the Footlight, has been appointed their business agent.

THE can-can, with all its magnificent exaggeration, will be given at the Bush Street Theater to-night. We dread the jam, and propose to be in our seat at 5 o'clock.

CIPRICO says the nobility in England did him great homage. Unfortunately for him, that's more than the people did during his professional career there. George is now in New York.

THE opera bouffe season at Baldwin's has summarily concluded. On Friday evening next Miss Lewis will be the recipient of a benefit. The company will go to the interior, playing at Oakland, Santa Cruz, Stockton, Sacramento and Virginia. They may go to Oregon and British Columbia after their return.

A NEW paper, called the Professional World, has just been started in New York. It proposes to usurp the place of the Dramatic News, which has made itself unpopular to certain branches of the profession. The World is a good specimen of journalistic beauty, but we are afraid it pays too much attention to the variety business. However, we welcome it among our exchanges.

WE acknowledge receipt from Mr. Culver of a copy of Report of the Twelfth Mechanics' Institute Exhibition. It contains a mass of useful and very suggestive information relative to the industrial resources and products of the Pacific Coast. An announcement is made of the Exhibition for the present year, to be held at the pavilion, from August 5th to September 7th. Full particulars to be published at an early date.

JOHN JACK disclaims any association in the recent contemplated production of "Baby" at Emerson's Opera House, and says that Fitzgerald—the handsome Fitz—deceived Mrs. Emerson, and when there was a prospect of legal trouble, backed square out, and took sides with her opponents—which is probably the true state of the case. The question is, where did Fitz get hold of a copy of "Baby"? Was it not pilfered in Chicago by some hired stenographer, and sent on to him here? Echo answers.

THAT veteran annihilator of conjugal bliss, Harry Eytting, formerly of this city, at one time engaged at the old Metropolitan Theater at $80 per week to play (!) Claude Melnotte and leading characters, has again become matrimonially notorious—this time at Dayton, Ohio. An injured woman (stun) doubtless by disgust at the recent marriage of the libidinous old fellow to a beautiful young lady, some thirty years his junior, and claiming Harry as her husband, has been making it quite warm for him. But he, with a facile pen, ridicules the claim and attempts to expose her. Public sympathy, however, appears to be on her side.

Stray Bits from Mother Wits

The man who got up that patent water-pipe should try his hand on "a patent corrugated bank warranted not to burst."—New York Commercial Advertiser.

An exchange heads an item: "The Killing of Henry Jones Once More," and now the question arises, how many times can a man be killed.—Richmond Enquirer.

Now doth the little boy, armed with a shingle, dive head first into an empty sugar barrel, and come out with the brand of Cain upon his brow.—Cincinnati Saturday Night.

A Danbury man says he knew about those moons in Mars two months ago, but as the times were so hard he didn't think it would pay to do anything about it.—Danbury News.

One of the annoyances of gathering autumn leaves in Missouri is the fact that all the best trees are in daily use to cure men of the habit of horse stealing.—Detroit Free Press.

What is the difference between a person going to Plymouth church and one about to ask a lady a favor? One is going to see Beecher and the other is going to beseech her.—Puck.

Mother—"Child, haven't I told you not to stand so much before the glass?" Daughter—"Why, mother, you told me to read and reflect. I have been reading, and now I am reflecting."

It is true that philosophy can account for most things, but it has always failed to figure out a cat's reason for placing his tail where the dining room chairs can alight on it.—Rhinbeck Gazette.

Clara (bathing against medical orders).—"Oh, dear, there's the doctor on the cliff! What shall I do?" Laura—"Bob your head under water. He'll have passed in ten minutes."—London Fun.

A woman in Maine went to church without her bonnet on, and several papers are making a great fuss over it. We dare say she wore the bonnet, but it got hidden behind one of her ears.—Rochester Democrat.

Guest—"How did cabbages happen to grow in that alleyway? They certainly could not have been planted there." Acute porter—"La, no; that's where the gemen throw their Havana cigar stumps."—Philadelphia Press.

That boy who took down a hornet's nest and undertook to carry it home, thinking he had a bag of treasures, lost the bag on his way, but succeeded in getting the hornets to accompany him to his destination.—Hartford Sunday Globe.

Emile Reber, a clerk on a New Hampshire railroad, did not join the strikers, and now a brother in France has died and left him $80,000. People who have brothers in France cannot be too guarded in their conduct.—Danbury News.

A NEW BRACELET, outwardly of a most chaste, innocent and beautiful design, but inwardly a raving wolf, has just been invented and thrown on the market. It has a wicked little secret spring that reaches out and nips a fellow by the cuff the moment he touches it, and holds him there until "pa" can come into the parlor, and gazing sternly upon the affectionate and perturbed tableau, demand of the young man what are his intentions?—Hawkeye.

IT DIED.—A number of business men were seated in an office in the Moffat building yesterday. Conversation drifted to notes of hand.

"I'd rather have a man's word than his note," said one.

"If the maker is a property man a note is best, for in case of death it is good evidence of the indebtedness," said another.

"I once took a note," chimed in a stock speculator.

"And the man died?" queried the one who had last spoken.

"No," replied the speculator, "but the note did."

They all saw the point.

An addition has been made to the manufacturing industries of our city by the house of B. LEVY & CO., who have commenced the manufacture of GLOVES at 102 Kearny St., entrance on Post. Their principal cutter has gained his knowledge of the business in the manufactures of Paris, and with the experience thus acquired, he guarantees to give entire satisfaction to his patrons. Garments made to order fit and become the wearer better than those purchased ready made; gloves are no exception to this rule, and as the cost is no more than the imported article, and manufactured from newer and better material, intending buyers would do well to get acquainted at the establishment.

ILLUSTRATED ADVERTISING CARDS, all styles. Over 500 pictorial designs. All the latest sensations in business cards, to be had of L. DeBoncerry & Co., 50 Post St., San Francisco. Send for Catalogue.

JEWELRY is like everything else, it will by constant use get out of repair, and, unless placed in the hands of an artist, will meet with misfortune in the mending. A visit to the studio of M. F. A. LERICO, at 50 Kearny Street, upstairs, convinced us that, as a skillful artist in his special line of repairing Coral Jewelry, he could not be equalled by any in this city, and the examples of Fine Jewels he had on exhibition and for sale were of the most elaborate character, in design and ending variety and at prices to suit the capacity of every purchaser.

THE WORLD TO COME TO AN END IN 1880.—Many people take great comfort just now in repeating certain lines of "Mother Shipton's Prophecy," said to have been written in 1453:

In twelve hundred years the Bear
The Crescent shall assail,
But if the cock and bull unite,
The Bear shall not prevail.
But look! in twelve ten years again—
Let Islam know and fear—
The Cross shall wax, the Crescent wane, Grow pale and disappear.

"Twice two hundred years," from 1453, brings us to 1853. This was the beginning of the "Crimean war," France (the "cock") and England (the "bull") declared war in alliance with Turkey (Islam) against Russia (the "bear"), in March, 1854. In 1856 peace was concluded by congress at Paris. "The bear did not prevail." "Twice ten years" from this period brings us to 1876, during which year the disturbances commenced in Herzegovina, Bosnia and Bulgaria, Montenegro and Serbia, which finally involved the Porte in war.

This is a good fit so far, but Mother Shipton proceeds to say:

Gold shall be found and grown
In a land that's not yet known.
Fire and water shall wonders do,
England at last shall admit a Jew,
The world to an end shall come
In eighteen hundred and eighty-one.

If all this is true, the man elected President in 1880 will hardly get settled in his seat.

FAMILY PARAGRAPH.—On being consulted about it, Spikes says that Uncle Sam anticipates the transfer of the Indian Bureau to some mother department, and if this should father improve the condition of the children of the forest, in sundry ways, by consign them to be more comfortable, it would be a nice arrangement and daughter be made. We are inclined in nephew instances, to agree with the grammar, but not the spelling.—Graphic.

WANTED—Twenty Young Ladies for t Ballet.

THE CELEBRATED Cucamonga Rancho

CONTAINING 13,000 ACRES

is now being surveyed and subdivided into ten, twenty and forty acre farms, and will be sold at $25 to $30 per acre,

WITH WATER FREE

one-sixth Cash, balance in one, two, three, four and five years, with interest on deferred payments at eight percent per annum.

LOCATION

Midway between Pomona and Colton, San Bernardino County, California. Soil unsurpassed in fertility. Climate best in the State—no injurious frosts ever known in the Valley. Water in abundance from San Antonio Creek and Cucamonga Creek, which run through the land. Fifty families already located in the valley, and many orange orchards already set out. The Southern Pacific Railroad, from San Francisco to the Colorado River, runs for about three miles through the tract.

Artesian wells have been bored upon a portion of the land. San Bernardino Valley is the best naturally watered of the State of California. It is worthy of mention, however, that artesian wells are numerous, as the valley is bounded on the north and south by high mountains, partly snow-capped the year round, which furnish a large area of water shed. Superior artesian water is therefore abundant. The surface streams we have already described, and it now remains to give particulars of the wells. Formerly the artesian wells were only of two-inch bore, and the water was a ways of laid out at a depth of 45 to 140 feet. They are now of larger bore, and water in abundance is obtained at a depth of 100 to 150 feet. On the north side of the Santa Ana River the average depth of artesian wells is 100 feet, while on the south side the average depth is greater.

At an elevation of 101 feet above the level of the valley there is a well which, at a depth of 132 feet, produces sufficient water to drive a turbine wheel.

There are now over 200 flowing artesian wells in San Bernardino Valley, and we are convinced that their number can be increased at the option of the inhabitants in any form of irrigation, but also for domestic and other purposes.

Oranges, Lemons, Limes, Figs, Olives, Almonds, Walnuts and all semi-tropical fruits grow abundantly. Arrangements can be made to plant any number of Orange Trees, three to four years old, four to five feet high, seventy trees to the acre, and guarantee them for $100 per acre, also for planting other fruit or shade trees at a reasonable cost.

RICHES FRENCH HOTEL, one of the best in the southern portion of the State, is located upon the tract, and settlers will there find a pleasant economical home until they get their houses built.

For full particulars, maps, circulars etc. apply to E. P. N. IRWOOD, Agent on the land, to C. E. CHERRILL, Agent at Colton, San Bernardino County; or to the

ADVERTISERS

WILL FIND THE LIST OF 70 PAPERS, GENERALLY known as "Patent Outlets," one of the cheapest and best means of reaching the people in all parts of the Pacific Coast. On the aggregate these papers are read by a quarter of a million people, and our advertisements are placed, near well selected reading matter. As one side of these papers is printed in San Francisco, only one cent is required to illustrate advertisements, when it would require 70 to send the order direct to the publisher of each paper. An advertisement occupying one square (10 lines space) will be inserted one time in the entire list for $2—only 10 cents per paper.

An ordinary circular can be printed in this list, set in the space of one-fourth of a double column, and inserted once for One Dollar per paper. By this method circulars are more likely to be read and preserved, and the cost is not more than one-fourth of what it would be to print and distribute the same number through so many sections. California Theater

The obstinacy of the clements last evening only permitted of a fair attendance at this theater; and perhaps the people thought they were getting too much of a deluge as it was. The piece, however, was presented on a scale of great magnificence, as far as mounting and scenery were concerned, although Voegtlin does not appear at his best in it—some of his scenes showing a palpable injustice to his brnsh. The ballet did not appear, owing to a break in the line of the railroad. The dancers arrived at the theater in an exhausted state shortly before the curtain arose, and Barton Hill, in sympathy with their condition, immediately submitted it to a vote whether or not the play should proceed without the ballet. The audience accepted the apology good naturedly, and the saltatorians were sent to their little beds. To-night the piece will be perfect in all details, and as the weather at this writing bids "fair" to be nice, an overflowing audience will doubtless be present.

Grand Opera House

Uncle Tom's second week bid's fair to eclipse the first in point of attendance. Mr. Kennedy has not disappointed his friends in their estimate of his business management.

Baldwin's Theater

A complimentary benefit for Friday evening has been tendered to Miss Catherine Lewis. By special request she will assume the dual character of "Giroile-Giroffia," in which she has lately appeared with so much success. Mr. Fred. Lyster will conduct the orchestra.

Bush Street Theatre.

The new attraction—the Parisian Can-Can—filled the house with a select circle of the libidinous last evening, despite the protestations of Jupiter Pluvius. The audience, we imagine, were a little disappointed, expecting to see a very broad performance— which they didn't. True, there was a sort of magnificent nastiness about it, yet it was not so broad but that one might take his big brother to see it. Together with other antics of the feminine, it will be repeated to-night.

Emerson's Opera House

On account of the inclemency of the weather the opening of Emerson's was deferred until this evening, when W. A. Chapman, the illusionist, will make his appearance. See programme.

The Fountain

One of the best selections yet offered is on the programme for to-night. Refreshments served here in every style, and doors open till 12 P. M.

Herold Matinee

To-morrow afternoon at the new Metropolitan Temple, Fifth st., nearly opposite the U. S. Mint, the fifth concert of the present season will be given. See programme on third page.

THEATRICAL GOSSIP, Etc.

THE Platonic Society will give one of their select parties at Pacific Hall to-morrow evening.

THE attendance, during the extended run of "The Exiles," in Boston, has exceeded 190,000.

THE Philomathic and Musical Centennial Club give a social entertainment and anniversary party at 643 Market Street, on Thursday evening.

THE costumers of our city are quite busy making preparations for the Italian Masquerade Party and Ball, to be held at Platt's Hall, March 6th.

THE benefit announced for next Sunday evening at Baldwin's has been tendered to a rising young gentleman, at present Assistant Treasurer, and brother of Mr. Frank L. Goodwin, who is now in the East on business connected with the theater.

WE have received from the publishers No. 1 of Pierce's Magnetic Journal, a monthly paper for the people. Within the vignette the legend E Pluribus Unum is a very appropriate index to the columns, as they are mostly filled with extracts from many sources. Choice bits of reading matter, suitable for the farmer, winer, or family reading.

I HEARD a very good thing on the renowned tragedian that America recently lent us for so short a time. In speaking to some Americans in London of the society he had met during his brief engagement at the Surrey Theater, he said: "Yes, I have met all kinds of aristocratic people, and they all make so much of me, too; why, only yesterday a certain lord took me out to drive, and we drove up to Hampden Court to see the Queen, but she was out." A lady present suggested that she may have gone marking. Ciprico didn't know about that, but was expecting her card with an invitation to call. And yet, you would be so cruel as to deprive us of him. Cruel America!—London Correspondent to Dramatic News.

Sacramento Letter

SACRAMENTO, CAL., Feb. 17, 1878.

ED. FOOTLIGHT: The Black Crook Combination, under the immediate management of Mr. Frank Lawlor, to whose exertions we are indebted for the most complete arrangements, and attention to all those details which serve to make an audience comfortable, opened on Monday evening last, and closed last evening, playing to a very good business during the entire week.

Among the company we were pleased to recognize many familiar faces, as well as old friends, and we trust they left us yesterday convinced that their welcome to Sacramento was a generous one, and they can count upon its repetition in case of another visit. After such an elaborate production of the "Black Crook" at the California Theater, it would be folly to particularize upon its representation here. The scenery was refreshing to the patrons of our dilapidated theater, when nightly the plastering is seen to fall into the laps of ladies seated in the dress circle. The superior dancing of Mills, DeRosa and Paduin, aided by the skillful ballet, the singing of the Elm Sisters, and the wonderful gymnastic performance of the Vaidis Sisters called forth nightly applause. The oldest of the Vaidis Sisters performed an act which, I am told, was not given at the California Theater. It consisted of swinging from a platform suspended from the dome, while blindfolded and with her head enveloped in a sack, turning a somersault and catching a rope suspended perpendicularly from the arch over the stage. It was certainly a daring feat, and these young girls deserve to be classed as the foremost gymnasts of the age.

WE hear that a company styling themselves "The Baizer Combination," formed in your city, contemplate paying us a visit shortly. We know nothing of the character of this entertainment. If not first-class they had better forget Sacramento.

ON dit.—The Catherine Lewis Opera Bouffe Company are coming. Next Thursday evening there will be a Greco-Roman wrestling match between Louis Carteron and Professor Alfred Perrier. The former claims the championship of the East, and the latter of the Pacific Coast. Marcus Mayer and Mr. W. H. Fitzgerald will open the Metropolitan Theater on Monday the 24th, with "Uncle Tom's Cabin" (new version), promising a double quartette of jubilee sinners, with specialties in the plantation scenes. Miss Sallie Hunkley, an old time Sacramentoan, is named for the character of "Eliza," and for the sake of "And Lang Syne," she will meet with a cordial reception at the Capitol. Miss Kate Lorence will commence walking her 100 miles in 28 consecutive hours at the Pavilion, on Tuesday, the 26th inst. The many friends of this young pedestrian will watch her progress with much interest.

Referring again to the ballet in the "Black Crook," in justice to the people who go to the theatre to witness "thin dancing," it is necessary to note the fact that giggling, ogling, laughing and conversing in tones loud enough to be distinctly understood in the dress circle, prevailed to such an extent some evenings as to greatly mar the performance. It is time some one in authority should enforce rigid discipline and stop this nuisance.

VIATOR.

AFTER all, though, I doubt whether public opinion has not been so debauched by burlesque, and by the satirized farce-comedy now in vogue, as to be disinclined to tolerate the production of serious plays. Horse-collar is your only wear, nowadays. On the first night people come and not to the stalls merely; notably to the front rows of the pit, where you nearly always find the same faces—determined to "guy" any expressions of sentiment of whatever kind. Love, rage, revenge, avrice, are passions to be "chaffed"; the explosion of a pistol is received with a roar; the drawing of a dagger gives rise to a comic cry of terror among the farceurs in the audience. They would howl at the ghost in "The Corsican Brothers," and salute the fainting woman clinging on the door in "Pauline" with a cry of "Whoo, Emma!" London Writer.

AN addition has been made to the manufacturing industry of our city by the house of B. LEVY & CO., who have commenced the manufacture of GLOVES at 402 Kearny St., entrance on Post. Their principal cutter has gained his knowledge of the business in the manufactures of Paris, and with the experience thus acquired, he guarantees to give entire satisfaction to his patrons. Garments made to order fit and become the wearer better than those purchased ready made; gloves are no exception to this rule, and as the cost is no more than the imported article, and manufactured from newer and better material, intending buyers would do well to get acquainted at the establishment.

Washington Letter

WE have received the following in relation to the new play of "Mad Cap Violet," transcribed and arranged for the stage by Miss Ella Stockton, a favorite here and at San Jose, who enacted the heroine:

Miss Stockton has succeeded in producing a very entertaining drama out of the material furnished by a recently published romance entitled "Mad Cap Violet." It was performed at Ford's Opera House last evening. The character of the Mischievous Mad Cap being peculiarly fitted to Miss Stockton's line of acting. She secured in youth, figure, rollicking vivacity, and in the feeling display of the sympathetic emotions, the perfect embodiment of the unrestrained boarding-school miss, who graduated through the different scenes, from the wayward school girl to the heartbroken woman. The play attracted an audience that completely filled Ford's Theatre with cultured and fashionable people, and Miss Stockton has reason to feel proud of the success of her efforts. The taste and culture of this lady have fitted her to adorn the higher walks of the legitimate drama, and the Washington journals have awarded her many tributes to her ability, both as a dramatist and an actress.

TOMMY B., walking one evening along a back street, in which the stage-door of the theater is situated, saw two richly dressed and much befurred young ladies passing through the swing-door into the theater. Two loafers were lounging on the curb. "Uho, 'Arry," said No. 1, "there goes a couple of real hactresses." Said No. 2: "Them is two ladies of the bully. Why, they're a sight too swell for the hactresses!"

THE CELEBRATED Cucamonga Rancho

CONTAINING 13,000 ACRES

Is now being surveyed and subdivided into ten, twenty and forty acre farms, and will be sold at $25 to $30 per acre.

WITH WATER FREE

one-sixth Cash, balance in one, two, three, four and five years, with interest on deferred payments at eight per cent per annum.

LOCATION

Midway between Pomona and Colton, San Bernardino County, California. Soil unsurpassed in fertility. Climate best in the State—no injurious frosts ever known in the Valley. Water in abundance from San Antonio Creek and Cucamonga Creek, which run through the land. Fifty families already located in the valley, and many orange orchards already set out. The Southern Pacific Railroad, from San Francisco to the Colorado River, runs for about three miles through the tract.

Artesian wells can be had upon any portion of the land. San Bernardino Valley is the best naturally watered of the State of California. It is worthy of mention, however, that artesian wells are numerous, as the valley is bounded on the northeast and south by high mountains, partly snow-capped the year round, which furnish a large area of water shed; superficial and subterranean water is therefore abundant. The surface streams we have already described, and it now remains to give particulars of the wells. Formerly the artesian wells were only of two-inch bore, and the water was always obtained at a depth of 45 to 150 feet. They are now of larger bore, and water in abundance is obtained at a depth of 100 to 150 feet. On the north side of the Santa Ana River the average depth of artesian wells is 100 feet, while on the south side the average depth is greater.

At an elevation of 100 feet above the level of the valley there is a well which, at a depth of 132 feet, produces sufficient water to drive a turbine wheel.

There are now over 200 flowing artesian wells in San Bernardino Valley, and we are convinced that their number can be increased at the option of the inhabitants, not only for irrigation, but also for manufacturing purposes.

Oranges, Lemons, Limes, Figs, Olives, Almonds, Walnuts and all semi-tropical fruits grow abundantly. Arrangements can be made to plant any number of Orange Trees, three to four years old, four to five feet high, seventy trees to the acre, and guarantee them, for $100 per acre; also for planting other fruit or shade trees at a reasonable cost.

MICHAEL'S FRENCH HOTEL, one of the best in the southern portion of the State, is located upon the tract, and settlers will there find a pleasant economical home until they get their houses built.

For full particulars, maps, circulars etc., apply to E. P. NORWOOD, Agent on the land; to C. E. CHUBBUCK, Agent at Colton, San Bernardino County; or to the

ADVERTISERS

WILL FIND THE LIST OF 70 PAPERS, GENERALLY known as "Patent Outlets," one of the cheapest and best means of reaching the people in all parts of the Pacific Coast. On the aggregate these papers are read by a quarter of a million people, and our advertisements are placed near well selected reading matter. As one side of these papers is printed in San Francisco, only one cut is required. In illustrated advertisements, when it would require 70 to send the order direct to the publisher of each paper. An advertisement occupying one square (10 lines agate) will be inserted one time in the entire list for $7—only 10 cents per paper.

An ordinary circular can be printed in this list, set in the space of one-fourth of a double column, and inserted once for One Dollar per paper. By this method circulars are more likely to be read and preserved, and the cost is not more than one-fourth of what it would be to print and distribute the same number through so many sections. California Theater

The agreeable change in the weather yesterday had the effect of filling the California last night with a delighted audience. The "Deluge" was given in a most complete manner, the little imperfections of the previous evening having been remedied, and the Kiralfy ballet troupe making its appearance. The characters have been toned down a little, and are now quite ably personated. We anticipate a successful run of the piece.

Grand Opera House

Crowded houses every night. New changes of business introduced in the plantation scenes for the present week. We defer an extended notice.

Baldwin's Theater

A complimentary benefit to Miss Catherine Lewis will be given here on the evening of Washington's Birthday, Friday, 22d. "Giroldo-Girolda" will be given.

Bush Street Theater

The "Forty Thieves," now being produced at this place, is made quite attractive by the novelty of the Parisian can-can, given in true American style. The first part of the entertainment and the interlude are quite entertaining, but there seems to be a lack of judgment on the part of the burlesquers in giving force to the jeu d'esprit and bon mots with which the "Forty Thieves" abounds, and it would be well for Miss Mabel, if she is the directress, to properly instruct her fawns in this essential. The entertainment, as a whole, is quite pleasing.

Emerson's Opera House

This house was closed again last evening, and nothing certain about performance for to-night, although we publish programme under amusements.

The Fountain

Notwithstanding the many attractions elsewhere, the promenade concerts given at this Hall continue in popularity. Matinee every Sunday afternoon, when a choice musical selection will be given by Prof. Stohr's orchestra. M. Sabinier, solo cornetist.

Herold Matinee

The Metropolitan Temple will doubtless be filled this afternoon with the elite of our society, or at least that portion of them representing lovers of concords of sweet sounds who may between the hours of 3 and 4 P. M., with truth in the words of Lorenzo to Jessica, say, "Here will we sit and let the sound of music creep in our ears." Our citizen capitalist, Mr. M. Reese, who by his regular attendance that money making is not the sole aim and pleasure of life.

THAT gem of melody from L'Eclair, "Quand de la Nuit," was played as a horn solo, with orchestral accompaniment, at the "Deluge" last night, with more artistic finish than usual at the California. The execution was faultless, and the intonation perfect.

THERE are rumors that De Witt Talmage's Theater is about to be closed for lack of paying patronage. They say he doesn't act so well as he did, and only brings out old and threadbare plays. He should get acquainted with Bonicault or Joe Cook, and steal something new.

AN eminent actor, not unknown in San Francisco, is now at Belfast, Ireland, and is thus announced in the papers of that city: "Barry Sullivan as Macbeth, Hamlet, The Gamester, Claude Melnotte, Richelieu, and Richard III., Theater Royal, Belfast, every evening during the week."

"God bless the women's dresses!" said a prominent actor, as he tread upon a lady's train yesterday, and bumped his head against a lamp-post. At least, he said something of the kind; there may be one word wrong, but we give his remark as correctly as we could remember it.

"GREASE the Griddle, Birdie Darling," a beautiful new song and chorus by the author of "Baug my Scalplocks o'er my Forehead," will have a greater run than any piece since "Darling, I am Growing Old." The melody is simple and plaintive. Price, twenty-five cents. Arranged for barber-shop guitars and French harps, thirty-five cents.

Grease the Griddle, Birdie Darling—
Grease it o'er with lambent Lard,
Pour the Buckwheat Batter on it
From the Bowl so Brown and Hard.
And in order that the Buckwheat
Be not scorched and Burned and Bore,
Grease the Griddle in Proportion—
Grease the Griddle, Birdie, dear.

This beautiful song may be obtained at all music stores, or by remitting the cost price to the publishers.

The Sweet Singer of Michigan

Officer Joe Sewers came to the Central Police Station last night about tucked out. He was conveying into port a mastless, dismantled wreck of a frigate whose hull was almost ready to sink beneath the fierce waves of the Dead (drunk) Sea. In short, the fellow was very drunk. Joe wiggled his man across the floor and propped him up against the office desk. Then the discouraged, wind-broken officer drew a long breath and sipped the sweat from his proud forehead.

"Found this snoozer serenading the girls down on Longworth street, Lieutenant," explained Joe, by snatches, as he began to recover his wind.

"What's your name?"
Lieut. Meyers addressed this question to the leaning tower hanging to the desk.

"Smi name?"

"Yes, that's what I asked."

He now tried to get his watering eyes fixed upon the Lieutenant's and while vigorously posing his head on his neck for this purpose, he at the same time assumed a grin which threatened to crawl clear round his head and meet on the other side.

"Don't reckonize, me, 'spoze?"

He attempted to brace up preparatory to giving the officers a surprise, but the left knee-joint just then went shut like a jack-knife, and had not Sewers caught him by the collar, there would have been a man on the floor. He hooked one arm over the desk, and thus safely lodged, announced himself:

"I'm Sweet Singer 'fmichigan." And he began to hum, "Life on the ocean wa (hic) have—"

"Here, cheese that, and give me your name," admonished the Lieutenant.

"I'm ther Shest Slinger 'fmichigan—"

"Darliu' hyham going rolled."

"Will you tell me your name?"

"Zhertainly; I'm-er Meat Skinner Flichigan—" Faver drent fraver, kmoome 'th'm' now."

"This is terrible," moaned Lieutenant Riley, "and we only get $400 a year. See here you old duffer, please tell me your name?"

"Zaetly, zaetly. B'hold 'fore you the Slees Sinner 'f Miehe (hic)—'Hol' fort time comin'—"

"Tell me your name or I'll murder you, you red-faced old idiot."

"Wh-what're been doin' lash zhour—"

"I'm Sleep Winger 'f Shichigan—I'm mofloat, 'mfloat."

His greasy arm lost its catch on the counter and something dropped. Sewers picked him up and with Charley's help toted him back to a cell, while he kept insisting on it that "I'm Street Spinner flichigan."

He stretched his body on the cell cot and went to sleep humming:

"M'tired now'n zhleepy to (hic) boo, put m'u my mittle med."—(Cincinnati Enquirer.

An addition has been made to the manufacturing industries of our city by the house of B. LEVY & CO., who have commenced the manufacture of GLOVES at 102 Kearny St., entrance on Post. Their principal cutter has gained his knowledge of the business in the manufacturing of Paris, and with the experience thus acquired, he guarantees to give entire satisfaction to his patrons. Buffalo Letter

BUFFALO, Feb. 9, 1878.

ED. FOOTLIGHT.—At the Academy this week Rose Eyttinge, as "Cleopatra," attracted large audiences. She was assisted by Mr. Harry Colton, as "Antony," and a poor company, most of whom did not even know their lines properly. Mlle. Betty Rigi and a full ballet corps was a pleasing feature of the performance.

Miss Eyttinge certainly looked very handsome, dressed exquisitely, and acted the suspicious part of the Queen to perfection, but that was all. She bears her forty Summers well.

At the St. James Hall, Mr. J. K. Emmet, as "Fritz," our German Cousin, drew immense audiences to three performances. He is an old favorite here, this being his birthplace, and notwithstanding his poor company, the folks were well pleased. His play has been altered some since he was here last, and, in our opinion, not for the best.

Rice's Evangeline Troupe come here next week; also, McKee Rankin and his company. Speaking of McKee Rankin reminds me, that he was successful in obtaining an injunction, restraining Bronte White Company from playing the "Dauities." W. H. W.

Charles Mathews, England's veteran comedian, is very rich and also very mean. His reputation for selfishness and meanness is such, that when any one comes begging of an actor who does not want to give, the actor says: "You can't get a penny out of me. Do you know that my name is Charles Mathews?" The name is sufficient. The beggar at once betakes himself elsewhere.

LOCATION!

Midway between Pomona and Colton, San Bernardino County, California. Soil unsurpassed in fertility. Climate best in the State—no injurious frosts ever known in the Valley. Water in abundance from San Antonio Creek and Cucamonga Creek, which run through the land. Fifty families already located in the valley, and many orange orchards already set out. The Southern Pacific Railroad, from San Francisco to the Colorado River, runs for about three miles through the tract.

Artesian wells can be had upon any portion of this land. San Bernardino Valley is the best naturally watered of the State of California. It is worthy of mention, however, that artesian wells are numerous, as the valley is bounded on the northeast and south by high mountains, partly snow-capped the year round, which furnish a large area of water shed; superficial and subterranean water is therefore abundant. The surface streams we have already described, and it now remains to give particulars of the wells. Formerly the artesian wells were only of two-inch bore, and the water was always obtained at a depth of 45 to 150 feet. They are now of larger bore, and water in abundance is obtained at a depth of 100 to 150 feet. On the north side of the Santa Ana River the average depth of artesian wells is 100 feet, while on the south side the average depth is greater.

At an elevation of 100 feet above the level of the valley there is a well which, at a depth of 132 feet, produces sufficient water to drive a turbine wheel.

There are now over 200 flowing artesian wells in San Bernardino Valley, and we are convinced that their number can be increased at the option of the inhabitants, not only for irrigation, but also for manufacturing purposes.

Oranges, Lemons, Limes, Figs, Olives, Almonds, Walnuts and all semi-tropical fruits grow abundantly. Arrangements can be made to plant any number of Orange Trees, three to four years old, four to five feet high, seventy trees to the acre, and guarantee them, for $100 per acre, also for planting other fruit shade trees at a reasonable cost.

Rich's French Hotel, one of the best in the southern portion of the State, is located upon the tract, and settlers will there find a pleasant economical home until they get their houses built.

For full particulars, maps, circulars etc. apply to E. P. NORWOOD, Agent on the land; to C. E. CHUBBUCK, Agent at Colton, San Bernardino County; or to the

ADVERTISERS

WILL FIND THE LIST OF 76 PAPERS, GENERALLY known as "Patent Outlets," one of the cheapest and best means of reaching the people in all parts of the Pacific Coast. On the aggregate these papers are read by a quarter of a million people, and our advertisements are placed near well selected reading matter. As one side of these papers is printed in San Francisco, only one cent is required in illustrated advertisements, when it would require 70 to send the order direct to the publisher of each paper. An advertisement occupying one square (10 lines agate) will be inserted one time in the entire list for $7—only 10 cents per paper.

An ordinary circular can be printed in this list, set in the space of one-fourth of a double column, and inserted once for One Dollar per paper. By this method circulars are more likely to be read and preserved, and the cost is not more than one-fourth of what it would be to print and distribute the same number through so many sections. For list of papers and further information call on or address

THURSDAY - - FEBRUARY 21

California Theater

A large audience was present last evening, and the spectacle of the "Deluge" passed off with much more éclat than any previous representation. It is destined to have a long and successful run.

Grand Opera House

The presentation of "Uncle Tom's Cabin" to good houses continues at the Grand Opera House. The play, like the book from which it is drawn, is not a great work. Mrs. Stowe's novel, the immediate success of which was unparalleled, was nevertheless of ephemeral popularity. It had intensity rather than depth, and fervor rather than power. It could not, therefore, outlive the incidents which it depicted or the passions to which it appealed. It was essentially a political novel, and like all fictions of its class, it will be soon known only to those whose tastes or duties lead them to examine curious and by-gone literature. Of course the play could be no greater than the novel from which it is dramatized. Much dependence is therefore placed upon scenic effects and side pieces, and dancing and songs are introduced to sustain the interest. The representation, in a great measure, ceases to be a drama, and becomes a mere olla podrida.

The time is not long past when the incidents of this piece would have appealed to the same powerful sympathies and passions which finally led to the civil war. To the fact that these intense feelings can no longer be aroused, may be perhaps attributed what at first seems to be the leading defect in the dramatization of this work. It seems to lack consecutiveness. About the time that the interest becomes centered the plot is "switched off," as it were, and new characters appear. The piece gradually develops interest in George and Eliza, throughout the first and second acts, then they are precipitately dropped. A skillful dramatist would perhaps have developed a single series of incidents, even at the risk of omitting startling scenes that were not closely connected therewith. But in this play the need has been felt, for the reasons given, of introducing the startling scenes, even at the sacrifice of continuity.

With the material in hand, the company seem to have accomplished the most that could have been done. Mr. Billings' "Uncle Tom" is a well sustained piece of acting, particularly free from rant. Mr. Billings evidently understands that the danger of under-acting is less to be feared than the danger of over-acting. Little Zoe Tuttle gives a painfully fine personation of "Eva." The precocity which touches the heart so in this character is perhaps equally touching in the little actress who personates it. There is a hint of good acting in Miss Pixley's "Topsy," and a very considerable realization in Mr. Barrow's "Phineas," one of the characters which ought not to be dropped, but carried through the drama. As "Simon Legree," Harry Courtaine sustains his quondam reputation. And altogether the characters are well sustained.

The Southern home, in the third act, is by all means the finest piece of scenery, as the "Magnificent Allegorical Tableau" in the fifth act is by all means the poorest. The songs of the jubilee singers are heartily received as they well deserve to be, and are, with one exception, appropriately interspersed. The exception is the death scene of little Eva, who is compelled to die to a grand chorus of one hundred singers in full voice.

We presume the intention of a death scene is that it shall be pathetic, and we would suggest that death is the most dramatic when it is isolated. The visible effect of this chorus upon the audience is to transfer the attention to the singers. It is a sudden transition from the presence of death to robust life.
